GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference Tuesday drew more than 125 producers and industry representatives to a one-day event conducted here at the Holiday Inn.

The Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA), Pennsylvania Soybean Board, and Penn State Cooperative Extension sponsored the event.

During the day PCGA members voted on nominations for the upcoming year's board of directors. Steve Wenger, James Hershey, Jim Hoover, and Russell McLucas were elected to fill the "producer" slots; John Hart, Mifflintown, filled the "industry" position; and John Berry, regional ag marketing educator for Penn State Extension, will serve in the "education" position on the board.

In other association developments, PCGA has a newly-developed Website and e-mail address, available at www.pacorngrowers.org.

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) — that's the main focus of today's pork production. That subject was tops on the agenda at this year's Keystone Pork Expo Tuesday here at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center.

Attendance this year was estimated at 250, which included members of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association, which the Cedar Crest chapter was hosting nearby. They found plenty to see and hear at one of the largest expo trade shows featuring 44 exhibitors plus the "Pork. The Other White Meat Racing" stock car and trailer.

Ken Kephart, Penn State professor of animal science, opened the program with Bob Mikesell, extension swine specialist, who led the discussion on Pork Quality Assurance. Mikesell said that 42 producers gained certification or recertification in PQA.

New PQA program booklets compiled by the National Pork Board were distributed. The booklets contain all the necessary forms and information involved in the program in which certification is required by most packers who slaughter hogs.

A separate PQA booklet has been prepared for youth to make them aware of the program and the importance of PQA. It was subject of the winning speech in the junior division of the speaking contest.

Following the PQA certification session, Dr. Roy Schultz, an Iowan veterinarian, provided extensive information on his experiences with sow mortality in more than 40 years of practice. He told about the study on 85,000 sows tested on various farms in Missouri. Cloistridium and lameness in sows were discussed as the main reasons for sow mortality.

Meanwhile, across the road at the Lebanon County Extension Center, Linda Spahr from the York County extension was su-

Budget Squeezes Agriculture, Food Programs

Proposal To Keep Key Ag Programs In Place

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With revenue shortages, homeland security, and education concerns at the forefront, funds for Pennsylvania agriculture programs will be tight in 2002-2003.

That was message conveyed by Gov. Mark Schweiker's $20.9 billion state budget proposal this week.

Key ag programs will remain in place, however, according to Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes Jr.

The $76 million Farm Show Complex expansion, $6 million construction of a new livestock evaluation center, and expansion of the state's animal diagnostic laboratory are "scheduled to continue without cessation," Hayes said in a statement Tuesday.

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — It was a big week for the south-central region of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association.

At the annual convention here Tuesday and Wednesday, two Adams County couples were awarded for their outstanding commitment to agriculture and their community. Two individuals and a group from the Shippensburg area were also recognized.

From the eastern region, Dick and Carol Kreider, of the Cedar Crest Young Farmers Chapter, represented the convention's host county of Lebanon by winning the outstanding young farmer over 30 award.

The Kreiders grow crops, feed out about 150 head of beef, and run a custom corn planting business. Their high corn yields have been recognized through the years by the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association.

Dick has been a member of the Cedar Crest Young Farmers for more than 35 years and has served as president. He has also chaired the Lebanon Farm Expo board of directors and served for many years on the Lebanon Farm-City committee.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
February 6, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was limited mainly to shipments of standing commitments. Seller offerings were readily available and spot sales were usually at highly competitive price levels. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 66 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly weak.

In the parts complex, all cuts were at least adequate for the disappointingly light buying interest.

New York Broilers/Fryers

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was remained light and unaggressive during midweek trading as dealers continued to keep inventories in close balance with the light demand. Offerings of all sizes were at least adequate with slight discounting continuing to be noted where product was in excess. Movement through retail and distributive channels was limited. The market tone was no better than steady.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was very light during midweek trading as dealers remained cautious and kept floorstocks in close balance with the limited demand. Offerings of boneless-skinless breasts were fully adequate. Bone-in breasts were at least sufficient and noted as increasing in availability. Leg quarters ranged adequate to fully adequate. Wings were readily available. Movement through retail and distributive channels was seasonally slow. The market tone was barely steady to weak on wings, barely steady to instances weak on bone-in breasts and no better than steady on the balance.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening Will help rumen function over freshing Less feet problems and less stress

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Nothing exciting in the wheat pits today. Trade bounced on both sides of steady with overnight exports offering light support while good winter wheat conditions limited the advances. Corn bids were lower, however, exports to Taiwan and South Korea may calm concerns over expectations of Friday's USDA report. Possible indications of increased corn planting this year pressured bids. Soybean bids are lower for the second consecutive day as South America inches closer to harvest with good weather spurring it on Wheat mixed, 1 cent lower to 1 cent higher. Corn 1 to 2 cents lower.

Sorghum 3 to 8 cents lower. Soybeans 4 to 6 cents lower.

The Big Dutchman Univent Layer Cage System is the first choice of profitable poultry producers. More than 90,000,000 birds are housed in Big Dutchman battery belt cage systems worldwide.

Efficient manure removal
Manure begins to dry on collection belts and is easily removed from the house.

Univent provides easy access and bird comfort
Doors slide horizontally across the full width of the cage, providing easy bird management.

Wire partitions assure improved air flow and bird comfort, helping birds achieve peak egg performance.

Manufactured of proven Galfan® wire
Galfan wire is coated with a combination alloy of aluminum and zinc, providing up to three times longer life than heavy galvanized wire.

The ultimate feeding system
The superior Champion™ chain feeder accommodates your management practices and helps improve feed conversions.

Let our experienced sales and service network help you configure your own Univent Layer Cage System.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SHROVE TUESDAY, FEB. 12

CHINESE NEW YEAR

This week starts the Chinese New Year. In the Chinese zodiac 2002 is the year of the horse, as were 1990, 1978, 1966, 1954, 1942, 1930 and 1918. Those born in the year of the horse (which begins three to seven weeks into the Western year) are independent, hard working, popular and sociable. Most of 2001 and up until Tuesday this week were part of the year of the snake. This week also includes Shrove Tuesday and the new Moon on the 12th. Ash Wednesday on the 13th and St. Valentine's Day on the 14th. The 15th is Susan B. Anthony's birthday; the 17th is the first Sunday in Lent and also the day that Geronimo (who was leader of the Chiricahua Apaches) died in 1909.

We tolerate shapes in human beings that would horrify us if we saw them in a horse.

–William Ralph Inge, English religious leader and author (1860–1954)

TIP OF THE WEEK

Tap maple trees now.

BISCUITS AND MAPLE BUTTER

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
1/2 cup maple syrup
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 cup Crisco shortening
2/3 cup half-and-half

Preheat oven to 450°F. Maple butter: Warm up stick of butter, add maple syrup, and then mash. Set aside. Biscuits: Sift dry ingredients and cut in Crisco. Add half and half and stir with fork. Pat or roll dough ½ inch thick and cut with a biscuit cutter. Bake for 10 minutes on un greased baking sheet. Serve with maple butter.

Makes 15 biscuits

OPINION

What Our Thoughts Make It

Some financial analysts see the recession as short-lived and soon to be done with. Yet agricultural export companies continue to re-invent and remarket themselves.

Great news: in the Dec. 27 U.S. Agricultural Trade Update of the USDA Economic Research Service (ERS), U.S. ag exports from January-October 2001 increased by $1.8 billion over the same period in 2000 as high-value sales gained by $1.7 billion. U.S. farm trade surplus through October was up by a cumulative $1.5 billion.

Exports in October 2001 climbed by $639 million from the previous month as shipments of soybeans, horses, cattle, and tree nuts jumped by significant amounts.

Hoard's Dairyman reported early last month that the value of dairy exports jumped 13.6 percent during fiscal year 2001 (October 2000-September 2001) to $1.1.32 billion. The most growth, according to Hoard's, was in the cheese category, which climbed to $158 million (compared to $134 million the year before).

Farm Bureau News, for the Jan. 7 issue, noted in big headlines that "Ag is the bright spot in a dim world economy." They report: "the value of U.S. agricultural exports is expected to grow for the third consecutive year, making agriculture the bright spot in the current world economy."

The Farm Bureau reports ERS information that show exports will grow 6.5 percent to $57 billion in fiscal year 2002, which began on Oct. 1. Most of the gain, they note, will be seen in the major bulk commodities, including corn, wheat, soybeans, and cotton. And horticultural products, such as fruits and vegetables, are also projected to increase.

ERS reports that in fiscal year 2001, according to Farm Bureau, total exports of U.S. farm and food products grew to $53 billion, a $2.1 billion increase over fiscal year 2000. High-value consumer-oriented products sparked the increase with $2.1 billion in additional exports.

Though the ERS's Ag Outlook report for January-February 2002 paints a "mixed picture for the farm and rural economy," mostly because of the recession, clearly exports are on the way up.

East Asian countries have tasted Western products, and want more. We don't think there's any turning back now — China and other countries want Western products more and more, and are willing to spend for them.

That kind of good news is often hard to come by. So the recession affects us — perhaps only if we let it.

To Protect Your Hearing

Farms are noisy places with potentially damaging noise from tractors, other equipment, vacuum pumps, and even fans in the working environment every day. Dennis Murphy, Penn State professor of agricultural engineering, said farmers should protect their hearing before it's too late.

Murphy points out loud rock music is about 115 decibels. Noise on a farm ranges between 90 and 140 decibels, which is well above the 85-decibel limit at which industrial employers must provide hearing protection for workers.

"Consistent, repetitive exposure to high-decibel noise can damage hearing before you notice any change," Murphy said. "The farmer may think he's getting used to the noise, but in reality he already may have experienced a mild hearing loss."

Hearing loss, like many medical problems, does have warning signs. One warning is buzzing, whirring, or ringing in the ears, which can indicate a temporary hearing loss. Also if you listen to the radio or television at a volume that seems too loud for family or friends, you may have some hearing damage. Frequently asking people to speak up or the inability to follow conversations in a crowd can indicate hearing loss as well.

On farms, extremely high noise levels may seem normal, but Murphy said there's a quick way to tell if noise is at a dangerous level. "If you have to shout to be heard at a distance of about three feet, the noise is too loud," he explains. "Reduce the noise level or wear hearing protection."

Murphy said safety surveys have shown that farmers are aware of excessive noise hazards, but many opt not to wear ear protection. "It may be that farmers believe wearing them is inconvenient, unwieldy, or time-consuming," Murphy said. "Certainly it will be a change in routine, but better to wear protection today than hearing aids tomorrow."

Murphy said ear protection comes in two basic forms: muffs that fit over the ears (much like those worn at shooting ranges) and plugs that are worn inside the ear canal. Both types reduce noise by about 25 decibels. Both product types are carried in health and safety catalogs, sporting goods stores, or through licensed audiologists.

Muffs are more comfortable "if worn over a long period of time," Murphy said. "Still, their effectiveness can be compromised if you wear glasses or a hat. Ear plugs are less noticeable and fit into your pocket."

Disposable earplugs cost about $1 while muffs cost from $5-$80. If you use plugs regularly, it may be more cost effective to buy reusable plugs or muffs, according to Murphy.

To Learn To Use The Futures Market To Manage Fluctuating Milk Prices

Fluctuating milk prices are a new challenge for dairy farmers, but using the futures market can help to stabilize income. Dairy experts in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will offer several training classes on this topic in February.

"Dairy Risk Management Training: Learning How to Forward Contract/Hedge Milk in Pennsylvania" is a one-day workshop being taught in several locations around the state by Kenneth Bailey, associate professor of dairy markets and policy, and Sarah Roth, extension associate with Penn State's Dairy Alliance program. AgChoice Farm Credit and Land O'Lakes Dairy Cooperative sponsor the training.

Bailey explains that the training helps dairy farmers lock in better milk prices, understand their milk market, and decipher their milk checks.

"In recent weeks, milk prices have fallen significantly due to a weak national economy and events surrounding September 11," Bailey said. "Dairy farmers who used the futures market prior to the September tragedy were able to protect their milk income against these sudden drops, and it's surprisingly easy once you understand the basics."

The training is very basic and participants do not have to be a math whiz to participate. Bailey points out this one-day class also is a good introduction for farmers planning to attend the USDA's Dairy Options Pilot Program later this year.

The six-hour training will address such topics as "Understanding Your Milk Check," "Basics of Forward Contracting," "Computing Your Basis," "Incorporating Risk Management Into Your Business Plan," and "Strategies and Market Outlook."

Training sessions will be limited to 20 participants, and a registration fee of $10 will include lunch. All worksheets and materials will be provided, and the basis of the training will be a new Penn State manual on dairy risk management available on the Web at http://pubs.cas.psu.edu/freepubs/ua359.html.

The training is being offered Feb. 19 in State College. Contact Terry Maddox for more information at (814) 355-4897. The program will be repeated in Coudersport Feb. 20. Contact Jim Clark at (814) 274-8540. It is also set for Meadville Feb. 21. Contact George Wilcox at (814) 825-0900. This class will be presented in Myerstown Feb. 27. Contact Galen Kopp at (717) 270-4391.

MOABITE BLOOD

Background Scripture:
Ruth 2 through 4.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 126.

In Biblical days, people did not have surnames. The people of Bethlehem probably called Naomi's daughter-in-law "Ruth the Moabitess." We do not know the meaning of the word "Moab," but "Ruth" is derived from the same Hebrew root as "friend" or "companion." If that is so, then Ruth was very suitably named.

Normally, of the two words "Moabitess" and "friend," the former would be the most important: she was a foreigner. It would have been the same if she had been an Edomite, Ammonite, or Canaanite. Initially, ethnicity was believed to be more important than personality. Having the "right" blood or the "wrong" blood was very important. So Ruth was initially suspect because she was of Moabite blood.

To overcome that liability, Naomi played the "family" card. Too old to work herself, Naomi based their survival on kinship. As kin to Boaz, she hoped that Ruth would be allowed to glean in his fields. Gleaning was a means of providing for those less fortunate, permitting them to gather what was left of the crop after harvesting.

The Moabite Woman

Boaz observed Ruth gleaning in his fields and asked his workmen to identify her. Note the answer that they gave him: "It is the Moabite maiden, who came back with Naomi from the country of Moab" (2:6). His workmen say "the Moabite woman," not "a Moabite woman." She was the Moabite woman about whom the town was talking because of her loyalty to their kinswoman, Naomi.

Boaz is attracted to Ruth. Perhaps it is because of her loyalty to Naomi. Perhaps he was impressed by her pluck in subjecting herself to a backbreaking and perhaps dangerous task. ("Have I not charged the young men not to molest you?") Ruth is so incredulous at his invitation to glean exclusively in his fields that she asks: "Why have I found favor in your eyes, that you should take notice of me, when I am a foreigner?" Answers Boaz: "All that you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband has been fully told me . . ." (2:11). So, Ruth's personality won out over her ethnicity. Although she has Moabite blood, she displayed the kind of loyalty, responsibility, and love that Israel's God asked of all Israelites.

David's Great Grandmother

Do we also see romance here? Whether it was in Naomi's mind from the time they returned to Bethlehem or occurred to her when Boaz shows interest in Ruth, Naomi sees the possibility of an even deeper attraction on his part: "Wash therefore and anoint yourself, and put on your best clothes and go down to the threshing floor" (3:3). When Boaz fell asleep on the threshing floor, Ruth was to quietly lie at his feet.

In the middle of the night when he awoke, Boaz is startled and Ruth says to him: "I am Ruth, your maidservant; spread your skirt over your maidservant, for you are next of kin" (3:9). Her invitation for him to spread his robe over her is an invitation to take her in marriage. This was Levirate marriage: the next of kin had the right and obligation to protect the property and honor of a kinsman who died, maintaining the family line (Lev. 25:25; Deut.25:5,6). Despite her Moabite blood, Boaz married Ruth and she bore him a son, Obed, who would be the father of Jesse, the father of David the King.

Although Nehemiah and Ezra were pronouncing strong prohibitions against the marriage of Israelites and foreigners, the author of Ruth is bringing a different message to Israel. Ruth, a foreigner, is exemplary in her loyalty and love of her Israelite mother-in-law. Later, when David ascended the throne and became the model Israelite king, it was to be remembered that his great grandmother was a woman of Moabite blood.

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co) — To James Hershey, farming has been a lifelong pursuit — and has provided lifelong learning opportunities

Hershey is the winner of the no-till, nonirrigated division of 2000's state shelled grain class with 216 4 bushels per acre and a plant popula tion of 29,272 per acre using Pioneer 33A14

A four-year entrant in both corn and soybean divisions in both the state and national contests, he actually has sev eral wins behind his name A soybean yield of 80 bushels per acre netted him top honors in the soybean contest two years ago

Additionally, he was third in the state in 1997 for the corn contest, and last year third in the state for the na tional corn contest He plans to continue to enter future competitions

Farming has always been the career choice for Hershey and his wife, Shirley Hershey grew up in New Holland and farmed on his parents' opera tion for a year before he moved to the Elizabethtown farm, where Shirley grew up, in 1977 Her father, Ray mond Miller, continues to help out with the fieldwork

They own 250 acres and farm a total of 350 acres The corn, wheat, soybeans, and barley the Hersheys grow are all sold

Let Shelled Corn Heat Your Home, Furnace Maker Says

DAVE LEFEVER

LOCK HAVEN (Clinton Co) — While the possibility of ethanol production from local corn is being studied by some Pennsylvania ag and economic development leaders, one manufacturer here is making furnaces that convert shelled corn into heat

Producing 100,000 British Thermal Units (BTUs) per hour, the shelled corn furnaces provide a clean, inexpensive alternative to traditional fuels such as oil and coal, according to Pete Spangler of LMF Manufacturing in Lock Haven

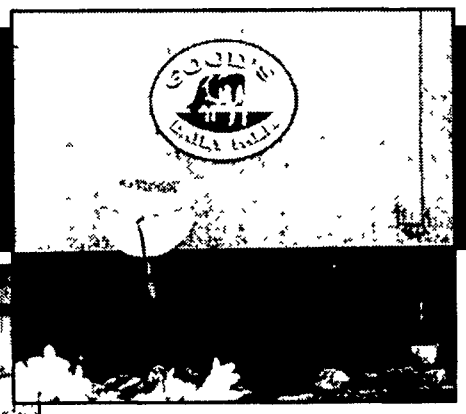
"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

WB95PZ Zimmerman Water Bowl

The Unlimited Water Supply For Your Cows!

Low maintenance noncorrosive Delrin valve is self cleaning & simple to operate!

Now you can give your cows the water they need to produce more milk. With the Zimmerman Water Bowl, you can do it at no extra cost!

The bowls are designed to comply with known federal and local requirements when installed properly*

Cows are not designed to push a paddle when they need a drink. This unique watering system provides a continuous supply of fresh water in the way nature intended cows to drink. With a large capacity, fast recovery and a guarantee against breakage, the Zimmerman Water Bowl will revolutionize the way you water your herd.

*All bottom fill bowls require that approved back flow prevention devices be installed in potable water supply lines

Install in new or remodeled facilities or in most existing barns on manger or stall side!

- 12" in diameter & 8" deep.
- 3 gallon capacity- 6 times that of other bowls!
- Fast recovery- 3 gallons per minute at 40 psi.
- PVC construction- guaranteed unbreakable, inhibits bacterial growth.
- With nonrestrictive splash guard.
- Cleaner- water fill located at bottom.
- Bottom drain- for easy cleaning.
- Adjustable water level.

MORE WATER MEANS MORE MILK...NATURALLY!

Heavy duty steel clamp & mounting bracket totally supports bowl.

Two Coat Process!

Added Value With Our 2 Coat Process!

1 Five step metal preparation including iron phosphate conversion coating, to enhance adhesion & prevent undercoat corrosion
2 Zinc rich epoxy powder undercoat

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Feb. 1, 2002

Cheese Market Weak

- Cheese prices drop 15 cents per pound
- Milk supply hits spring flush.
- Commercial disappearance.
- USDA announces January prices.

A combination of a surge in milk production in the East and a snowstorm in the middle of the country created weak market conditions for cheese. Both blocks and barrels fell 15 cents per pound this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Barrels ended the week at $1.20 per pound and blocks skid to $1.2350.

USDA reports that milk production is increasing in much of the eastern half of the U.S. I have heard some refer to this as an early spring flush caused by unusually warm weather. The warmer weather, however, is just about over. Snow in much of the midsection of the U.S. this week caused problems with panic buying in grocery stores before the storm, and reduced consumption just after the storm. It also caused transportation bottlenecks. Overall, more milk means lower cream prices and more processing for butter, nonfat dry milk, and cheese.

The sudden decline in cheese prices is not necessarily indicative of market trends over the next few months. There are numerous opportunities to spur consumer sales during Super Bowl and Easter. Coupled with a return to more normal winter weather patterns, the milk supply could become better matched with demand, allowing cheese prices to recover.

Another bit of good news is related to the U.S. economy. Unemployment is declining (or at least stabilizing) and the economy is reportedly growing slightly. As a result, the Federal Reserve decided not to further reduce interest rates. That is a vote of confidence for a recovery in the U.S. economy later this year. That's good news for future demand for milk and dairy products.

USDA reported consumption numbers for milk and dairy products during the months of September through November 2001. These were the months most affected by the Sept. 11 tragedy. On the one hand, consumption for American cheese rose 3.2 percent relative to the same three months in 2000. On the other hand, consumption of other cheese, mainly Italian cheeses, fell 4.8 percent. This represents a big drop.

Finally, USDA announced the January 2002 federal order milk prices. Class II prices are $12.69 per CWT, up 8 cents from the month before. Class III prices are $11.87 per CWT, up 7 cents. And Class IV prices are $11.93 per CWT, up 14 cents per CWT. This reflects a slight recovery in cheese and butter prices.

Product price averages for January 2002 were (dollars per pound) butter $1.3324, nonfat dry milk $0.9161, cheese $1.2922, and dry whey $0.2747. Component values for January 2002 were (dollars per pound) butterfat $1.4846, protein $1.9660, and other solids $0.1392.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Sometimes You Need a Spreader Built Like A Tank

When spreading stockpiled lime, for example. The Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreader is likely the most powerful spreader of its kind on the market today. You see, we've been building them since 1945, and farmers are still using Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreaders they've had for 20, even 30 years. Our special drag chain is 4 times stronger than stainless steel, and handles frozen and heavy stockpiled lime with ease. Plus for spreading compost, composted sludge, poultry litter and certain fertilizers, the WLS is without equal for sheer volume spreading.

Cut your fertilizer bill by liberating nutrients tied up by acid soil.

Use Lime.

- Two-ton, five-ton, eight-ton models
- PTO, 540 rpm or 1,000 rpm
- Two-speed conveyor chain
- Leaf spring suspension
- Dual 24" spinners
- Spreads 40' effectively
- One-sided spreading capability
- Truck-mounted models available

Report Supplied By USDA

Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers 1.00 to mostly 2.00 higher. Stocker cattle and calves steady to 2.00 higher. Demand good for all classes. Last week's ice storm provided several inches of much needed moisture to majority of the state. More moisture this week. Spring wheat pasture prospects are improved. Many rural communities are without power due to down lines and poles. It may be March before power situation is back to normal for much of the northwest quarter of the state. Quality of supply plain to average. Feeder cattle in medium to moderate flesh. Calves range from thin to fleshy. Weigh conditions gaunt to average. Total of 375 cows and bulls sold with 55% to packers.

Receipts this week 7100; last week 10,558; last year 11,516. Supply consisted of 73% yearlings over 600 lbs; 22% calves under 600 lbs; 5% cows & bulls. Heifers comprised 37% of feeder & calf supply.

Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

POURED SOLID CONCRETE

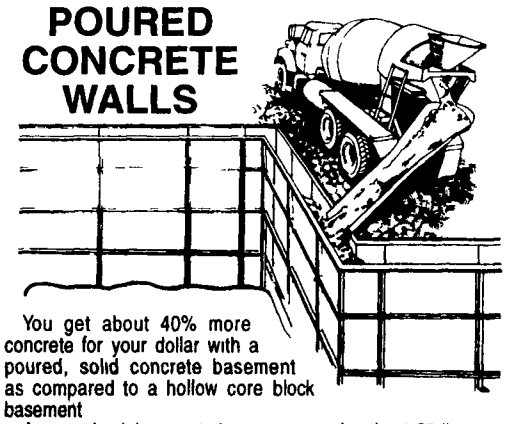
START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic . .there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
February 6, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.5307-1.6615. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.5438-1.7008 mostly 1.5438-1.5700.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9700-1 0500; Class III - spot prices - .9200-9900.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 6, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 11; last year - In 0, Out 55. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

The following are the January 2002 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system: Class II $12.69 (up $0.08 from December), Class III $11.87 (up $0.07); and Class IV $11.93 (up $0.14). The following are product price averages used in computing Class prices: butter $1.3324, NDM $0.9161, cheese $1.2922, and dry whey $0.2747. The Class II butterfat price is $1.4916 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $1.4846. At midweek, a snow/ice storm hit much of Tennessee and parts of surrounding states. This did impact milk pickups and over-the-road hauling schedules.

Milk production is steady in the Northeast while, steady to slightly heavier in the Middle Atlantic and Southeast. Fluid milk supplies are more than ample to meet the steady to improved Class I demand. The storm in the Midsouth did cause some early-week panic buying at retail. Also, widespread retail feature activity is being reported in the Southeast, which has bottlers pulling more milk from their suppliers.

In the Northeast, milk sales are mostly steady. Manufacturing plants throughout the East are operating above historic, February levels. Balancing plants in the Southeast are getting milk, particularly on weekends and other plants in the region are "pretty full" during the rest of the week.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Offerings are heavy and demand slow to fair and mostly through contracts. Drying activity is moderate to heavy in those plants that are able to dry.

The fluid cream market remains weak. Offerings are excessive and spot buyers, hoping for continued lower prices, are delaying purchases as long as they can. In Monday's trading (February 4), the price of butter at the CME fell to $1.2500, the first time since December 17 that it has been below $1.3000. This week, spot prices are nominal and slightly lower than last week's levels. Production of ice cream and cream cheese are light to moderate. Most manufacturers are taking their contracted volumes, but limiting their purchases of spot cream until prices move lower. Butter makers continue to be flooded with cream and are hard pressed to clear all the cream.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Feb. 1. Receipts this week 185,300; last week 181,600; year ago 172,100. This week's reported volume included 46 percent over 600 lbs. Compared to last week, feeder cattle and calves sold mostly steady across the nation. The only exception being the Southeast, where prices were mostly 1.00-2.00 higher as business returns to normal, following last week's heavy rains.

Although prices remained virtually unchanged, the undertone has turned positive along with the mood of most cattle feeders. Tuesday's CME live cattle contracts saw significant gains and though feeder cattle buyers are still trying to show caution, trading was reported to be active in most auction and direct markets.

The fat cattle market continues to advance and cattle feeders can almost taste the black ink on the end of their pens. February and April futures are both trading at a nice premium to current cash levels and this weekend's Super Bowl might be the first football game enjoyed by a cattle feeder all year.

A blast of cold and wet weather moved across the center of the United States this past week. The form of precipitation was largely ice and conditions were slippery from west Texas all the way up to eastern Iowa. Any moisture was a welcome sight to the Plains, where conditions are very dry and most wheat cattle are receiving supplemental feeding. Many feedlots received their first dose of winter weather, which will slow performance as cattle use more of their energy for staying warm and tromping through mud.

The idea that cow/calf producers have been slow to replenish their herds is evidently true. Friday's USDA cattle inventory report estimated a 1 percent drop in the 2001 calf crop. This was expected and can be seen in the higher prices recently paid for replacement cattle. Heifers have simply been too valuable to hold back and many cow/calf regions have been very dry. The number of beef cow operations in 2001 was down 2 percent from 2000 and 4 percent below 1999.

Cow and heiferette feeders in the upper Midwest lost a major market Wednesday, as Federal Beef Processors went up in smoke from an early morning fire Located in Rapid City, SD, Federal Beef killed mostly cows but was also an outlet for overweight farmer-fed slaughter steers and heifers.

Southcentral Young Farmers Shine At Conference

farmer under 30 award went to Bill and Brandee Vanarsdale of Gettysburg.

While not managing their own farm, the Vanarsdales run a 7,000-acre custom fieldwork business in Adams County that includes mowing hay and harvesting corn, wheat, and soybeans.

Besides helping to keep the books for that operation, Brandee also works as a herdsperson for Jobo Holsteins, a dairy with more than 500 milking cows in the Gettysburg area.

The Vanarsdales recently became parents of a daughter, Kaylee.

Besides all their other involvement with farming, they have plans to raise a small herd of Texas Longhorn cattle.

Ed and Tina Wilkinson, also of Adams County, took home the outstanding community service award for their strong leadership and involvement in area activities.

The Wilkinsons help manage Getty Acres, a 200-Holstein operation, and grow 3,000 acres of crops in addition to being a regular sight at ag-related events in Adams County.

The couple has served as 4-H project leaders and are known for their pit beef stand at various apple festivals. They are active in the Adams County Young Farmers, where Ed has been president four times.

"To say that Ed and Tina are very busy people would be an understatement," said Gerald W. Reichard in presenting the award.

Reichard himself was named a new honorary member for his many years of commitment to the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association (PYFA.)

He retired in 1998 from the vocational ag department at Waynesboro High School, Franklin County, after teaching a total of 36 years. He is a member of the Shippensburg Young Farmer Chapter and a PYFA coordinator.

The Shippensburg Young Farmer Chapter recently celebrated its 50th anniversary and was selected outstanding chapter in the state.

Twelve members of the chapter were on hand to accept the award.

Carol and Richard Kreider, recipients of the outstanding young farmer over 30 award.

Yet another person from the Shippensburg area shared the spotlight at the convention.

Emily Grove, a senior at Shippensburg High School was selected as spokesperson for agriculture.

Grove proved herself worthy of that position by discussing agricultural topics with consumers and members of the media Tuesday, and by making an impromptu speech on teaching kids about ag.

Regional winners for the Outstanding Young Farmer award include:

- Robert Kirk of the Solanco Young Farmers. Kirk direct-markets hogs. raises heifers, and is known for helping his farm neighbors.
- Kevin and Jeryl Kulp of the Kutztown Young Farmers Chapter. The Kulps manage a 110-cow Holstein herd and have three children.
- Brian Zug of the Solanco Young Farmers. A 1992 graduate of Solanco High School, Zug helps run a dairy operation in Fulton Township with a goal to make the most of "experience, education, and a strong desire to improve the management of the dairy herd," Reichard said.

The Richard Hoppes Memorial Award went to Terry and Jane Martin of Peace Valley Farm, Chambersburg. Terry has a long history of involvement

Corn, Soybean Conference

Contest results are also a highlight of the conference. There were 84 participants in the five-acre corn club, according to PCGA president Guy Wagner. Even though the numbers "were a little off" in comparison to other years, yields were better than expected in view of the dry growing season, he said.

In the three-year average ear corn awards, Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, took first place with an average of 191.7 bushels per acre with Pioneer 33G26.

Second place went to Wayne Freeman, Elliottsburg, with 173.9 bushels per acre with NC+5878Bt.

Jeffery Reed, Emporium, took home a third place with an average of 173.6 bushels per acre with Pioneer 39D81.

Donna Coleman, Ronks, took home a first place in the shelled corn tilled class with a yield of 248.3 bushels per acre and a plant population of 31,886 with Pioneer 33B51.

Second place in the same class went to D. Richard Snyder, Montoursville, with a yield of 235.8 and plant population of 28,677 with Pioneer 31G98.

Third place in the same class was L. Zook & Sons, Oley, with a yield of 227.4 bushels per acre and plant population of 26,479 with Pioneer 33A14.

In the shelled corn no-till class Carl Shaffer, Mifflinville, had a yield of 218.9 bushels per acre and plant population of 27,463 and took first with Pioneer 33A14.

David Hileman, Tyrone, took home a second place with a yield of 215.7 and plant population of 29,621 with Pioneer 33A14.

Third place was Nelson Beam, Elverson, using Pioneer 33B51 with a yield of 208.4 bushels per acre and a plant population of 29,795.

In the ear corn class, Kenneth Glazier, McConnellsburg, had a first place win with a yield of 213.5 bushels per acre with a population of 22,916 using Hubner H3505.

Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, took home second place with a plant population of 25,478 with Pioneer 33G26 and a yield of 211.3 bushels per acre.

Thurman Nesbitt III, McConnellsburg, won third place with a yield of 201.6 bushels per acre and a plant population of 20,540 with Doeblers 75XMod.

In the Pennsylvania Soybean Yield contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania soybean promotion board, Shoop Farms, Northumberland County, took home a first place with 77.7 bushels per acre with UAP 3370.

Kyle Henninger, Lehigh County, won second place with 74.68 bushels per acre with Asgrow AG3701.

Jack Coleman, Lancaster County, took home third place with 74.44 bushels per acre with Pioneer 93B53.

Marketing

Gene Gantz, risk and profit management consultant for Ag Risk Strategies, Inc., discussed crop insurance-based marketing strategies to open the conference.

Gantz highlighted the fact that only 20 percent of Pennsylvania's crops were insured last year in contrast to 80 percent nationwide.

"We left 150 million bucks on the table," said Gantz. "I think that would have changed production agriculture in this state."

The current water deficit "makes higher levels of coverage look awfully good for a one-year strategy," said Gantz. "You can almost guarantee yourself a normal crop even with a low water level."

The two most common reasons producers do not have an active marketing plan its because they are not sure they will get the crop and they are willing to see if the market goes higher, according to Gantz. "You need crop insurance for the most effective marketing," he said.

With insurance, producers can be more aggressive before harvest, finding and taking advantage of marketing their crop at a higher price before the crop is harvested.

Ed Winkle, Blanchester, Ohio, Hy Mark Consulting, presented his ideas about moving from the no-till to the nu-till system.

Planter efficiency can boost yields, said Winkle, who suggested changes such as avoiding running a coulter in the row area.

A single disk opener cuts residue two inches away from the center of the seed trench. Winkle also uses row cleaners to remove the residue and very little soil from the row area.

Martin spader wheels till carefully over top of the planted seed. A 30-inch chain drags one cup of soil per foot of row, which creates uniform coverage over top of each seed, which will then all emerge within a short time period of each other.

Guy Wagner, PCGA president, awards the Five-Acı Corn Club winners present who were, from left, Wayne Freeman, Elliottsburg, second place in the three-year average ear corn class; Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, first place in the three-year average ear corn class and second place in the ear corn class; and Carl Shaffer, Mifflinville, first place in the shelled corn no-till class. Photo by Michelle Kunjappu

Joel Rotz, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, discussed the Pennsylvania Farm Bill debate. After the House version of the Farm Bill passed in the summer, it moved on to the Senate, where changed leadership and changed national priorities have tabled the bill.

Rotz compared the House and Senate versions. Both have added soybeans to program crops, and both have increased conservation spending.

The Senate put more emphasis on farmers actually growing the crops, as payments rely more on actual production.

Ethanol

Boyd Smith, from York County, Neb., discussed ethanol markets and policy. Smith, chairman of the ethanol marketing committee, NCGA, said that ethanol is more widely offered in Nebraska. However that may change as NCGA has made ethanol production its number one priority, so growth opportunities exist.

America's gas consumption is 130 billion gallons each year, said Smith, adding that the U.S imports 57 percent of its fuel needs.

Ethanol is manufactured by wet or dry mill techniques. The by-products —carbon dioxide and dry distillers grain — may be sold for additional profit. In 2000, plants made 1.6 gallons of ethanol while 2001 saw 1.77 billion gallons of ethanol produced.

Of the last 17 plants built, 15 were farmer-owned. Most of the plants are in the Midwest. On the other hand, "Most of the demand is on the outside, in California or the Northeastern states," said Smith. "It makes sense for plants to pop up here in the Northeast."

Smith hopes to see the renewable fuel displace foreign oil. "We can grow a new crop of ethanol every year," he said.

Dennis Phelps, soybean grower and United Soybean Board (USB) eastern region director, gave an update on the soybean checkoff. For years, biodiesel has been high on the checkoff's list, said Phelps. It is the fastest-growing alternative fuel in the U.S.

Soy foods is also a major initiative on the checkoff agenda, as the board has been highlighting health benefits of the food. Last year 44 million bushels were used in soy foods.

Additionally, 18 new soy products were commercialized in 2001. Soy-based combine panels, plastic lubricants, solvents, inks, and lubricants are a partial list of products.

Another effort is help with the Better Bean Initiative (BBI). This fall the first variety, developed under the BBI, was harvested in North Carolina.

Also a new Soybean Diagnostic Guide, featuring pictures and descriptions of 120 pests and diseases, became available on CD-ROM, handbook, or Web formats. Visit www.unitedsoybean.org to view the guide.

Ag Development Alliance

One year ago, York County developed the Agriculture Economy Development Corporation to create lines of communication and be a link between agriculture representatives and economy developers.

The alliance was created to identify farm and agriculture business growth opportunities, according to representative Scott Welsh.

So far, work has caused policy issues to surface, "especially state low-interest loans available to small business not traditional linked to agriculture," he said. Consequently "Small Business First" programs are being modified to allow farmers to pursue low-interest loans.

The alliance has also been key in spearheading an effort to conduct a feasibility study for an ethanol or biodiesel plant in southcentral Pennsylvania. After securing funding for the study, the alliance has hired a consulting firm to conduct the study, which will be finished in March.

Jim Dunn, professor of agriculture economics, Penn State, presented information on understanding the basis, the difference between the local price and the price somewhere else at the same time for agriculture products. The basis is the local price minus the Chicago Board of Trade price.

It is a "very local" price that shows "lots of variation."

You need to look at your own market and compare it to listed prices — it is essential to planning," he said.

John Yocum, department of crop and soil sciences, Penn State, discussed ways of increasing soybean yield.

Cultivar selection can not only increase yield but also allow for a different time of harvest, said Yocum. Most of this region's producers harvest their crops in October.

Yocum also addressed plant population, which does not necessarily have to be maximized to realize maximum yield. In fact, populations of between 125,000-200,000 plants per acre showed no difference in yield, so Yocum recommends planting 150,00-175,000 plant population per acre.

Equipment calibration, particularly during seeding, is also important. "Soybeans have different seed sizes depending on when and where they were grown," said Yocum. Consequently the equipment must be recalibrated each year.

Seed depth should be approximately 1.5 inches or less, because "a lot of varieties won't come up if it is deeper," he said.

Timing is also important. "After May 20, yields start to decline," he said.

Shattering problems will be especially evident during a dry year. However, "the way to avoid that is to get it harvested as soon as they hit 49 percent moisture," he said.

In the soil fertility category, a pH of 6-6.5 is ideal. In addition, "In all the plot work we've done with nitrogen, we've never gotten a yield increase with nitrogen," he said, although the plants may become greener and taller.

A uniform field free of ruts and depressions is also important. "In corn you can tolerate that," he said, "but for soybeans to get the best yields the fields have to be fairly uniform."

Budget Squeezes Agriculture

While the budget proposal would spread "Growing Greener" funds for farmland preservation over six years rather than five, Hayes remains confident of the continued success of the program.

"For sure, our farmland preservation will continue to lead the nation without any questions whatsoever," he said.

One million dollars in legislative increases for food coupons and food purchases were not included in the budget proposal, though "the base programs will remain in place and continue to lead the nation."

The governor's budget also cuts funding for rural youth grants, agriculture awareness, and beef quality assurance, items included in the current budget.

Five million dollars for grants to promote the horse race industry will remain frozen, according to the proposal.

"All other agriculture programs are squarely part of the governor's budget, even though commonwealth revenues have dropped off by $622 million. There is a deliberate effort to maintain agriculture programs. Only the 'accelerated pace' of program development will be slowed down during the recession. Programs at the Department of Agriculture such as with the PYFA and is director of membership.

Glen Krall was named new president of the association. Krall and wife Linda are members of the Cedar Crest Chapter and manage a dairy farm in Lebanon County.

About 175 people attended the convention, which included a variety of educational workshops and offered tours to local attractions and ag-related sites.

The association adheres to the motto: "A young farmer is any farmer willing to learn."

agriculture research, animal health and indemnification, plum pox indemnification, All-American Dairy Show, Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Junior Dairy Show, 4-H, FFA, market promotion, hardwoods development, farm safety, and county fairs are all scheduled to be preserved at their historic levels," Hayes said in the statement.

Schweiker's budget message recommends increases for homeland security and education. It also includes tax cuts for the eighth consecutive year.

The Pennsylvania legislature will continue to work on the budget through June.

House Ag and Rural Affairs Committee member Edward Krebs (R-101) said the ag budget will probably see some shifting of funds within it prior to final approval this summer. However, because of the state's revenue shortage, the total allocation for agriculture is not likely to change.

"We're in a money drought," he said.

To balance this year's state budget, Schweiker has proposed drawing $550 million from the $1.2 billion budgetary reserve known as the Rainy Day Fund.

A press statement from the Pennsylvania State Grange noted that "the budget proposal seems to be a mixed bag for agriculture." The grassroots ag organization will be requesting funding increases for agricultural research and education.

"While we are disappointed that many agricultural programs will not enjoy increased funding, we are pleased that they are not being severely curtailed," said Brenda Stambaugh, the Grange's legislative director.

One area of interest to rural Pennsylvania is the expansion of the Rural Transportation Services pilot program for Pennsylvanians with disabilities. Currently a pilot program in eight counties, this program will be expanded if the additional $1.8 million proposed by Schweiker stays intact, Stambaugh noted.

The program allows rural Pennsylvanians with disabilities to be transported to various locations such as doctor's offices with older Pennsylvanians.

Keystone Pork Expo

pervising the youth contests.

Winners in the senior division of the speaking contest were Cathy Levan, Berks County 4-H, first place; and Kerry Geiling, Greenwood FFA, second place.

Four teams with four members each competed in the Pork Bowl. Winning first place was the team from Potter County 4-H; second place, Berks County 4-H; third, Adams County 4-H; and fourth, the Sugar Valley FFA cchapter from Clinton County.

After lunch, Harry Bachman presided at the "live" benefit auction for the legislation activity funding commonly called the Political Action Committee (PAC). Highlights of that sale was a quilt which sold for $600 and a painting (donated by Good's Livestock) which sold for $250. Kurt Good, Denver, was in charge of the auctions and commented that items in the silent auction also sold well.

A 9-year-old girl from Philadelphia stole the show with her speech on Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) Tuesday afternoon prior to Lou Moore's talk on "Ag Prospects for 2002."

Jenna Moser, a 4-H'er from Philadelphia, was so good that Linda Spahr, who was in charge of the Youth Speaking Contest, suggested to Ken Kephart that she repeat her presentation for the producers.

With the aid of a picture of a hog, "Squealer," Jenna dramatically described a dinner with a beautiful looking ham that had an unsightly abscess. She went on to explain how it was the producer's fault and showed the right place on the hogs for injections. Her squeals of dismay and other mannerisms resulted in loud applause from her audience.

Unlike other years when he was usually first on the agenda, Lou Moore's annual pork industry prognostications were scheduled last on the program. About 60 persons hung around for this popular Pork Expo attraction.

As usual, the affable economist began with his lists of positive and negative factors that are affecting the nation's economy. After his detailed talk interspersed with his usual good humor, Moore concluded that it will be a "fairly profitable year," he noted, for pork producers.

The positive factors in today's economy Moore discussed were (1) 11 interest rates cuts by Federal Reserve in past year; (2) consumer prices up 1.6 percent for the year, hardly any inflation; (3) lower oil prices; (4) Christmas season better than expected, good for few big retailers, namely Wal-Mart and Target; (5) war is going well; (6) stock market (before Enron); and (7) record car sales last year (0 percent interest a factor). Moore said he thinks the economy will grow this year, but it will not be a boom year — we will not see rapid growth.

On the negative side, Moore's considerations included (1) a recession (two consecutive quarters in which economy does not grow); (2) industrial production down for 13 months, plants not operating at capacity; (3) consumer confidence in the economy, but reportedly improved last week; (4) U.S. dollar at 16-year high (we can't sell to other countries); (5) unemployment at 5.8 percent; (6) federal treasury surplus gone; and (7) anthrax and other jitters.

Moore talked at length about several factors concerning the agricultural economy. First on this list was excess production, especially grain. That's good news for livestock producers, he noted, but not the growers.

He pointed out that we have had nine years in a row of high production per-acre yields on a national level. There were pockets of drought where yields were not good, but overall production was high.

Pennsylvania continues to be a corn deficit state, Moore said. In 1999, 92 million bushels of corn, or 115,000 truck loads, of corn came into the state to supply the needs of livestock producers.

Moore said that last year, soybean production increased while corn declined. He attributed that to the government price support program being more favorable for soybeans.

There was a slow reaction in the agriculture economy to the events on September 11, Moore said. It affected the livestock and meat sectors in that demand from hotels, restaurants, and airlines declined and subsequently, the prices received by livestock producers declined.

The ag economy also was affected by the sluggish export trade, Moore said. The high value of the dollar prices our products out of the market, and we have more money with which to buy imported goods. Our export trade though was helped some, he noted, by the food safety concerns in Europe with Foot and Mouth and "mad cow" diseases in livestock. Pork exports fared better than beef, which was affected by the discovery of BSE in Japan.

The 2002 Farm Bill is still languishing in Congress, specifically, the Senate. The House of Representatives sent its proposed bill to the Senate for consideration months ago.

Moore hit on the major issue affecting the livestock sector is the Senate's bill proposing that packers cannot own livestock for more than 14 days prior to slaughter. The PAC men are very busy in Washington lobbying pro and con for the Senate version.

The last, but certainly not the least, factor affecting the agricultural economy, Moore said, is the government price supports. In fact, he said that one-half of farm income in the year 2000 came from government payments, and last year, 40 percent came from the government.

Government price supports will continue, Moore emphasized. He said the actions of the conservation group that got hold of the government's records of payments to farmers and made them available on the Internet have not really had much effect thus far.

The furor in the media about the huge sums to the wealthy was short-lived and consumers did not keep it going. They have a good deal going with the government keeping their food costs quite a bit lower than those of other countries, where a larger percentage of income goes for food. Government price supports to agriculture there are even higher compared to the U.S.

What adjustments to the size of the payments and to whom that will be legislated in the new Farm Bill remains to be seen.

Pertaining to the pork industry, Moore said the "little guys" will still be dropping out. He projected a chart onto the screen which aptly showed what has happened in the swine sector.

From 1979 when there were 700,000 hog farms, the line went down to 83,000 in 2000. Moore said that 56.7 percent of those farms account for only 1 percent of the hog and pig inventory. Nine percent of the operations (with over 2,000 head) account for 75 percent.

While the U.S. total number of hogs and pigs on December 1, 2001, was reported down 1 percent from the previous year, Pennsylvania's total was reported 3 percent higher, while the number of hog operations was down 3 percent (100 less farms).

Moore said that Pennsylvania's swine numbers Dec. 1 were estimated at 1.03 million head on 2,900 hog farms. He noted that 1.2 percent, or 35 operations, have more than 5,000

FARM SHOW - - FARMERS' SURVEY

If you are a farmer, Lancaster Farming would like to hear your opinions about farm shows, and specifically, the 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show in the newly expanded Complex. This survey developed out of a conversation between the Farm Show Executive Director and the staff of Lancaster Farming. The information you provide will be kept strictly confidential and will be summarized and provided to the Farm Show Staff as they begin to develop plans for the 2003 Farm Show. As an incentive to participate, if you fill out and return the survey and we receive it by Tuesday, February 19th, we will randomly draw five names to receive a 1-year FREE subscription to Lancaster Farming.

Thanks so much for your time and help!

NASS
Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

2001 CROP SUMMARY
PUBLISHED JAN. 11

Coming off a nearly perfect growing season in 2000, it is not surprising that production of most field crops was less in 2001.

Pennsylvania grain corn yields were 98 bushels in 2001, 29 less than 2000. Total Pennsylvania production was 97.02 million bushels, 29 percent below 2000. Nationally, 2001 had the fourth largest crop on record with 9.51 billion bushels, 4 percent below 2000.

Even though Pennsylvania silage corn yield averaged 16 tons (1 ton below 2000), total production was slightly above 2000, with 7.84 million tons because of 7 percent more harvested acreage. Nationally, the crop was up less than 1 percent.

Pennsylvania dry alfalfa hay production was 17 percent below 2000 with an average of 2.5 tons per acre. Nationally, the crop was down less than 1 percent. Pennsylvania Alfalfa haylage and greenchop production was 20 percent less with 5.6 green tons per acre. There were 100,000 acres planted in 2001 for production in 2002.

Pennsylvania dry other hay production was down 27 percent from 2000, averaging 1.8 ton yield. Nationally, the crop was down 5 percent.

The summary of all forage production (both dry and green) shows 4.82 million tons harvested on a dry equivalent basis, a 24 percent decline from 2000. Forage was harvested from 2 million acres, same as 2000, but yields in 2001 were 2.41 tons compared to 3.17 dry equivalent tons in 2000.

Pennsylvania oat production was 7.5 million bushels, 10 percent less than 2000. Average yield was 65 bushels in 2001 compared to 57 in 2000. Nationally, the crop was down 22 percent.

Pennsylvania wheat production was 8.32 million bushels, 19 percent below 2000. Yields averaged 52 bushels compared to 53 in 2000. In the fall of 2001, 170,000 acres were seeded compared to 200,000 the previous year. Nationally, the crop was down 13 percent.

Barley production was 4.2 million bushels, 21 percent less than 2000. Average yield was 70 bushels in 2001 compared to 71 in 2000. Nationally, the crop was down 22 percent.

Soybean production was 14.2 million bushels, 14 percent less than 2000. Average yield was 35 bushels in 2001 compared to 43 in 2000. Nationally, the crop was up 5 percent.

Pennsylvania fall potato production was 3.17 million CWT, 10 percent less than 2000. Average yield was 235 CWT in 2001 compared to 270 in 2000. Acreage harvested in 2001 was 13,500 acres, up 4 percent from 2000. Nationally, the crop was down 13 percent for all potatoes.

Pennsylvania-type tobacco production was 4.12 million pounds, 18 percent less than 2000 because of reduced yields and 400 less acres harvested. 2,000 acres were harvested in 2001. Maryland-type tobacco production was 2.05 million pounds, 60 percent less than 2000 because of reduced yields and 1,600 less acres harvested. 1,100 acres were harvested in 2001. Nationally, the crop was down 5 percent for all tobacco.

2001 Hog Summary
Published Dec. 28

There were 1.06 million hogs in Pennsylvania on Dec. 1, 2001, 3 percent above a year ago. Market hogs were up 2 percent while the breeding herd was up 8 percent compared to the same time last year.

Nationally, there were 58.8 million hogs on hand December 1, 2001, 1 percent below a year ago. Both market hogs and the breeding herd were down 1 percent from the year before.

2001 Turkey Summary
Published Jan. 10

Pennsylvania raised 9.5 million turkeys in 2001, up 2 percent from 2000. Growers are intending to raise the same number of birds in 2002.

Nationally, there were 272 million turkeys raised in 2001, up 1 percent from 2000. Growers intend to raise about 1 percent more birds in 2002.

Custom Rates

We publish an annual report with average rates paid to custom machinery service providers. To see the 2001 report, see www.nass.usda.gov/pa/ and click on "Publications."

About 800 Pennsylvania farmers have received the 2002 survey asking about rates paid for custom work. Phone calls may be made to nonrespondents in mid-February.

This annual study is done at the request of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Surrounding states are considering a similar study in the future.

Economic Study Under Way

Farm families face much different economic challenges than urban and suburban families. Consumer price statistics that show the financial status of nonrural households just do not tell the true story of rural farm families.

In order to tell the real financial story of farmers and their families, we are beginning the annual study that measures the economic status of growers in Pennsylvania and across the nation. This is a chance to "let your voice be heard" on issues that concern the financial situation unique to agriculture.

The project is called the Agricultural Resource Management Study. About 325 Pennsylvania growers are being asked for their help along with 14,000 others nationwide.

About half of the Pennsylvania farmers selected for the study are corn growers. They will be asked about costs of production and financial stress caused by current corn prices.

Trained interviewers from your area will be contacting a preselected sample of farmers to ask for your help. If you are called, I hope that you can make an appointment for their visit at a time convenient for you.

Information from this study generate many different economic reports used by farm organizations, agribusinesses, lenders, legislators, and others to develop agricultural policies using information that reflects the real economic situation of farm farmers and farm families. These reports are important as Congress finalizes the next Farm Bill. If you receive government payments, these reports help to determine the funding of disaster and direct payment programs.

For previous reports and other summarized data, go to www.ers.usda.gov and search for "agricultural resource management study."

Where's Milk From? Legislation Wants To Find Out

ALBANY, N.Y. — A bill sponsored by Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson) that would allow all of New York's consumers to be able to easily find out if the milk they are purchasing was processed or packaged in New York has passed the Assembly.

"This is simple common sense," Magee said. "The passage of this bill guarantees that consumers across this state will be able to determine if the milk they are buying for their families was processed here in New York."

The bill specifically amends Agriculture and Markets Law to require the clear placement of the city, village, or hamlet and zip code of where the milk was processed or packaged to be placed on the package of all in-state milk.

"I have heard a resounding message from farmers and consumers, alike, that we must be diligent in marketing our locally grown, locally known agricultural products," Magee said. "Part of marketing New York State's bounty of farm products is making sure that those purchasing them can clearly identify that they are from New York."

Among his other goals this session, Magee is pushing an agriculture agenda that provides a whole package of services for farmers, food processors, agrimarketing associations, and consumers. This includes the creation of the AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program which would allow the comptroller to invest the assets of the public retirement system in farms and agribusinesses, the creation of the state's first AgriDevelopment Zones; a new focus on agricultural education in schools that would entice young people to enter farming as a career, as well as other initiatives that seek to better market "locally grown, locally known" New York agricultural products.

The bill is sponsored in the Senate by Sen. John R. Kuhl (R-Bath).

Update On Pa. BQA Program

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

Middletown (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) program continues to be under development, according to Paul Slayton, executive director of BQA and the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) and Bill McCoy, consultant to the program. Former BQA director Wendall Landis is also a consultant-contractor for the program.

One new aspect of the program will be a new logo. This consumer driven label will hopefully build consumer awareness as it goes to retail and foodservice packages and "anything that needs to convey what BQA is about," said Slayton.

On Feb. 15 Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, and Maryland beef industry representatives conducted a summit meeting in Morgantown, W.Va.

The goal of the meeting was "to see if there are areas between programs that are compatible and to dovetail their programs with ours if possible," said McCoy.

"The biggest thing happening is implementing a validation component to the certification program," said Slayton. "It is a verification that every cattle producer is in compliance, doing what has been agreed to within the program.

The first year participating in the validation aspect of the program will be voluntary. However by the time producers who are currently certified need to be re-certified, validation will no longer be voluntary.

"We have found that Pennsylvania beef producers want strength in the program and for it to mean that everyone participating has fulfilled their promise to comply willingly," said Slayton.

In addition, program coordinators met with the Pennsylvania Auction Markets Association on Jan. 5 to give an update on the program. In addition they were able to solicit help to use the markets for the chute-side sessions and ask that the markets help build awareness as to what the BQA ear tags symbolize when they appear at the markets.

BQA coordinators also hope to build classroom training into the PA-BQA website so producers may use the web to take the first phase, considered the "clasroom phase" on the computer. "We hope to have that up by some time this summer," said Slayton.

In addition, 100 BQA billboards, four feet by eight feet in size, will be placed at strategic locations across the state.

Every county will receive one sign. The remainder will be distributed to feedstores and market areas to help familiarize producers and consumers alike about the BQA program.

The billboards features a steak cut out in the shape of Pennsylvania with the BQA logo on it.

BQA posters are in the process of being printed to be displayed in auction markets, veterinary clinics, vocational agriculture classrooms, and in locations where producers travel "to help build awareness and pride in the commitment to produce a safe, high-quality product for our customers, the American consumer," according to Slayton.

Program organizers are developing a Long Range Strategic Marketing Plan to provide direction and focus to the leadership for future years.

Seminar Presents Dairy Health, Economic, Competition Issues

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — More than 550 area producers attended a luncheon seminar recently at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center. The event included information from presenters about dairy cattle foot diseases, the economic outlook for the industry, and the competitive force of Brazil.

Ken Bailey, assistant professor of agriculture economics, Penn State, presented an outlook for milk prices for the coming year.

Class III milk prices continue to be volatile, simply because "this is the market we're in," he said, noting that the prices were not rising with inflation.

Bailey also addressed the mystery of retail pricing, which goes up and down, also, but has risen in small increments over time. The reason the retail price does not more closely reflect the price producers gain is because "Your market is different than the retail market," he said. "The retail market doesn't have to move with your price."

Pennsylvania is fourth in annual milk and ice cream production and sixth in cheese production, thanks to convenient markets and 10,000 farm families, in addition to a solid land base with good forage.

Because of the ready markets, Bailey stressed the importance of high milk yield per cow. "For each additional pound of milk a producer gets, profits will rise since fixed costs, such as equipment, will remain the same regardless of production."

Even though each year Pennsylvania produces more milk, the east coast has a dire need for milk. "Everyone else around us is producing less milk," he said.

Dairy farmers in the commonwealth should grow 2.5 percent to keep up with demand.

"I'm not saying everyone has to milk 1,000 cows," he said. "However you need to be getting as much milk out of those cows as you can."

Bailey predicts an overall drop of $1.50 in milk prices for 2002.

He has also researched the Daschle Compromise of the Farm Bill. It will extend the milk price support program throughout Dec. 2003, in addition to including the Northeast Dairy Market Loss Program for 12 Northeastern states.

Veterinarian Billy Smith, New Bolton Center, discussed infectious foot diseases of dairy cattle. "Cows spending time on hard surfaces covered with manure slurry is the number one reason for infectious food problems," he said.

Besides sanitary conditions, Smith emphasized the importance of regular foot trimming.

Three main problems on dairy farms are interdigital necrobacillosis, or "foot rot" or "fowl claw"; interdigital dermatitis, or "heel erosion" or "slurry heel"; and papillomatous digital dermatitis, or "strawberries" or "heel warts."

The first, foot rot, is caused by bacteria that produces toxins which can destroy tissue between a cow's foot.

The bacteria can shed from her foot and be picked up by other cows with abrasions on their feet.

When an animal suddenly goes lame, exhibits swelling on both sides of the claw, and foul discharge, they may have foot rot.

Treatment can be either local, with antiseptics or antibiotics, or an injected antibiotic.

Control includes footbaths and vaccines, besides helping cows avoid foot injuries.

Heel erosion, interdigital dermatitis, will be an "incidental finding," said Smith. "You won't see the animal lame but if you lift their foot you will see a superficial erosion of skin."

Treatment includes proper foot trimming and footbaths.

The papillomatous digital dermatitis, also caused by a bacteria, was first reported in 1974 in Italy.

The most common of infectious diseases, even though it is fairly new, causes severe lameness.

"Once you have it in your herd, you're pretty much not going to get rid of it," he said.

The disease begins as a tiny area between the heels of the claw, then begins to grow tiny hair-like projections from the area and cause swelling as it grows into a larger ulcerated area. Local antiseptic and antibiotics are the treatment.

Footbaths, used two to three times per week, said Smith, "are extremely important in controlling infectious foot diseases if managed properly."

Formalin, copper sulfate, and zinc sulfate are used in footbaths.

"Make sure you put footbaths where the animal has to walk through it," he said. "They are extremely smart in trying to avoid footbaths."

A pre-footbath is also important, especially for cows that have a lot of manure on their hooves. Soap and water not only provides a more effective application of the footbath ingredients, but also allows more cows to get the full benefit of the medicated footbath, since it is less of a "manure slurry" according to Smith.

Cows should have at least 30 minutes of time after the footbath to be free from manure slurry to most effectively help ward off infection.

Lou Moore, professor of ag economics, presented his forecast for 2002.

In the ag economy, farmers may increasingly rely on government aid. For example the food price index is down, which means that consumers are not paying costs of food in line with inflation.

Congress is wrestling with the 2002 Farm Bill, and "farmers will not be abandoned in the new Farm Bill," which will cost $177 billion over four years. Consumers, however, realize that to keep low grocery prices, farmers must receive aid, said Moore. Government payments made up about half of Pennsylvania's farm income last year.

"We're optimistic that the livestock business is going to fare fairly well this year," he said. Farm income went up a little last year, buoyed by higher beef and dairy prices.

Overall, he said. the grain and hog business should be about the same. The dairy business will take a hit, he said, "but had a really good year last year, so we're upbeat about the ag industry."

Taylor visited an American Mennonite community whose members purchased 45,000 acres of farmland at $4 an acre in the 1970s.

"There's been a tremendous growth opportunity for Brazil in the last 20-30 years," she said. Brazil's natural resources have been largely untapped.

The 222-million acre central part of Brazil's growth area is a savannah-like area with small shrubs and trees.

The country's year-round temperature is an average of 80 degrees with 50-80 inches of rain per year, allowing producers an extended growing season. The highly-acidic soil needs to be converted with lime or phosphorus.

Brazil has the largest number of beef cattle in the world and are the second-largest poultry exporter in the world.

"The good news is that the dairy and livestock producers have the most to gain when the world commodity prices are low," she said. However Brazil will be a growing force in competition in the future for grain farmers.

The country shatters several myths of agriculture.

The old adage, "they don't make farmland anymore" does not apply to Brazil, as "when prices rise, they will make farmland every time," she said, as producers clear additional land.

American producers, who may have considered themselves the lowest-cost producers in the world, may see a change as Brazil begins production.

"We cannot assume that we will continue to be the world's lowest-cost producer. We need to be aware of what's going on in the world," she said.

In fact, producers have begun to raise hogs and chickens in the tropics, once thought impossible.

"If we continue to chase livestock from our shores, Brazil is ready, willing, and able" to take that export opportunity, she said.

The U.S. was not looking at competitors, she said, forgetting that if prices get high, producers would get competition.

"We have fundamentally and forever changed soybean prices," she said.

The event was sponsored by the agriculture group of Fulton and Lebanon Valley Farmers Bank.

Sign-Up Begins For Farmers' Market Nutrition Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently announced that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is seeking interested farmers for the 2002 Farmers' Market Nutrition Program.

"Through this program, the Department of Agriculture is working to help Pennsylvania farmers who grow the finest produce and those on low budgets who need fresh fruits and vegetables," Hayes said.

The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program provides checks to eligible recipients to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables from approved growers at one of Pennsylvania's farmers' markets or roadside stands. The program begins June 1 and continues until Nov. 30.

Growers interested in participating in the 2002 program must own or lease farmland in Pennsylvania where they produce and sell more than $1,000 of agricultural products. More than 50 percent of the retail value of the produce sold under the program must be grown in Pennsylvania.

Growers that participated in the 2001 program will receive notices from the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Food Distribution.

Other farmers interested in participating in the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program may contact the Bureau of Food Distribution at (800) 468-2433 or (717) 787-2940.

The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program provides checks to eligible Women, Infants and Children (WIC) recipients to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables from 525 approved vendors in Pennsylvania. In 2001, about $2 million in state funds and $2.2 million in federal funds were available for the WIC program. WIC mothers and children ages 2 to 5 can receive $20 in vouchers.

A pilot Seniors Farmers' Market Nutrition Program was launched in 1998 for older Pennsylvanians in several areas of the state, where seniors received $20 in vouchers. More than 96,000 seniors redeemed $1.8 million in vouchers in 2001.

Outdoor Farm Market To Open

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — A producer-only outdoor farmers' market, with space for 10-12 growers/producers, will be opening in Palmyra late this spring.

Only growers/producers will be permitted to sell at this market. The market will be open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and run through the fall. This is a great chance for growers to sell directly to the public and for the public to buy high-quality, flavorful, nutritious food and food products.

The Lebanon County Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Lebanon Valley Food and Farming Association will present a program for growers from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Feb. 16 at the Lebanon County Agriculture Center. The program will review the experiences of other markets, describe the requirements for participating in the Palmyra market, and make application forms available to growers who want to be considered for this market opportunity. Growers/Producers interested in participating are urged to attend.

Market participation is open to growers throughout the region. There is no fee for the program. However, advanced registration is requested so that sufficient copies of the handout material can be provided.

For a program brochure or more information, call Ed Herrmann at (717) 270-4391.

Board Announces January Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for January Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $16.01 in the western areas of the commonwealth, and an average of $16.50 in the central and eastern areas.

Farmers whose milk production is pooled under a Federal Order will receive a market-wide blended price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

These prices include the over-order premium of $1.40 per one hundred pounds of milk and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk.

PENNSTATE
College of Agricultural Sciences

From the Department of Dairy and Animal Science

This regular column from Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science features the research findings, student opportunities, and reports on other important topics generated in the Department. The back issues of the column are archived on Lancaster Farming's Internet www.lancasterfarming.com home page. Look for them.

INTERNATIONALIZING ANIMAL SCIENCE STUDENTS

Lawrence D. Muller
And
Erskine H. Cash
Penn State

The College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State awarded the nation's first baccalaureate degree nearly 140 years ago, and is recognized worldwide as a premier institution for agricultural research, teaching, and extension programs.

The college has a long history of international work. Historically, much of this activity involved faculty and staff, and not undergraduate students.

Currently, less than two percent of the students in the College of Agricultural Sciences have international experience. Yet, more employers are looking for "global-ready" graduates.

We must prepare students and graduates to be players in the global marketplace. The College of Agricultural Sciences is making a strong commitment to enhance the international opportunities and experiences of Penn State students.

In 2000, the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges prepared a report entitled "Expanding the International Scope of Universities." Some key phrases from this document are:

- International education must be an integral part of our mission in agriculture
- Promote greater involvement of all students in international experiences
- Increase international activity of faculty and staff
- Globalization is not just a passing phenomenon

Dr. Graham Spanier, president of Penn State, stated recently, "the truth is that the idea of going global is no longer a novelty — it is an essential requirement in the survival of nearly all enterprises in the new millennium."

What is the Department of Dairy and Animal Science doing internationally with students in the animal sciences? Over the years, we have had a few students participate in study abroad programs or internships in Ireland, Russia, and Australia, but the number with an international experience is quite small. Examples of recent and current student experiences include:

- Jennifer Flinchbaugh of York, is spending a semester in Perth, Australia
- LeeAnn Tice of Lawrenceville, studied in Russia during her second semester
- Carly Crawford of Whitefield, N.H. studied at the University of Bath in England
- Michael Simmons of Parksburg, completed a semester in Kenya with the Center for Field Studies.

One of the first international experiences by a large number of students was the Penn State Dairy Science Club's trip in March of 2000 to Ireland and Northern Ireland. Forty-eight students and four faculty spent one week touring various agricultural and cultural sites. This was the first international experience for 43 of the 48 students. This trip provided students with a broader perspective of the global market place in the dairy industry and in different aspects of agriculture. The students also got a taste of Irish culture, saw fantastic scenery, and visited historic landmarks. The trip was a great learning experience and provided students with memories for years to come.

The Department of Dairy and Animal Science is committed to enhancing the international opportunities and experiences of students in the animal sciences. We are in the process of planning a 14-day study tour to western Europe in May. The purpose of this trip is to enhance the global awareness of our students and to broaden their knowledge of agriculture industries and the cultures in the Netherlands, Belgium, and France.

The study tour will focus on animal agriculture and agribusiness. Students will visit various universities and research stations to broaden their knowledge of educational programs and cutting-edge research. Visits are being scheduled to animal production units including dairy, beef, swine, poultry, and horse farms. In addition to agriculture, visits will be scheduled to museums and historical sites in order to gain an appreciation of the cultures and history of these three countries.

Enhancing the international experiences to prepare global-ready graduates requires extra resources. The College of Agricultural Sciences and the Department of Dairy and Animal Science are committed to mobilizing their resources and obtaining additional resources to provide a richer educational experience for our students.

Dairy Seminar Focuses On Improving Profitability

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Achieving a higher profit per cow was the focus of a recent seminar sponsored by Monsanto Dairy Business and conducted by Technical Services Specialist Mark Armfelt, DVM.

"The focus of today's talk is how do you get more milk out of each cow so at the end of the month you've got the bills paid and you've got some money left," said Armfelt. "The basis of all of this is what I call marginal milk, or extra milk. It's the value of getting five more pounds out of every cow on the dairy, and that's huge."

Keeping the cows comfortable by improving the cow's bed is an improvement which could translate to a two to 10-pound increase in milk. The stalls need to be the correct size and they need adequate cushion. Keeping the stalls clean will also reduce potential for environmental mastitis.

Improving feed bunk management can add up to seven to eight pounds of milk per cow per day. Adequate space per cow must be allowed at the bunks and farmers should feed for refusal. "Pay attention to how much feed is left and the appearance of that feed," he said.

Another study shows that lactating cows exposed to 16 to 18 hours of continuous light per day, followed by six to eight hours of continuous darkness, produce a biochemical response that increases production, sometimes by as much as four to six pounds per cow per day.

Three-times-per-day milking is also a tool that can be used to increase production by six to eight pounds per cow per day. Farmers should consider labor availability, the length of time the cows are standing away from feed in the holding pen, and the increased machine usage before making this transition.

Water availability and water quality are key issues on any farm. Producers should look at the number of waterers, the rate of flow, and how clean they are. Paying closer attention to water can earn producers an average increase of one pound of milk per cow per day, according to Armfelt.

Resource allocation is another area that was highlighted. By focusing on areas of the dairy in which you excel, you could increase milk per cow per day by about two pounds. By keeping books in an enterprise system, you can actually see what it costs you to raise heifers, or make corn silage or to complete other tasks.

Records analysis is another important issue. Farmers must use records to evaluate performance and identify potential areas of farm improvement. "As an example," said Armfelt, "you can increase production per cow per day by improving reproduction."

Examining the feed ration is also a potential source of increased production. Armfelt noted that there is often a big difference between the ration that the nutritionist puts on paper and the actual amount that the cows eat.

Capital expenditures should also be closely examined. Two rules were noted as Armfelt warned producers to evaluate each purchase before it is made. "Rule number one," he said, "is make more milk. Rule number two is reduce expenses as long as it doesn't break rule number one."

The final idea that Dr. Armfelt highlighted is the use of synthetic bovine somatotropin in the herd. Studies show that this tool provides an increase of eight to 12 pounds of milk per cow per day.

Armfelt agrees that each of these suggestions might cost a little to implement, but will add to the profitability of the farm in the long run. "By covering 10 things," he said, "I just hope to make you aware of opportunities you may have on your farm. You can go to your extension office, your nutritionist, or your veterinarian to work out the details of what you need to do to change things."

Lancaster Farming's quarterly exclusive booklet, Dairy Plus, begins its 2002 season with the Feb. 23 issue, devoted to manure management issues and techniques.

Special features include managing odors, manure handling guides, and other issues important to the dairy producer. Also scheduled: cooperative news and an update on a calf cloning project, in addition to farm calendar and university columns.

Producers Win First National Ag Conservation Systems Award

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.— The Conservation Technology Information Center (CTIC) announces three winners for the first offering of the Core 4 Conservation Awards.

These awards recognize producers who implement a system of conservation practices that not only protects or improves natural resources but also enhances farm profitability. Winners will receive the awards Feb. 5 at the National Association of Conservation Districts Annual Meeting in Sparks, Nev.

Core 4 Conservation is a national agricultural conservation awareness campaign that promotes using a systems approach to addressing economic and environmental concerns in agriculture. This innovative approach to ag management results in better soil, cleaner water, greater profits and brighter future. CTIC coordinates the national campaign to increase adoption of Core 4 Conservation systems.

Ken Remington, dryland, no-till farmer of Central Washington County, Colo., won first place. Remington has developed a comprehensive system of conservation practices for his 1,000 acres.

He uses a three crop/four year rotation of wheat-corn-millet-fallow. Rotating crops, using no-till, and applying appropriate herbicides allow Remington to control weeds effectively. He completes the system by monitoring soil moisture storage and temperature and follows proper nutrient management. For more than 10 years, Mr. Remington advocates successful systems like his through his role with the Colorado Conservation Tillage Association.

The second place award is shared by two operations. Brothers Curt, Greg, and Dan Swartzmiller are recognized for their Diamond S Farms in Attica, Ohio. The Swartzmillers know that 20 years of no-till has helped increase water infiltration and reduce runoff on their family farm. Cover crops and crop rotation, which have increased organic matter by three percent, along with nutrient and pest management also are part of their winning system.

They apply their own herbicides on a timely basis and frequently apply lower than the label rate. Plus, the five miles of grassed waterways safely convey surface water. This time-efficient system is economical and designed to improve the soil resource and protect the watershed.

Mike and Richard Long of Berlin, N.D., also win second place. The Long brothers integrate a small grain and row crop farm with pasture, hayland and a beef feedlot with a containment system. The Longs produce all the feed needed to produce and market their beef cattle, which graze on 230 acres of pasture converted from cropland.

Cross fencing and intensive grazing management minimizes impacts to the soil and vegetation. The manure is used for nutrients on cropland, saving both time and money. With this system of conservation tillage, windbreaks, grassed waterways and better feed and nutrient management systems, the Longs protect their resources while increasing their profits.

Economist: Keep Internal Operations Adaptable To Ag's Changing Nature

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — What makes a successful farm executive?

To one leading extension economist, the ability to stay ahead of competition rests on the ability to make sure you "adapt faster than your competition" by ensuring changes to a farm enterprise are made internally to take advantage of changes in the outside world — before those outside changes happen.

According to Dr. Danny A. Klinefelter, professor and extension economist with Texas A&M University, making efficiency improvements internally — and communicating where the business is headed to all who work for it — could be the essential keys to success.

Klinefelter spoke Tuesday to about 50 producers, ag business managers, and ag lenders at the Leola Family Restaurant at the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's 9th annual Farm Business Management School.

On Tuesday, Part I of the school addressed agri-industry representatives. On Wednesday, Part II was presented to 64 FFA and 4-H students.

During Tuesday's session, Klinefelter pointed out that the best managers of agricultural enterprises look for ways to improve the efficiency of the business on a continuous basis, looking outside for assistance and recognizing business strengths and limitations. Also, following a prescribed multiyear business plan helps solidify the work in a competitive world.

He said, "the only truly sustainable competitive advantage is to learn and adapt faster than your competition."

Klinefelter noted that in the U.S., peer pressure makes taking new ideas and putting them into practice on farm businesses sometimes "unacceptable." But in countries such as Brazil, the economist said that "they'll steal any technology in the world" if it makes good business sense.

A good manager, no matter where he is, looks at a farm as a "biologically based manufacturing plant," knowing that "timing is the whole bit." The problem is, so many good managers know what directions are going, but the best know when.

Good managers are "calculated risk-takers," he said. "They make a lot of mistakes because they make more decisions than a typical manager. If something is not working, they fix it like that, not write it off down the line."

For those who are recalcitrant and prefer to wait, "if you jump on board when the market says 'profit here,' you're too late," he said. "You have to learn and adapt faster than the competition."

Great managers work harder at communicating. They keep "everybody in the organization aware of what's going on," said Klinefelter. After all, workers "have to have some clue about what's going on" on a "need-to-know basis," he said.

Unfortunately, that need-to-know basis takes on far smaller margins than it should in businesses that stay stuck in the mud.

Klinefelter, who is director of The Executive Program for Agricultural Producers (TEPAP) and co-director of the Texas A&M Family and Owner-Managed Business Program and the Texas A&M-Texas Tech Agricultural Lending School, also owns a cash crop operation in Illinois.

Businesses need to correct their workings internally before finding strategies to deal with competition. He said that "more businesses have fallen apart over time because of pathologies within the family and relationships than within the business itself."

Many have learned to be successful by fixing those internal problems so they can respond to external change.

About 50,000 farms provide 60 percent of the total output of U.S. agriculture, noted Klinefelter. Many have off-farm income just to make it, and don't look beyond how to make the business grow.

But the best producers simply start with good recordkeeping and marketing plans with low-cost inputs. "That brings you to the table," he said. "It's not enough. To stay ahead, it takes more."

The best managers are true CEOs, and represent their ag enterprises as such. They see themselves as "sellers and buyers as customers," he said. Too many farmers think the other way around. "A typical farmer thinks of himself as a customer in all cases — whether it's buying from an elevator or buying chemicals," said Klinefelter.

Great executives "see themselves more as resource managers than producers."

Some less successful managers just don't see the big picture. Some producers can produce the best "buggy whips," he said, but if people aren't buying them, "it's not worth it. Doing a really good job with something the market is not rewarding you for is foolishness."

Great managers, like "A" students, "know what they don't know," but know how to hire correctly to achieve the answers. They have plans for all circumstances, including the "fire drills" and the four "D's" — death, divorce, disability, and departure (those who leave the company). Often, mediocre managers don't want to talk about those things. Yet the best managers/CEOs want to address them the best way possible.

Champion CEOs don't dwell on disaster, like so many "coffee-shop" people, Klinefelter said, "who sit around and feed on each others' misery." Instead, they pick up, learn from the experience, and move on.

But having that bridge of communication holds everything together. Keeping employees informed on all levels — allowing them to know where the business is headed, how it is planning to get there, what their roles in it are, and what's in it for them — are key.

"The American capitalist system works on one thing — greed," he said. Systems of bonuses and rewards make many businesses successful.

Klinefelter spoke about the importance of well-researched business plans and various financing and business structure strategies that have worked for many producers. He provided many examples.

Klinefelter also spoke about the many qualities of successful family businesses, which include shared vision, values, and goals, and a well-formulated strategic plan; in addition to family participation and guidelines for business continuity; participation by outside advisers, board members, and managers; open communication and methods for conflict resolution; and the ability of family members to spend time and have fun outside the business.

Importantly, Klinefelter noted, is to allow others, not related or competing with the farm business, to become involved. CEO/managers also have to "find an environment where people can give you a definite perspective," he said. "You can enrich yourself more by looking outside your area."

A PROACTIVE ENVIRONMENTAL APPROACH TO FARMING: PEACCE

Do you face any concerns from surrounding residential neighbors on your farm's environmental impact? Would you like to reduce your farm's risk of nuisance issues or litigation? Would you like to receive a confidential and free comprehensive farm environmental assessment?

Does a possible insurance benefit sound appealing? Would a statewide recognition of your farm's commitment to the environment be of interest?

If you answer yes to any of the above questions, the Pennsylvania Environmental Agricultural Conservation Certification of Excellence (PEACCE) is a program to pursue.

"The PEACCE program is good for the community because of the environmental practices it addresses along with demonstrating the farmer's commitment. It is also beneficial to the farmer because it can make their farm more profitable through implementing the program's recommendations," commented Luke Brubaker, Brubaker Farms in Mount Joy, who is completing the PEACCE program.

The Ombudsman program, in cooperation with PennAg Industries Association and the Pennsylvania State Association of Conservation Districts, along with America's Clean Water Foundation (ACWF), prompted the PEACCE program. The PEACCE program focuses on promoting environmentally safe agricultural practices, minimizing risks to the environment, thus reducing the farmer's personal liability. The program recognizes those producers who meet or exceed the standards as established by the PEACCE.

The PEACCE program involves four components. The first three are required for producer certification and the fourth component will provide a mechanism for continuing education and maintaining certification. The first part of the program is the Environmental Awareness Course. Penn State University provides this course with grant funding by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The course focuses on the producers' knowledge of environmental awareness, manure application, odor and emissions, and laws and regulations. Following the course, a passing score on the test is required to participate in the remaining components.

The second component is an On-Farm Assessment and Environmental Review, which is funded by ASWF and conducted by a national independent assessment company. This review provides the livestock producers a confidential, comprehensive, and objective assessment of overall site, building, manure, mortality, and nutrient management. The assessment is free and producer participation and farm-specific information is strictly confidential. Following the assessment, the producer will receive a written feedback report with a priority list of environmental recommendations, that he/she must submit to their county conservation district for the next step in the program.

The third component of the program involves your county conservation district and Penn State extension representatives completing an on-farm evaluation checklist. A comprehensive checklist will be utilized to verify the producer has met the PEACCE requirements. The district technician will prepare a report of his/her findings and recommendations to the oversight board of the PEACCE program, which will then approve or deny certification.

Upon certification, the farmer will receive the PEACCE farm sign and exposure in local news and in statewide publications. The farmer may also be recognized at other events conducted by the PEACCE sponsors. The last component of the program is maintaining certification. PEACCE farms must receive continuing education credits and a status review to ensure best management practices by their conservation district every three years in order to maintain certification.

PEACCE is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, Penn State University, Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, PennAg Industries Association, and the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. To sign up for the PEACCE program, contact your local conservation district. To register for the Environmental Awareness Course, contact Robb Meinen at Penn State University at (814) 865-2987 or rjm134@psu.edu.

Cooperative Director, Leadership Institute Feb. 12-14

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 18th Pennsylvania Cooperative Director and Leadership Institute will be here at the Nittany Lion Inn Feb. 12-14.

The Penn State Cooperative Business Education and Research Program (CBERP) organizes the institute with support from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Keystone Development Center, Cornell Cooperative Enterprise Program, and Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives.

Chicago-based McKinsey and Company will challenge participants to be better competitors by sharing results of research that show that cooperatives tend to underperform relative to investor firms. Concrete steps will be identified that co-ops can use to improve their operational performance.

Cooperation banquet speaker Cheryl Cook, executive director of the Keystone Development Center, will share an optimistic view of the role of cooperatives and cooperative methods in the 21st Century economy.

Chuck Cruickshank, procurement manager for Land O'Lakes Cooperative, will kick off the conference, asserting that "cooperatives can compete" by adopting appropriate strategies for a winning future.

Beyond director roles and responsibilities, the focus of this year's institute will be developing the plans and strategies that will assure successful accomplishment of organizational goals and mission. Key components of the 2002 program include roles and responsibilities of directors and member representatives, designing a sound business plan, identifying and utilizing new technologies in growing the business, and legal and financial workshops.

New this year will be concurrent sessions to better focus on large and small co-op and business issues. Donna Holmes, Penn State Small Business Development Center; Jim Beierlein, Penn State agribusiness professor; and Wayne Figurelle, Penntap, will lead breakout sessions on business startup issues, business planning, and growing with new technology. Duncan Hilchey and Brian Henehan, Cornell Cooperative Extension, will lead separate forums on small and large co-op issues.

The 2002 panel of industry experts will feature Dave Duncan, manager of Best Milk Cooperative; Sam Eckenrod, chair of REA Energy Co-op; Rene LaVoie, manager, Cumberland Valley Co-op; and Scott Owens, AgChoice Farm Credit ACA. The panel will share successful strategies that have been used to improve their cooperatives.

Other topics and speakers include "Northeast Industry Update and Outlook" by Dr. Jim Dunn, Penn State; "Cooperative Finance — How It Works and Performance Indicators," by Ralph Lawrence, CoBank; "Roles and Responsibilities of Directors," including new governance models and revisiting traditional principles, by Bruce Anderson, Cornell Cooperatives Extension; and "Legal Issues of Directors and Boards" and "Implications of Changing Structure and Governance for Boards and Delegate Bodies" by Chris Fox, Agway. Jerry Ely, USDA Rural Business Services, will lead a special session for new directors.

Samuel E. Hayes Jr., Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, will address the graduation luncheon, supporting the assertion "Now More Than Ever: Agriculture and Cooperatives." He will be joined by Dr. David Blandford, professor and head, Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, to award graduation certificates.

For a copy of the program, more information, or to register, contact Patti Burns at the Cooperative Business Education Program at Penn State, (814) 863-0644, or plb8@psu.edu.

Lancaster Farming Announces Winners Of Drawing

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Following are the winners of a special one-year subscription from a contest drawing conducted at the recent Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention in Hershey.

Winners are Ben F. Stoltzfus, Watsontown; Shannon Brown, Manheim; Carl B. Gould II, Gilbert; Sharon Tracey, Cavetown, Md.; Cameron Garretson, Biglerville; Sam Weyant, Claysburg; Ron Borman, Lorain, Ohio; Carl B. Kauffman, Bird In Hand; Jim Yatsonsky, Honesdale; and Barb Rose, Carlisle.

Congratulations to all!

MANAGING PHOSPHORUS ON PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY FARMS

Gerald Martin
Extension Agent — Nutrient Management

In the previous article, "Dairy Farms May Be Impacted By Nutrient Management Changes," I discussed the implications of upcoming regulatory changes that will, to some extent, require phosphorus-based nutrient management planning on Pennsylvania dairy farms. It was emphasized that, compared to nitrogen-based planning, phosphorus-based planning has two significant impacts:

- More land is required for manure application
- Crop nitrogen needs will not be met with manure applications, requiring the purchase of commercial fertilizer.

The exact amount of land required for manure application will vary from farm to farm, but is determined by the amount of phosphorus in the manure produced on that operation. Several factors cause this variation in manure. However, the bottom line is quite simple — the more excreted, the more acres required to apply the manure. Therefore, whatever dairy producers can do to reduce the amount of manure phosphorus produced, the more flexibility they will have in allocating manure to crop fields under nutrient management plan requirements.

Without question, the easiest way to do this is to make adjustments in the amount of phosphorus fed to dairy animals. And on most dairy operations this is a very viable option.

Most imported phosphorus on Pennsylvania dairy operations is in the feed. The feed phosphorus is included in supplements and in imported feed crops such as corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. Very few dairy operations import fertilizer phosphorus because of sufficient soil phosphorus levels.

The key point is that most dairy rations overfeed phosphorus. The 2001 National Research Council (NRC) phosphorus requirement for cows producing 55-110 pounds of milk per day is .31-.38 percent of the diet. Recent national surveys found that dietary phosphorus levels ranged from .48-.54 percent. A 2001 Pennsylvania survey found that while some producers have reduced dietary phosphorus levels, most are still feeding above 2001 NRC levels.

The survey of 77 dairy nutritionists and producers revealed the following dietary phosphorus levels:

- High-producing cows averaged .44 percent (.39-.50 percent range).
- Medium-producing cows averaged .41 percent (.37-.48 percent range).
- Low-producing cows averaged .39 percent (.35-.39 percent range).

Many producers surveyed indicated that they are very reluctant to lower dietary phosphorus levels. Their main concerns were reproductive issues and safety margins. Are these concerns valid?

A research study investigating the safety margin concern compared two groups of cows fed dietary P levels of .38 percent and .48 percent over two lactations. The study found no difference in milk production between the two levels of dietary P. Another study fed dietary levels of .31, .39, and .47 percent to different groups of cows over 2-3 years. Milk production between the .39 percent and .47 percent groups had no significant difference. The .31 percent groups showed a decrease in milk production in the latter part of lactation. Analysis of bone strength and P mineral content found no difference between the .39 percent and .47 percent groups, but found some signs of reduced bone strength and P content in the .31 percent groups.

The link between phosphorus and reproduction was made during the 1920s-1950s in South Africa and Scotland with dairy animals fed on extremely poor pasture diets. The phosphorus requirements for reproduction are approximately .25 percent. Most dairy rations in Pennsylvania, even without phosphorus supplementation, are above .35 percent phosphorus content. Therefore, it is almost impossible to get below the reproductive requirements for phosphorus. In addition, there is no research evidence that feeding above NRC levels improves reproductive performance.

By reducing feed levels of phosphorus, manure P levels are correspondingly reduced. There is a direct relationship between the amount of feed P and manure P. Reducing dietary P levels from .48 percent to .38 percent can reduce manure phosphorus excretion by 30 percent. This significantly reduces the amount acres required for manure application for a phosphorus-based nutrient management plan.

Also, reducing or eliminating phosphorus feed supplementation is a financial savings. It has been determined that reducing dietary P levels from .48 percent to .38 percent can save approximately $15 per cow per year or about $1,500 annually for a 100-cow herd.

In summary, feeding at the recommended NRC dietary P levels of .35 to .38 percent has no effect on milk production levels, no negative effect on reproductive performance, can reduce the cost of phosphorus supplementation, and will reduce the amount of manure phosphorus, making it easier to safely land-apply the manure produced.

Again, the most significant thing dairy producers can do to respond to current and future nutrient management challenges related to phosphorus is to adjust dietary phosphorus levels.

Food And Dairy Conference Feb. 20-21

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The events of Sept. 11, 2001, are affecting the food and dairy industry's security procedures, said Valente Alvarez, associate professor of food science and technology.

That's why food safety and food security will be a strong theme at this year's Food and Dairy Industries Conference, Feb. 20-21, at the Wyndham Dublin Hotel in Dublin, Ohio.

"Just a year ago, interest in food safety revolved around bacteria and safe processing techniques," said Alvarez, who is planning the conference. "That's still important, but today, we're facing new issues — bioterrorism, anthrax. We're devoting an afternoon to address these issues and give members of the food and dairy industry the information they need to respond to them."

This year's conference theme is "A View of the New Landscape of the Food and Dairy Industry," and food security is just a part of the backdrop affecting food and dairy companies, Alvarez said. Other aspects involve the broad trend of mergers and consolidations appearing throughout the food and dairy industry.

"That has an influence on the way companies operate," Alvarez said. "Companies must adjust distribution and sales, and develop new mechanisms for doing business."

In particular, dairy production and distribution is undergoing change in Ohio, he said, and much of a morning session on dairy will cover that transformation.

Other sessions will focus on consumer interest in "foods of the future," Alvarez said. Interest is increasing in functional foods — those that help prevent disease or offer other specific health benefits. In this session, attendees will learn about the mechanisms and opportunities that companies have to promote commercialization of functional foods in the state of Ohio. "Companies often have to find out about and adopt new technologies to put new foods on the market to fill these niches," Alvarez said. "They can learn about them at this conference."

Alvarez said the program is geared to middle- and upper-management personnel of food companies around the state, but anyone interested is welcome to attend. The registration fee for the two-day event is $140, which includes a Wednesday evening banquet. For more information or to register, contact Julie Townsend at (614) 292-8897 or townsend.57@osu.edu. Program and registration information is also on-line at http://www-fst.ag.ohio-state.edu/conference.htm.

Milking Management Training Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Managing a milking center is a complex job, regardless of the size of the dairy or the design of the facilities. It involves combining cows, equipment systems, and people in the best possible way with the goal of producing large amounts of high quality milk.

Penn State Faculty, Dairy Alliance, and cooperative extension cooperated to develop an intensive, two-day short course for milking center managers. The course, entitled "Milking Center Management" focuses on practical training in the three critical areas mentioned above.

Milking Center Management will be offered in two locations from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day:

- Tuesday, April 9 and Wednesday, April 10 — Atherton Hotel, Atherton Street, State College.
- Thursday, April 18 and Friday, April 19 — Holiday Inn Harrisburg/Hershey, Grantville.

All instruction is designed to meet the needs of active milking center managers through a combination of presentation and hands-on, interactive workshops. Skills that can be immediately applied to improve a dairy's productivity and profitability are emphasized.

Others that would benefit from the course include employees who aspire to management positions and consultants who work directly with farms to improve milking center performance. All course participants will receive a binder of materials that can be used for troubleshooting and training purposes in the home dairy operation.

Because this is an interactive short course, registration will be limited to the first 60 people at each site. The registration fee is $220 per person, which includes cost of instruction, program materials, lunches and beverage service. The second person accompanying a paid registrant from the same company will receive a $45 discount. Late registration fee is $250 for registrations received after Tuesday, March 26. Written cancellations received less than one week prior to the start of the workshop will not receive full refunds.

For more information about the short course, contact Richard Stup at (814) 652-6430 or RichStup@psu.edu. To register for the course, contact the Conference and Short Course office, call (814) 865-8301, or visit the Website at http://conferences.cas.psu.edu.

Addison Milk Cooperative Meets

ADDISON, N.Y. — Addison Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc. recently conducted their annual meeting.

Hubert Dininny, treasurer, reported that the cooperative was able to pay a patronage dividend based on the past year's production. Addison has consistently been able to pay a dividend each year to their members.

In his president's report, Nichols reported growth in membership in the cooperative and the addition of organic milk producers.

James Patsos of United Ag Services presented outstanding quality awards to the top quality producers in the cooperative for the year 2001. First place went to Gregg Walker, Walk-Moor Farm, Cohocton, followed by James and Patricia Welch of Troupsburg; Kim Shaklee and Janice Brown of Canaseraga; John and Elizabeth Forenz of Jasper; and James and Valerie Kent of Jasper.

Directors elected during the business meeting were Harold Knowles Jr., Kim Shaklee, James Kent, and Robert Peoples. Robert Nichols was re-elected president, Harold Knowles Jr., vice president, Robert Button, treasurer, and Philip Marsh, secretary.

Nichols made a presentation to Hubert (Zeke) Dininny, retiring director and treasurer for his many years of devoted work for the cooperative. Zeke is the oldest member of the cooperative.

Addison Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc. is a member of United Ag Services. United Ag Services is a federation of cooperatives providing marketing, accounting, employee and producer payroll, and quality control services to the member cooperatives and other agricultural related businesses. United Ag Services is located in Seneca Fall, N.Y.

Poultry, Hog Industries Focus Of Seminar

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — Poultry and hog industries were topics of discussion at a seminar at the Blue Ball Fire Company Wednesday.

Approximately 150 producers gathered for the seminar, which included topics such as investing, biosecurity, and 2002's agricultural outlook.

Larry Shirk, sales and marketing manager for Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc., described the scope of the business, which provides feed manufacturing and delivery of bulk, mash, and pelleted feed. They also feature custom feed formulation and a flock production record system.

Customers include producers of hens, pullets, turkeys, broilers, ducks, sows, and finishing hogs. The mill focuses on vertical coordination rather than vertical integration, because "that is key in the way central Pennsylvania works," he said. "In this area, we seem to be able to leave what people do the best to those people — each person in the chain does that they do best."

Each year Lancaster County produces eggs for 11.2 million people, milk for 10.8 million, and chicken for 4.3 million.

Almost 20 percent of Lancaster's population is agriculture or ag-related employment, said Shirk. These people are meeting challenges such as increased environmental requirements, and industry consolidation, which enables retailers to make stronger demands, he said.

For example, Shirk said that retailers such as McDonalds are changing the standards of cage density, which will give birds more square inches of housing.

In the broiler sector, "2001 was, all in all, a good year for broiler growers," he said. Leg quarter values have risen 36 percent from 1999 and much of 2001 showed an 11 percent increase in exports over the previous year.

For 2002, Shirk noted that there were three percent more eggs put in incubators in December, so three percent more chickens will be on the market.

Chuck Few, financial services division of Blue Ball National Bank, discussed investing and estate and gift laws. For 2002, Americans can give away $11,000 and not report it, he said. The lifetime gift tax exemption amount is $1 million.

If someone would decide to pass assets to their grandchildren, they are allowed to give $1,060,000 without reporting it.

Few emphasized the importance of having a will and an estate plan.

"Eighty percent of all family businesses, including farms, don't get to the next generation," he said. "Not because of taxes, but lack of planning."

In this tough market for investing, diversification is key, according to Few. "There are all kinds of investments — they're specialized," he said. "Don't buy one kind expecting it to do everything."

As a rule of thumb, the maximum percentage of portfolio in any one stock or bond should be five percent. Additionally, the maximum percentage of portfolio in any one industry should be 20 percent.

Duff George, manager of livestock procurement for Hatfield Quality Meats, discussed not only the history but also today's operations of the business, which is based in Hatfield.

The packing plant, a family enterprise, has 1,600 employees and processes 7,200 each day, or 1.8 million hogs annually. This represents two percent of the total slaughter nationwide.

The packer purchases 36,000 hogs per week, primarily within a 500-mile radius of the plant. George estimates that Hatfield works with approximately 200 producers.

Workers use an Autofom system for carcass grading. Using ultrasound technology, the non-invasive machine calculates more than 3,200 measurements to grade the carcasses.

The business is the third largest packing plant on the East Coast and has 1,200 products. They also may produce 90,000 pounds of hot dogs per day.

Since July 1999, all of the producers sending hogs to the plant must be Pork Quality Assurance Level Three. This certification program will soon be joined by a certification program for haulers, according to George.

Robert Munson, New Bolton Center, spoke about biosecurity and infectious diseases.

"Biosecurity is really risk reduction," said Munson. "It's a series of marketing strategies... designed to prevent or minimize diseases or their reoccurrence.

"Some people will live with a certain level of risk, and some are not willing to," he said.

Munson recommended using modified live vaccine on young stock, even up until breeding, "to raise immunity before they begin breeding," he said. Modified live vaccine is not, however, recommended for pregnant animals, but a post-partum vaccination should be given at least two weeks after calving and four to five weeks prior to breeding.

All animals over six months old should be vaccinated, and a modified live vaccine is cost effective, said Munson. He reminded producers that the initial shot must be followed a month later with a second shot, which actually provides the immunization.

Munson also spoke about Salmonella. "If you have Salmonella on your farm, go back to the basics," he said. "Don't rely on antibiotics because the animals will become resistant."

He also reminded producers not to drink raw milk if cows on the farm have the bacteria.

Foot and mouth disease (FMD) and bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) were also topics of discussion, as Munson shared information about the outbreak in Great Britain. "Early detection is imperative —you are the front line," he said.

England's outbreak apparently occurred from meat illegally imported into the country. The disease went undetected while there was widespread animal movement of infected animals, the reason for the severity of the outbreak. "In this particular outbreak, animal movement was the culprit," he said.

A packer saw the lesions on hogs that the worker did not recognize and "blew the whistle" on the disease, according to Munson.

"In seven months they disposed of six million animals," he said.

Lou Moore, Penn State ag economist, gave his agricultural forecast for 2002. "Basically we have too much product," he said. "This is particularly true in the grain sector.

"Nationally, we've had six consecutive years of good crops," he said.

Pennsylvania, with its strong livestock sector, not only produces but also buys 92 million bushels of corn per year.

For 2001 grain production, American farmers produced 9.55 billion bushels of corn and a record 2.9 billion bushels of soybeans.

In the hog sector, Iowa and North Carolina have 33 percent of the country's hogs, said Moore. Increasingly, fewer operators are producing more hogs. Only three percent of hog operations produce 47 percent of America's inventory.

On the state level, Pennsylvania's hog inventory was up three percent last year. Seventy percent of the commonwealth's operations have less than 99 head, said Moore.

Woodland Owner's Conference Planned

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — The Woodland Owner's Conference will be conducted on Sat., March 2 at Penn's Inn in the Bush Student Center on the campus of the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport from 9:25-3:30 p.m.

Topics include "The Big Bear Creek Restoration Project," "A Virtual Forest Tour," a panel discussion on different perspectives of timber harvesting, "Deer Management for the Woodland Owner," "Conserving the Forest," "Dealing With Invasive Plant Species," "Managing for Ruffed Grouse," "Designing and Building Woodland Trails," and "Hemlock Wooly Adelgid."

Pesticide update credits will be available in the "Dealing With Invasive Plant Species" and the "Hemlock Wooly Adelgid" presentations. The cost of this program is $25 per person. Two individuals from the same property can register for $40.

Registration includes lunch and breaks. Call for registration information at (570) 265-2896 or email Bob Hansen at rsh7@psu.edu. The deadline for registrations is February 25th.

Custom Cattle Feeding Workshops Upcoming

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Producers interested in learning about custom cattle feeding should attend a three-day workshop at Acorn Farms Conference Center, Mt. Joy.

The conference will be conducted Feb. 20 and 27 and March 6, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

On Feb. 20 Bill Baskin, Batavia, N.Y., will speak about what to look for when selecting a custom lot. Livestock extension agent Chet Hughes will present information about facility needs.

Feb. 27 will feature "Making the Transition to a Custom Cattle Feeder" by Gary Forrestal, Macedonia, Iowa. Dr. Dan Loy, Ames, Iowa, will teach about formulating rations for customer cattle. Penn State extension beef specialist John Comerford will lecture about what to charge customers, and Forrestal will inform attendees about marketing cattle for the customers.

On March 6 Scott Nordstrom, Intervet, Inc. representative, will speak about a health program for customers and their cattle. Sherry Bunting, editor of the Keystone Cattlemen, will present information about marketing the custom feedlot.

Nordstrom will also speak about handling health problems and John Howard, Penn Ag Law, Harrisburg, will present about liability issues for custom cattle feeders.

Producers will gather for a roundtable discussion at the end of each of the workshops.

The registration fee for each session includes lunch and a videotaped copy of the presentations.

The registration fees through Feb. 15 is $15 for the daily fee or $30 for all three workshops.

For more information contact John Comerford, (814) 863-3661 or e-mail jxc16@psu.edu or Chet Hughes, (717) 394-6851 or e-mail chughes@psu.edu.

National Western Hereford Sale Averages $9,285

DENVER, Colo. — The final event of the 2002 Hereford weekend at the 97th Annual National Western Stock Show, Denver, Colo., averaged $9,285 on 21.25 lots.

The nine and a quarter bull lots averaged $15,887.57 and seven female lots averaged $6,457.14. One flush sold for $3,100.

Numerous buyers and spectators lined the sale ring Jan. 20 and quality genetics were available from breeders from across the nation. Auctioneer Eddie Sims, Elgin, Okla., gathered the bids while the American Hereford Association managed the sale.

The top selling bull was C Qwest 1030, a Jan. 5, 2001 son of C S Pure Gold 98170 consigned by Colyer Herefords, Bruneau, Idaho. Leon Noack, Rockdale, Texas was the successful bidder with a total of $50,000 for three-quarters interest and full possession.

Colyer Herefords also had the second high selling bull. C Maximus 1190, a March 12, 2001 son of C S Pure Gold 98170 was purchased by King Herefords, Stanley, N.M., and Micheli Hereford Ranch, Ft. Bridger, Wyo. at $30,000 for half interest. This bull was also slapped National Champion Horned bull prior to the sale.

High selling female was the dam on the National Champion Polled Cow-Calf Pair, Saddle Vly Ladysport 120, a consignment of Ned, Jan and Bell Ward, Sheridan, Wyo. McMurray Herefords, Billings, Mont., and Wooden Shoe Farms, Blackfoot, Idaho purchased this Jan. 28, 1999 daughter of RU Duster for $16,500.

N.J. Announces Secretary Of Agriculture

TRENTON, N.J. — Secretary of Agriculture Charles M. Kuperus was recently sworn into office by Governor James E. McGreevey. The new agriculture secretary has a long history of leadership among both the agricultural community and in his home town.

Kuperus has served on the New Jersey Farm Bureau board of directors and served as vice president of the organization in addition to his membership in the American Farm Bureau Federation. He served as president and vice president of the Sussex County Board of Agriculture and as a member of its board of directors.

A strong advocate of planned growth, Kuperus was a member of the State Planning Commission. He chaired the Plan Development Committee, which interfaced with county and state representatives in planning initiatives and was responsible for updating the State Plan that was adopted in March 2001. He is the recipient of an award from the New Jersey Association of Planning Officials for individual achievement in planning.

Kuperus's community service includes two terms as a Sussex Borough councilman, including a term as council president. During these terms, he was instrumental in planning and implementing upgrades to tne potable water and wastewater systems. In addition, he served as a commissioner on the Sussex County Municipal Utilities Authority (SCMUA) and as chairman of the wastewater committee.

Immediately prior to his selection as secretary of agriculture, Kuperus served as director of the Sussex County Board of Freeholders to which he was elected in 2000.

A lifelong resident of Sussex, N.J., Kuperus and and his wife Marge live on the family farm with their four sons and two daughters.

Land O'Lakes To Consolidate Spreads Manufacturing

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes recently announced plans to consolidate its foodservice and retail spreads manufacturing at its Kent, Ohio, facility, a move which will result in the closing of its Faribault, Minn., spreads plant.

Land O'Lakes officials said the consolidation will take place in phases, and be completed by the end of summer.

Among the products produced at Faribault are margarine, spreads, flavored butter, spray-dried dairy products and malted milk products.

The decision to consolidate spreads manufacturing operations came after considerable study of market trends and plant capabilities, and the examination of a range of options from outsourcing to consolidation, said Land O'Lakes Dairy Foods Operations and Supply Chain Vice President Fernando Palacios.

"What we are seeing in spreads is a combination of a basically flat market and excess production capacity," Palacios said. "Given these market conditions, it is not feasible to competitively operate both the Kent and Faribault plants. A facility review indicated that the Kent plant was the appropriate choice for continued production, based on available space, production capacity, and manufacturing flexibility. Closing Faribault was a difficult decision, but a necessary one."

The production capacity of the Kent plant, constructed in 1982, is approximately three times that of the Faribault facility, which was built in 1948.

The Faribault facility closing will affect approximately 90 employees. Palacios said Land O'Lakes would work with employees through the phaseout, with a focus on providing meaningful severance and job placement assistance.

Company officials indicated the plant would be offered for sale.

head accounting for 21 percent of the state inventory. He added that 70 percent of the operations have less than 99 head and account for 3 percent of the inventory.

Moore sees more of the smaller operations going out of business and expansion continuing in others. While commenting on the state hog farmers, he said that Pennsylvania producers are doing a good job in their sow farrowings with an average of 8.80 pigs saved per litter compared to the 8.78 U.S. average.

All factors discussed — competitive meats, feed supplies and costs, Futures contract prices, consumer incomes, government price supports — Moore predicted 2002 will be a fairly profitable year for pork producers.

IT'S ABOUT TIME

To Frost Seed Alice White Clover

Alice is a medium-tall large leafed white clover developed for exceptional yields of palatable high quality forage. Alice clover has shown tremendous nitrogen fixing benefits for the grass (especially ryegrass) that grows with it. We've had many comments that the pastures with Alice stay green longer into the summer. Alice has greater stolen density than most ladino type clovers allowing for better persistence under grazing. Recent studies show an increased dry matter intake of 2 pounds per cow per day if clover is included in the pasture.

ORGANIC FARMERS!! BE SURE TO HAVE PLENTY OF ALICE IN YOUR PASTURES TO MAKE NITROGEN.

Create Your Own Treats That Say "I Love You"

What better way to make someone feel special this Valentine's Day than with a sweet treat made just for them? With a little inspiration from Duncan Hines,® you can create the perfect Valentine to show your family and friends that you care.

A slice of this rich Red Velvet Dream Torte can top off a romantic Valentine's Day dinner. Or, if you're looking for a fun dessert for the whole family, individually frosted Brownie Gems are the perfect size for little fingers to help decorate. Plus, they share a secret—each one comes with its own kiss! Chocolate lovers everywhere will relish every bite of Gourmet Fudge Truffle Brownies. And the homemade Chocolate Truffles are a decadent, simple-to-make gift no one can resist.

Red Velvet Dream Torte

- 1 package red velvet cake mix
- 1 package (6 oz.) milk chocolate chips, melted
- 1 (8-oz) container frozen nondairy whipped topping, thawed
- 1 can cream cheese frosting
- Chocolate shavings, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Prepare, bake and cool cake according to package directions for two 8-inch round baking pans.
2. For chocolate hearts garnish, pour melted chocolate chips into heart shaped molds or spread melted chocolate to 1/8-inch thickness on waxed paper-lined baking sheet. Cut shapes with heart cookie cutter when chocolate begins to set and lose its shine. Refrigerate until firm. Push heart shapes out of molds and refrigerate.
3. To assemble torte, split each layer in half. Place one split layer on serving plate. Spread one-third of whipped topping on one layer. Repeat with remaining layers, making sure to place bottoms of each layer together, leaving top of cake plain. Frost sides and top of cake with frosting. Garnish with chocolate hearts and shavings (see below) if desired. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Makes 12 servings

Red Velvet Dream Torte

How to make chocolate shavings:
Start with a large block or bar of good quality chocolate. (White and milk chocolate are softest and curl most easily.) Hold the chocolate with a paper towel and using a vegetable peeler shave the narrowest side of the block. The chocolate will curl best if the room or the bar is slightly warm. Keep refrigerated in a covered container until needed.

Brownie Gems

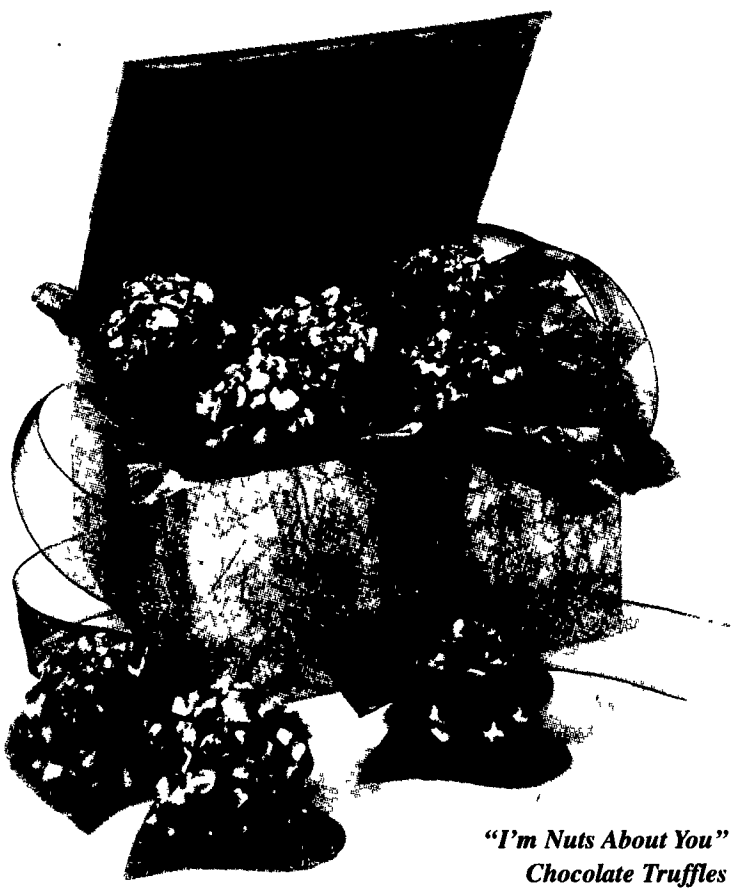
- 1 package double fudge brownie mix
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons water
- 28 chocolate Hershey's® Kisses,® unwrapped
- 1 container vanilla or milk chocolate frosting

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Spray (1 3/4-inch) mini-muffin pans with vegetable cooking spray.
2. Combine brownie mix, oil, eggs, water and fudge packet in large bowl, stir with spoon until well blended, about 50 strokes
3. Drop 1 heaping teaspoon of batter into each muffin cup; top with candy Cover candy with additional teaspoon of brownie batter
4. Bake 15–17 minutes or until set. Cool in pans 5 minutes. Carefully loosen brownie muffins from pan. Remove to cooling racks. Cool completely. Frost with Classic Vanilla or Milk Chocolate Frosting. Garnish as desired.

Makes about 28 Brownie Gems

More Gem center ideas:
Replace candy kisses with candy milk chocolate peanut butter cups, chocolate chips, peanut butter chips, dried cherries or candied cherries; proceed as above.

"I'm Nuts About You" Chocolate Truffles



"I'm Nuts About You" Chocolate Truffles

- 1 can milk chocolate frosting
- 2 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 1 cup pecan halves, divided usage
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
- 3 tablespoons shortening

1. Combine frosting and sugar in large mixing bowl. Stir until thoroughly blended.
2. Chop 1/3 cup pecans, set aside. Cover each remaining pecan with 1 tablespoon frosting mixture Roll into 1-inch balls, set aside.
3. Place chocolate chips and shortening into microwave-safe bowl. Microwave at medium (50% power) for 2 minutes; stir. Microwave additional 30-second intervals, if necessary; stir until smooth. Dip one candy ball into chocolate mixture until completely covered. Allowing excess chocolate to drip; remove with candy dipping fork or slotted spoon to waxed paper-lined baking sheet. Sprinkle top with chopped pecans. Repeat until all candy balls are covered. Refrigerate 5–10 minutes or allow to stand until chocolate mixture is set.

Makes 3 dozen truffles

More truffle ideas:
- Substitute for the pecan centers:
  Whole almonds or macadamia nuts One jar maraschino cherries, drained and patted dryFresh strawberries, washed, hulled and patted dry
- Sprinkle with powdered sugar or cocoa powder in place of chopped pecans

Gourmet Fudge Truffle Brownies

- 1 package walnut brownie mix
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2/3 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips, divided usage

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Prepare and bake brownies according to package directions. Allow to cool 30 minutes or refrigerate 15 minutes.
2. For Truffle layer: In a microwave-safe bowl combine milk, butter and 1/3 cup chocolate chips. Heat on high power for 20–30 seconds. Stir until chips are melted and mixture is smooth. Spread over top of cooled brownies.
3. For glaze: In separate microwave-safe bowl heat remaining chocolate chips on high power for 20–30 seconds Drizzle melted chocolate over top truffle layer. Chill before serving.

Makes 16 brownies

Over-the-top ideas:
Before chocolate glaze has set, top with almond slivers or toffee bits.

Readers Recommend These Sweets For Your Sweetheart

With the month of February comes a time to give special gifts to those we love.

Franklin County Dairy Princess Barbara Reichard believes edible treats should be made with real dairy products to ensure great taste. She sends in a recipe for a chocolate dessert and also a blueberry bar recipe in case your sweetheart isn't a chocoholic.

No doubt many other dairy princesses and alternates agree with Barbara. They also sent in several recipes using dairy ingredients.

Try these not only for Valentine's Day but throughout the year for great taste and enjoyment.

HO HO BARS

Prepare a chocolate cake mix of your choice according to the directions on the box for a jelly-roll pan.

Allow to cool completely and frost with the following:

¼ cup sugar
½ cup butter
⅓ cup Crisco
5-ounce can evaporated milk

Mix together ingredients, beat 10 minutes. Spread on top of cake. Take one plastic container of purchased chocolate frosting and microwave for 30 seconds on high. Spread over white topping.

Barbara Reichard
Franklin County Dairy Princess

BLUEBERRY BARS

1 cup butter, softened
1¼ cups sugar
4 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 can blueberry pie filling
1¼ cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon butter, melted
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time. Add vanilla and beat well. Combine flour, salt, and baking powder; add to creamed mixture. Mix until blended. Spread half of the batter into an ungreased jellyroll pan. Spread pie filling over batter. Drop remaining batter by teaspoons over pie filling; spread batter around a little. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes or until just browned. Combine confectioners' sugar, melted butter and lemon juice for frosting. Spread bars with frosting while bars are still warm.

Barbara Reichard

GOB FROSTING

Stir together in a small saucepan:

5 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Cook until thickened, cool. In a small mixing bowl mix together:

1 stick butter
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash salt

Mix well, then add the above mixture and beat until fluffy.

Top your sweetheart's cake with this delicious frosting.

Crystal Miles
Tioga County Dairy Maid

BRITTANY BUTTER COOKIES

6 egg yolks, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon milk
2¼ cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
1 cup butter (scant)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter a heavy baking sheet. Mix one tablespoon of the egg yolks with milk to make a glaze.

Sift the flour into a bowl. Add the egg yolks, sugar and butter, and work them together until creamy.

Gradually bring in a little flour at a time until it forms a slightly sticky dough.

Using floured hands, pat out the dough to about ¼ inch thick and cut out rounds using a 3-inch cutter. Transfer the rounds to the prepared baking sheet, brush each with a little egg glaze, then, using the back of a knife, score with lines to create a lattice pattern.

Bake for about 12-15 minutes, until golden. Cool on the baking sheet on a wire rack for 15 minutes, then carefully remove the biscuits and leave to cool completely on the rack.

PEAR BROWN BETTY

4 cups peeled, sliced pears (about 4-6 medium pears)
1 cup raisins
¼ cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 stick butter

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine pears, raisins, and juice in an 8-inch square baking pan.

Combine sugar, flour, cinnamon and nutmeg in a large bowl. Mix well.

Using a pastry blender or fork, cut butter until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle evenly over pear mixture.

Bake 45 minutes or until lightly browned.

Serve warm or at room temperature with ice cream or whipped cream.

Kimberly Baker
Tioga County Dairy Princess

CHEESE FUDGE

½ pound Velveeta cheese
2 sticks butter
2 pounds powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup cocoa or ⅔ cup peanut butter

Melt cheese and butter in microwave. Stir in other ingredients.

Smooth into a 9x13-inch pan. Chill. Cut into squares and enjoy.

PECAN TASSIES

Crust:
3 ounces cream cheese
½ cup butter
1 cup flour

Mix like pie dough. Divide into 24 balls. Press into mini muffin tins.

Filling:
1 beaten egg
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup chopped pecans

Mix the egg, brown sugar, vanilla, and melted butter, then add½ cup chopped pecans. Place a teaspoon filling into each muffin tin patty. Sprinkle top with additional pecans. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Makes two dozen cookies.

CHOCOLATE-CARAMEL FONDUE

3-ounces unsweetened chocolate, chopped
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
12¼-ounce jar caramel ice cream topping
Dippers:
fresh fruit cookies pound cake pieces
angel food cake pieces marshmallows
pretzels

In medium saucepan, melt chocolate with sweetened condensed milk and caramel topping.

RASPBERRY SWIRL CHEESECAKE

1½ cups fresh fruit or thawed, lightly-sweetened loose-pack frozen red raspberries
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk, divided
16 ounces cream cheese, softened
3 eggs
2 chocolate-flavored crumb pie crusts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In blender container, blend 1½ cups raspberries until smooth; press through sieve to remove seeds. Stir ⅓ cup of the sweetened condensed milk into sieved raspberries; set aside.

With mixer, beat cream cheese, eggs, and remaining sweetened condensed milk in large bowl. Spoon into crusts. Drizzle with raspberry mixture. With a table knife, gently swirl raspberry mixture through cream cheese mixture.

Bake 25 minutes or until center is nearly set when shaken. Cool. Cover; chill at least 4 hours. Garnish with chocolate leaves and/or raspberries if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

VALENTINE'S DAY DESSERT

18-ounce package refrigerated sugar cookie dough
8 ounces cream cheese
1 cup powdered sugar
16-ounce can cherry pie filling
8-ounce container frozen whipped topping, thawed

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Roll the cookie dough to ¼ inch thick and form it into a heart shape. Place the heart shape on a cookie sheet.

Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes, or until the cookie is lightly brown on the edges.

In a large mixing bowl, mix cream cheese with confectioner's sugar. Spread the mixture on cooled cookie dough. Cover with cherry pie filling and whipped cream.

"The Best Children's Books For Less!"

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Hearts and flowers.

Colorful bouquets, tied with shiny, trailing ribbon. Or a dozen long-stemmed roses. Soft, plushy, huggable teddy bears. Red and ruffly, heart-shaped boxes of chocolately-sweet treats.

Cards with cupids waiting eagerly to shoot off an arrow of affection into the heart of one's attentions, or wanna'be attentions. (Seems to me that aiming an arrow at someone would certainly get their attention, thought it might not generate the intended results).

Glittering gold and shimmery silver, in necklaces, or bracelets, or earrings. Maybe even a diamond winking when a velvety box is flipped open to reveal the treasure inside.

Symbols of love.

Or at least symbols of love from the Madison Avenue advertising point of view. These symbols are currently front and center in most every retailing site, as we are besieged to buy and demonstrate, by the depths of quality and quantity, our unlimited wealth of affection for those we love.

And to those we hope will love us in return.

While we rejoice in the hearts and hormones part of love, we can't help but ponder the bigger question: Will long-stemmed roses help you keep it together when the toilet stops up and backs water all over the floor just before you have important company coming?

Or, to be a little more farm specific, when the heifers get out and kick their heels through your beautifully-groomed flower beds two hours before the big family reunion you're hosting is scheduled to start?

Will mushy, frilly cards overcome the stresses generated when the kids all have the flu during a bleak, dreary February weekend when you planned a family outing and are instead stuck in the house with crabby youngsters? Can Valentine chocolate overcome the holiday-time friction sometimes generated when various families of in-laws all expect you to consider them the most important when you make plans to participate in their festivities?

Will a gold bracelet solidify your bonds with enough strength to withstand the overwhelming pressure generated by your teamwork efforts in trying to tow a stuck tractor from a sticky corner of the meadow? Or when you've accidentally gotten too close to a fence with a field disk and relocated 150-feet of it into a tangled mess behind the machinery?

True love goes way deeper than the initial sweaty-palmed, heart-fluttering, all-consuming, infatuation focus of the initial stages of attachment. True love is the glue that holds a relationship through the stresses and pressures of day-to-day, pay the bills, take out the trash, pick up the socks off the floor, sort of everyday togetherness.

Roses and diamonds are breath-taking, but can they adequately counter the day he comes querying about the status of the checkbook balance and you know your monthly cashflow has been restructured because some piece of equipment is already loaded on a truck somewhere?

True love is having him rescue you, cheerfully, promptly and uncomplaining when your car lets you sit at some destination an hour away. And he brings tools and extra oil along.

True love is as evident in a bouquet of lilacs or dandelions or field flowers as it is in a dozen long-stemmed red roses. True love is not having to spend every moment together, but allowing each other the freedom to enjoy individual interests and pursuits. True love is rallying to each other's side in moments of trial or crisis.

True love is supporting one another, through the bad, the great, the boring, the frustrating, the delightfully surprising, yesterday, today, tomorrow...everyday.

True love is harder to acquire than cupid cards, frilly boxes of chocolate, bouquets of roses. And infinitely harder to maintain.

Happy Valentine's week, to those who search, and to those blessed with already having found it.

Like me.

Grandma Reveals Way To Man's Heart

"For as long as I can remember my grandma has told me, 'Stephanie, the way to a man's heart is straight through his stomach.'"

Stephanie Biesinger writes, "My grandma is an excellent cook and she truly enjoys the art of cooking. She has been cooking for my grandfather for 40 years. I like to think she has passed on some of her skill as a cook and the love for cooking on to me."

As Armstrong County dairy princess, Stephanie said she has met people across the county in her 350 appearances.

"It is a privilege to promote the hard working dairy farmers and their nutritious product — milk.

"I have been to places where you do not expect to see a dairy princess," she said, of promoting dairy products at a car show, Habitat for Humanity's marathon. She also promoted milk at schools, stores, businesses, Brownie and Girl Scout troops, day care centers and met with elected officials Senator Don White, Representative Jeff Coleman, and Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes.

Stephanie had been named runner-up promoter for the month of September and promoter of the month for both October and December.

"It's an awesome opportunity to encourage children and adults to make healthy choices during each day to promote a healthy lifestyle that includes exercise and many nutritious dairy products," Stephanie said.

Sharing the following recipe with an elderly neighbor, a sick friend, or a family member, according to Stephanie, says a big "I love you."

PINEAPPLE RICE PUDDING

- 4 cups milk, divided
- 3 cups cooked long-grain rice
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3-ounce cream cheese, softened
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

PINEAPPLE SAUCE

- 20-ounce can pineapple chunks
- ¼ cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

In saucepan, combine 3½ cups milk, rice, sugar, and salt; bring to a boil over medium heat. Cook for 15 minutes or until thick and creamy, stirring occasionally. In a mixing bowl, beat the cream cheese. Beat in eggs and remaining milk. Stir into rice mixture. Cook and stir for 2 minutes over medium heat; stir in vanilla. Pour into individual serving dishes or into casserole bowl. Drain pineapple, reserving the juice; set pineapple aside. In a saucepan, combine brown sugar, cornstarch, butter, salt, and reserved pineapple juice. Bring to a boil. Cook and stir 2 minutes or until thickened. Stir in vanilla and pineapple. Spoon over pudding. Yields 6 servings.

Incorporate More Fish Into Diet

After working as a hospital dietitian for several years, I have done a lot of listening to what, and how much people eat. One item that the majority of people I have counseled do not eat is—fish. I've heard every excuse in the book as to why people don't eat fish: "It makes the house stink," "I don't know how to prepare it," or "My family doesn't like it."

Hopefully the following information will encourage you to eat more fish—and to help you to find solutions if you've ever made some of the excuses that I've heard.

Research indicates that people who eat fish regularly have lower rates of heart disease and strokes. A study published in The Journal of the American Medical Association (October 1995) indicates that one serving of fatty-fish per week can reduce the risk of cardiac arrest by 50 to 70 percent. Omega-3 fatty acids in fish make the blood less sticky, so it flows through the blood vessels more easily and is less likely to form clots. Omega 3's are found in such cold-water fish as herring, salmon, bluefin tuna, mackerel, swordfish, trout, and sardines.

Various studies have found that omega-3's play a role in reducing the risk of cardiac arrest, extending life expectancy, lowering blood pressure and cholesterol levels, lessening the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis, assisting in optimal eye and brain development in infants, and easing depression.

More ongoing research by Dr. Joel Kremer of the Albany Medical College in Albany, New York documents the ability of omega-3's to improve tender joints and reduce morning stiffness in rheumatoid arthritis. The bottom line of all this research and of the American Heart Association recommendation to eat two or more servings of fish a week, is that fish has been proven to provide protective health benefits to consumers.

The following are 10 Easy Ways to Enjoy More Fish and Shellfish, recommended by the National Fisheries Institute:

1. Make the switch to eating more seafood gradual, starting by substituting one fish or shellfish meal per week for a meat entree.

Work your way up to several seafood meals a week.

2.Win meat-lovers over to fish by serving them "meatier" types like swordfish, fresh tuna, halibut, and shark. (These types of fish are great marinated or with barbecue sauce, then grilled).

3. Substitute fish or shellfish for meat and poultry in your favorite casseroles, stir-fries, Mexican dishes, salads, soups, and pasta recipes.

4."Doctor" seafood up with lemon and lime juice, herbs (like dill and basil), onions and garlic, catsup, tarter sauce (made with nonfat mayonnaise), and low-fat sauces.

5.Buy a low-fat seafood cookbook and learn several easy fish or shellfish recipes that become part of your repertoire of family favorites. Or check out the National Fisheries Institute website for recipes at www.nfi.org

6.Cook it right: high temperature, short time, and watch it — so it's not overcooked. For example, when baking fish, do so in an oven preheated to 450 F, cooking for 10 minutes per inch of thickness or until the fish just starts to flake in the middle.

7.Save money by taking advantage of canned and frozen fish and shellfish, as well as seafood specials at the supermarket.

Less-familiar types of fish are often less expensive as well; ask for cooking ideas at the seafood counter.

8.Make lunch count by having fish or shellfish at least once or twice a week. Try tuna or salmon salad made with low-fat mayonnaise or a broiled fish sandwich.

9.Introduce your family to fish burgers or "fish loaf," made by using canned salmon, tuna, or mackerel in place of meat in your favorite meat loaf recipe. Bake in a loaf pan, or shape into burgers, then brown them in a non-stick skillet.

10.Be adventurous with seafood cooking methods. For instance, instead of traditional baking and broiling, try poaching in wine and herb-seasoned broth, grilling with barbecue sauce, and stir-frying or steaming with a potpourri of vegetables.

As far as decreasing fish odors while cooking-put a dash of vinegar in the poaching liquid, or add sesame oil before cooking. Rub hands with vinegar or salt after handling fish to remove odors.

It is important that pregnant women, and women of childbearing age who may become pregnant, are aware of a consumer advisory put out by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in March. Some fish contain high levels of a form of mercury called methylmercury that can harm an unborn child's developing nervous system if eaten regularly. The FDA recommends not eating larger, predatory fish including; shark, swordfish, king mackerel, and tilefish. The FDA also cautions nursing mothers and young children not to eat these fish. It is safe to eat up to 12 ounces a week of other kinds of fish including shellfish, canned fish, smaller ocean fish or farm-raised fish-just pick a variety of different species.

For more information about the risks of mercury in seafood call 1-888-SAFEFOOD or for general fish and seafood information www.nfi.org — Katherine A. Wenzel, R.D.

Somerset County Farmer Hosts Unique Party For Area Farmers

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JENNERS (Somerset Co.) — Carey Kimmel, a farmer who lives near Jenners in northern Somerset County, happens to be one of those rare people in life who has a big heart.

For the past three years, Kimmel has hosted an event unlike any other, "Dumb Farmers' Day in the Garage," a mid-January break for local farmers which comes complete with a full-course meal, door prizes and plenty of conversations and laughs. Last Saturday, more than 40 farmers and a few friends attended the annual event held in Kimmel's garage, located on his farm on Milo Kimmel Road in Quemahoning Township.

"The reason we call it dumb farmers is because all the smart ones quit farming," said Kimmel, laughing. "Who would want to work 15-16 hours a day? No one wants to do that anymore."

Kimmel also reasons that getting together at neighbors' homes used to be a way of life when he was growing up, but no one has time anymore. By opening his garage, people are able to come together for a short time and visit.

That's the case for Dave St. Clair, a neighboring farmer who simply likes to get away for awhile and relax in Kimmel's garage.

"I get to talk to people who I don't always have time to visit," says St. Clair. "It gets hectic in the summertime and before you know it, summer rolls around to fall and then it's winter.

Here, I can talk a little bit to everybody."

St. Clair says that for farmers to take time to go to a restaurant in the middle of a Saturday afternoon would be an inconvenience, but stopping by the Kimmel garage is both comfortable and fun.

"Other people don't always understand the farmer's way of life," reasons St. Clair, "but everyone here in this garage understands one another."

Mark Sechler, a Confluence farmer who travels about 45 minutes from southern Somerset County to Kimmel's garage, looks forward to the event every year. He milks 130 cows three times a day, but on Saturday his wife Sandi milked at 1 p.m. so Sechler could attend the party.

"There are not that many farmers around anymore," says Sechler. "I think there is only four or five of us in my area. Times have changed. This 'Dumb Farmers' Day' is just a great way to get together, visit with friends and not worry for awhile."

Kimmel knows firsthand the importance of making friends in life. In 1987, he was kicked in the leg by a cow and had to have major surgery for a shattered knee and the doctor wasn't sure he would ever walk again. It was then that the neighbors came by in full force, helping with the milking, doing chores and contributing food. He says "Dumb Farmers Day" is really just of way of saying thank you.

"Sometimes people think that we got to have lots of money to do something like this for others, but there are times when it's the last dollar in our pockets and I go out and get some food anyway," said Kimmel.

That kind of humility and honesty is a way of life for the Kimmel family and Carey serves as a good example of a husband, father, and neighbor.

He is married to the former Marsha Foy. They have six children: Rosalie, married to Todd O'Brien, Somerset; Christine, married to Robbie Singo, New Centerville; Roxann, married to Ron Blough, New Centerville; Casey, married to the former Heather St. Clair, who lives on the farm; Allison, at home, who is engaged to Philip Bittner; and Jesse, the youngest son who helps his father on the farm.

In order to prepare for the meal for "Dumb Farmers' Day," Kimmel and his wife put the turkey on to simmer the night before and then got up about 6 a.m. Saturday morning to make all the food for the "Dumb Farmers' Day." Those preparations included 20 pounds of ham, 27 pounds of turkey, 25 pounds of round steak, four gallons of potatoes, four gallons of green beans, corn, stuffing balls, and lots of desserts, all of which was set-up buffet style.

In addition to "Dumb Farmers' Day," Kimmel and his wife open their garage every single Saturday starting the first day of small game in mid-October and ending with a buck pool contest in December, when they also serve a full-course meal for the buck pool participants.

Kimmel's garage looks like a restaurant inside with serving equipment and booths leftover from an eatery. Kimmel even got a hot dog cooker a few years ago for Christmas and has it in his garage.

"We just like to have some

Somerset County farmer Karl Plummer and his little "future farmer" son Issac load up their plates in Carey Kimmel's garage on Saturday, Jan. 26, for an annual event called "Dumb Farmers' Day in the Garage." The Kimmels served a full-course meal to about 40 farmers.

fun," said Kimmel, laughing. "These guys work hard all year long. This day is one day that is set aside when they come and eat and do not worry about anything."

Not only was the food a big part of the Saturday festivities, door prizes also completed the day. More than 20 area businesses donated various items, such as calf starter, rain gauges, gloves, a buck knife, ice scrapers, hats, calendars, magnets, key chains, several gift certificates, a 50-pound salt block, jumper cables, hydraulic oil, a shovel and even a bottle of penicillin.

"We truly appreciate the businesses who donate for this event," Kimmel said. "It really makes our day a lot more fun."

Being a farmer is the only kind of life Carey Kimmel has ever known. He was the oldest of six children and farms the home place full-time. Although he admits that the hard work and fluctuating milk prices are stressful at times, he believes there is no better way in the world to raise a family.

"If you never grew up on a farm, you just don't know what you are missing," says Kimmel. "This is how you get good people. They are brought up with a good work ethic and they have respect. Our kids get along, and they help each other out — that's the way it should be."

Kimmel's sons Casey and Jesse and daughter Roxann Blough were at the Saturday event to help their dad. Roxann, who works on a New Centerville farm full-time, took photographs for the event.

"My dad just loves to do this for other people. It's something he looks forward to all year and it's something everyone else enjoys too. He's a good man and it makes him happy to do this," she said.

Several Somerset County farmers gathered Saturday afternoon in Carey Kimmel's garage near Jenners for some rest, relaxation, and fun before heading back home to do the milking. Is That Late-Model 'Cream Puff' Really A Wreck In Disguise?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Financial analysts state that purchasing a used vehicle, rather than a new one, makes good financial sense. By forgoing the thrill of owning a new vehicle, your money goes further. However, buying a used vehicle carries risks. Is it a lemon? Is it mechanically sound? Has it ever been in an accident? Now add one more question, has the car ever been totaled in a crash and then rebuilt?

In the January 2002 issue of Consumer Reports, the magazine of the nonprofit Consumers Union, they estimate that as many as 400,000 recent-model rebuilt wrecks are put back onto the roads each year. And more frighteningly the vehicles are winding up in the hands of unsuspecting buyers. Buyers are paying top dollar for a vehicle whose Blue Book value would be cut in half had the vehicle's history been known.

How does this happen?

One reason is that state laws — which generally require a vehicle's title to indicate if it's been rebuilt — vary. In addition, states have widely differing laws concerning rebuilding practices and damage disclosure. It's not uncommon for rebuilt wrecks to hopscotch from state to state, receiving new titles 'washed' of any record of past problems.

How often that happens is unclear, but Consumer Reports offers some disturbing statistics based on one government data sample it looked at: passenger vehicles involved in fatal accidents from 1993 to 1999. About 41,800 of those vehicles were declared totaled and given "salvage" or "junk" titles and about one-fifth of those, or 8,300 vehicles, were rebuilt. Here's the scary part: One-third of those vehicles, or about 2,500 of them, eventually wound up with titles that showed no hint of their history as wrecks.

Are rebuilt vehicles always bad or unsafe?

Not necessarily, but the quality of the rebuilding is crucial. The reality is that there are strong financial incentives for unscrupulous rebuilders to cut corners by focusing on cosmetic repairs. It's a simple matter of mathematics: A car is only "totaled" when the cost of repairing it at least approaches the car's resale value. The report quotes one expert as saying that rebuilding can be done safely "provided it's done properly." Yet, there are no federal standards and varied state ones.

How can consumers know that a rebuilt car is safe?

The most important thing consumers can do is to get a thorough inspection from a qualified mechanic whom they trust, not the seller's mechanic. (A thorough inspection should also should look for other important issues, such as vehicles damaged by water.) An inspection will cost the consumer money, but when you're investing thousands of dollars in a vehicle, this should be considered an investment.

There is one other thing that might help. For fees of about $15 to $20, Carfax (www.carfax.com; toll free, 888-422-7329) offers services that track vehicles by their VINs, the ID numbers that are the fingerprints of the auto world.

Be warned that, while services can identify cars that have received salvage titles, they may fail to flag lesser crash damage. This is because accident disclosure is required only if damage exceeds typically 70 percent or more of the vehicle's pre-accident book value or the insurer declares the vehicle a total loss. Lesser damage is not disclosed on the title. To help consumers, the Consumers Union is pushing for federal legislation that would require insurers to divulge such data to states, so they can be made available to car-buyers.

It used to be that consumers worried about odometer rollbacks, now the method of fraud is rebuilding damaged cars. Guess the old adage of "Buyer Beware" is alive and well.

Computers In Early Childhood Programs

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — "Integrating Computers into the Early Childhood Classroom" is the title of the two workshops being presented by Penn State Cooperatives Extension. The two-part workshop is part of the Cyber Start Initiative that placed computers in child care centers.

Center-based staff involved in the Cyber Start Initiative and others will participate in the workshop. Part 1 of the workshop will be 6:45 p.m.-9 p.m. on Thursday, March 28 at PSU Capital Campus. Education Activities Building, Room 202. Part 2 of the workshop will be 6:45 p.m.-9 p.m. on Thursday, April 4, PSU Capital Campus, Education Activities Building, Room 202.

Jane Landis, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Dauphin County, says the two-part workshop will help early childhood providers and educators examine how to integrate computer technology into their programs. Particular attention will be given on how computers can enhance the development of young children.

According to Landis, those who come to the workshop will learn how to evaluate software, how to arrange the computer area, and how to use the computer in various other aspects of the early childhood program.

The workshop is partially funded by Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, and the Pennsylvania Child Care/Early Childhood Development Training System.

Child care providers can receive DPW training credits for participating in the workshop. Continuing Education Credits (CEUs) are also available.

For more information on the program, call Tamie Herb or Landis at (717) 921-8803. Visit the Better Kid Care Website at www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

ANSWER — Jane Zimmerman, Spring Mills, is looking for a recipe for chocolate pound cake. Thanks to Margaret Kaltreider, Glenville, for sending a recipe, which she has been using for a long time, and her family loves.

Chocolate Pound Cake

1 cup butter
½ cup vegetable oil
3 cups sugar
5 eggs
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons vanilla

Cream butter, oil, sugar, and vanilla together. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and cocoa together and add alternately with the milk. Bake in greased and floured 10-inch tube pan at 325 degrees for 80 minutes or until done.

Thanks to Tessie Kizis, Newsoms, Va., for sending two recipes for pound cake which she recommends.

Chocolate Pound Cake

2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1¾ cup sugar
3 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 squares melted chocolate
1 cup milk

Sift flour with baking powder, soda, and salt; set aside. In a large bowl on medium speed, beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy.

Add eggs and vanilla. Beat at low speed, adding chocolate until blended. Beat in flour mixture alternately with milk. Beat until well blended. Put into a large greased tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-65 minutes. Cool in pan five minutes, then turn out on rack.

Milky Way Pound Cake

2½ cups flour
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1 cup buttermilk
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup chopped English walnuts
4 Milky Way bars
1 cup butter

Melt candy bars with ½ cup butter in a double boiler (keep warm). Cream together ½ cup butter with sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add buttermilk, flour, baking soda, vanilla, and walnuts. Stir in Milky Way mixture. Bake in greased and floured tube pan at 300 degrees for 1 hour and 45 minutes.

Icing:

1½ Milky Way bars
½ cup butter
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Melt Milky Way bars with butter, milk, and vanilla in a double boiler. Add confectioners' sugar, stir well. Drizzle over cooled cake.

Rocky Mountain Cake

2 cups sifted flour
1½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
7 eggs, separated
½ cup salad oil
¾ cup ice water
½ teaspoon cream of tarter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon ground cloves
2 tablespoons caraway seeds (optional)

Note: Using spices is optional. If omitting spices, add about 1 teaspoon of a flavored extract to flavor cake.

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and spices several times.

Combine egg yolks, caraway seeds if desired, oil and water in a large bowl. Add dry ingredients. Beat about 30 seconds on low speed on mixer or about 75 strokes by hand. If omitting spices, add about one teaspoon flavored extract.

Add cream of tarter to egg whites. Beat until stiff peaks form. Gradually pour egg yolk mixture over beaten whites; gently fold in. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake in 325 degree oven for 55 minutes, reduce heat to 350 degrees, and bake 10-15 additional minutes.

Invert cake to cool.

Frosting: In saucepan, blend ½ cup butter with 2½ tablespoon flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook one minute, do not brown. Add ½ cup milk. Cook until thickened. While mixture is hot, add ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed, beat well. Add 2 cups confectioners' sugar, sifted, beat until thick and creamy. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup chopped black walnuts. Spread over top and sides of cooled cake.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted recipes for a slow cooker, here is one from Mrs. Martin, Pine Grove.

Slow Cooker Ham And Potatoes

2 cups ham, diced
8-10 potatoes, peeled, sliced
1 cup cheese, grated
1 can cream of mushroom or celery soup
Onion to taste
Salt and pepper to taste

Layer half of ham, potatoes, and cheese, salt, pepper, and onion in crock pot. Top with remaining ingredients. Cook on low 8-10 hours in crock pot.

ANSWER — Thanks to the many readers who sent in recipes for cream cheese frosting, which we printed in last week's edition. Many of those we received this week are the same or similar to those already printed. However, here are different varieties from Jane Zimmerman, Spring Mills, and from N. Nolt, Landisburg.

Creamy Orange Frosting

12 ounces cream cheese, softened
¾ cup butter, softened
Orange zest, dried for 1 fresh orange
6 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon orange extract

Note: Zest and orange extract may be eliminated and one teaspoon vanilla substituted.

Beat together cream cheese, butter, and zest until smooth. Gradually add confectioners' sugar. Blend in extract. Frosts two or three layers of 9-inch cake.

Cream Cheese Frosting

2 cups whipped cream topping
8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup powdered sugar

Mix together all ingredients. Nancy writes that this tastes delicious on a yellow cake and topped with cherry pie filling

ANSWER — Thanks to the many readers who sent in recipes for cakes made from cake mixes and for cookies made with pudding mixes. We printed many of the same and similar ones in last week's edition of this paper. Here are some different ones from Nancy Nolt, Landisburg; Clara Dorman, Lewisbrug; Jean Lohr, Meyersdale, and other readers.

Cookies In A Jiffy

9-ounce package yellow cake mix
⅔ cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup butter, melted
1 egg
½ cup M&M's and butterscotch chips

Beat first four ingredients together. Stir in M&M's or butterscotch chips. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes.

Chocolate Chip Cookies

2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup butter
¼ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup packed brown sugar
4-ounce package instant vanilla pudding
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
2 cups chocolate chips

Cream butter and sugars. Add eggs. Beat well. Add remaining ingredients. Stir in chocolate chips. Bake at 375 degrees until edges begin to brown.

Note: May add only ½ the amount of pudding mix and cookies will still taste good.

Sandwich Cookies

2 boxes (8½-ounces each cake mix, any flavor)
1 cup vegetable oil
4 eggs

Mix together ingredients and roll into one-inch balls. Do not flatten. Bake at 350 degrees for 9-11 minutes. Cool 5 minutes before removing from pan. Cookies flatten as they cool. Fill with your favorite icing or fill with ice cream and freeze. you can use any flavor of cake mixes. Chocolate chips added to yellow cake mix is also good.

ANSWER — For readers looking for different recipes for making homemade croutons, here is one from Nancy Nolt, Landisburg.

Croutons

8 slices homemade bread
4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon celery salt
4 tablespoons olive oil

Slice bread in ⅔-inch cubes and place in bowl. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Place on cookie sheet. Bake at 300 degrees until crisp.

ANSWER — Thanks to Jean Lohr, Meyersdale, for sending in this recipe for peanut butter syrup to serve on ice cream.

Taffy Peanut Butter Sauce

1 cup evaporated milk
¾ cup peanut butter
½ cup white Karo syrup

Do not cook. Gradually add milk to peanut butter, blending until smooth. Stir in karo syrup. Pour over ice cream, sprinkle with chopped salted peanuts if desired. Makes 2 cups.

Got Milk? Got Cavities?

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — It's not widely known that February is National Dental Month. Also little known is that cavities are caused by a bacteria which is activated after the consumption of sugar. The bacteria which causes cavities already dwells in our mouth. It takes the sugar we eat to activate the growth.

Cavities can be controlled by brushing and flossing teeth, having a balanced diet that includes three to four servings of dairy products, and regular dental checkups.

One-third of all Americans skip regular checkups, and the Surgeon General declared dental disease a silent epidemic.

Flanagan and Noone dentist office in Lebanon will host a month long set of activities sponsored by the Lebanon County Dairy Royalty. These will include an information table located in the office at 219 W. Hamilton Ave., Myerstown. Spot checks throughout the month will search for youngsters with good checkups.

Dairy royalty visits are scheduled on Feb. 11 from 5 p.m.-7 p.m.; Feb. 19 from 2 p.m.-7 p.m.; and Feb. 27 from 2 p.m.-7 p.m. Drop by the office and visit the Lebanon Dairy Royalty to learn more about the role dairy products play in healthy teeth. For more information, call the dentist office at (717) 866-5123.

Fibre Guild Sets Date For Doll Making Workshop

WOODSTOWN, N.J. — Third Star Fibre Artists Guild, Woodstown, N.J. (Salem County) is hosting its first cloth doll making workshop. On Feb. 16 and 17, Cheryl Leone, a teacher of cloth doll making at the Institute of the Arts in Philadelphia, will teach how to design and shape your character doll, stuff, clothe, and wig it. The class is open to persons with some sewing experience. No prior doll making experience is necessary. The cost of the class is $35 for non-guild members.

The class is made available through a grant from the N.J. Council for the Arts. Call Sallye Tarpine-Smith (856) 358-1821 for information and registration.

Don't Want To Eat Like A Walrus?

WINNIPEG, Canada — Consumers who want the heart-health benefits of long-chain omega-3 fatty acids have been told for years that fatty cold-water fish such as salmon are their best bet.

But an analysis of research on the benefits of fish oil suggests that flax seed oil from the flax plant may be a better — as well as a much less expensive — source of omega-3 fatty acids for people who don't want to eat like a walrus.

Dr. Diane Morris, a registered dietitian in Winnipeg, Manitoba, analyzed research studies that compare fish oil with flax seed oil and found that the amount of fish oil consumed by research volunteers in the studies was unrealistically high. Her analysis will be published in this winter's issue of the Flax Focus newsletter of the Flax Council of Canada.

"We hear a lot about the benefit of long-chain omega-3 fatty acids, but what we know about the benefits came from studies using high levels of omega 3s from fish oil capsules," she says.

Fish oil contains the long-chain omega-3 fatty acids, eicosapentaenoic acid (EPA) and docosahexaenoic acid (DHA). The plant extract, flax seed oil, is rich in a different omega 3 acid, alpha-linolenic acid (ALA), some of which is converted in our bodies to EPA and DHA. The heart-health benefits of omega 3 fatty acids include blocking compounds that can cause inflammation and reducing the risk of atherosclerosis by making blood platelets less sticky.

Clinical studies that came out favoring fish oil as a source of omega-3 fatty acids had research subjects consume 1.4 to 6 grams of EPA and DHA daily and compared them to subjects who consumed 1-2 tablespoons of flax-seed oil per day. But while it's reasonable to assume that a person could consume 1-2 tablespoons of flax seed oil daily in salad dressing, it would take three three-ounce servings per day of salmon or 26 servings per day of canned tuna to consume 6 grams per day of EPA and DHA from fish oil.

Humans would have to eat like seals and walruses to reach this intake level of EPA and DHA, says Morris. Even residents of coastal cities would find such a diet expensive, and it would be almost impossible for many people who live in inland areas.

As well, while salmon, mackerel, herring, anchovies, lake trout and dogfish are good sources of omega-3 fatty acids, popular white fish such as cod, halibut, sole, haddock and tuna have relatively small amounts of the heart-health-promoting fatty acids. Crustaceans such as shrimp have moderate amounts of the substance.

Morris notes that the American Heart Association recommends one to two servings of fish per week, far less than the three servings per day it would take to reach the EPA and DHA levels in research studies. However, she says, there have not yet been any studies comparing a diet that includes this more realistic amount of fish per week with one that includes regular consumption of flax seed oil.

Some people turn to fish oil capsules to consume high levels of EPA and DHA, but both the taste and the expense of fish oil capsules make this an unpopular option for many consumers. Flax seed oil, on the other hand, is inexpensive, has a mild taste, and can be added to many products. Introducing flax seed into chicken feed also produces eggs with a high level of omega 3 fatty acids.

Morris notes that a group of leading scientists at international meeting in Bethesda, Md., recommended in a journal article in 2000 the daily consumption of 2.2 grams of the omega 3 fatty acid ALA — equivalent to a single teaspoon of flax seed oil.

"You could do that easily with very little impact on the flavor of your food," she said.

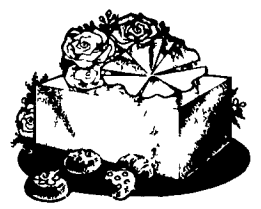
Chocolate, chocolate and more chocolate



It's Valentine's Day, and what better way to celebrate than with chocolate? After all, we do spend more than $7 billion a year on chocolate, and in the United States alone, we eat 2 8 billion pounds each year

Maybe it's hard to believe, but the wonderful taste so many people crave starts with a bean—the cacao bean—which has been smashed and drunk or eaten for centuries The cacao bean was considered a gift of the gods in some ancient cultures, and it was worshipped as an idol in others People would roast and grind the seeds into a paste that was mixed with water to make a drink they thought brought wisdom and knowledge

It wasn't until the mid-1600s that this drink started to gain in popularity throughout the world But by the 1700s, "chocolate" houses were as popular as coffee houses in England In the early 1800s, Conrad Van Houten, a Dutch chemist, invented a press that squeezed out the cocoa butter, which was then blended with sugar This process meant that chocolate was available and more affordable for the masses

A Swiss chemist, Henri Nestlé, developed a special milk for babies Daniel Peters, a Swiss chocolate manufacturer, blended this milk with his chocolate That's when milk chocolate was born

Chocolate was introduced to the United States in 1765 Milton Hershey started the Hershey Chocolate Company in 1894 and sold cocoa, baking chocolate and sweet chocolate Hershey mass-produced a chocolate bar that was more affordable for consumers

The United States leads the world in importing cocoa beans and chocolate production, and Americans each eat 12 pounds of chocolate a year

The Most Popular Doll In The World

When a young girl named Barbara played with paper dolls, she imagined them in grownup roles Her mother who just happened to be a founder of the toy company Mattel, decided there was a need for a sophisticated doll So in 1959, Ruth Handler created the Barbie doll—a three dimensional, fashionable doll named after her daughter

Her wardrobe first included a black and white striped swimsuit, a nightie, and classics such as the Gay Parisienne and Roman Holiday outfits Those outfits were all popular during that era Throughout her lifetime, Barbie has continued to be on the cutting edge of fashion

Barbie was given bendable legs in 1965, and she began talking in 1968

Barbie has had a number of relatives and friends, including

Skipper'—little sister, 1964	Ken'—boyfriend, 1961

Baseball Legends Reunite For Cheese Commercial

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Baseball Hall-of-Famer's Sparky Anderson and Johnny Bench are playing together again in the latest "Ahh, the power of Cheese.™" campaign. A television commercial "Say When" launched Monday, Jan. 7, and stars these two major league baseball legends.

The commercial features Sparky Anderson as the tough-talking owner of an Italian restaurant. And given his 30 plus years in the big leagues, he can't help but run it like a baseball team. The spot resolves around a young waiter who's been grating a mound of mouthwatering Parmesan over a plate of pasta for a cheese-loving diner. Sparky notices that the waiter is beginning to grow weary and exclaims, "He can't even get it over the plate anymore."

Sparky then signals, like a coach making a pitching change, for a relief grater from his serving station. A veteran waiter trots out to the table. Sparky holds out his hand to the tired young waiter who gives him the wedge of delicious Parmesan cheese. As the young waiter begins the long walk back to the kitchen, Sparky sends him off with a reassuring pat on the fanny. The veteran waiter rolls his shoulder, stretches, takes a deep breath and begins vigorously grating more Parmesan cheese for the diner. The spot ends with Sparky's old pal Johnny Bench walking by him and saying wryly, in reference to the young waiter, "I would've yanked him earlier."

"We're building on the success of the 'Ahh, the power of Cheese.™' campaign by continuing to surprise our audience and make them smile. We used a baseball theme as a fun way to dramatize the "can't get enough" power of Cheese," says Scott Higgins, spokesperson, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program adding, "There's nothing more American than the love of baseball, except perhaps America's love of Cheese."

"Our consumer research shows that cheese lovers, who represent 74 percent of the population, crave cheese so much that there simply is no such thing as too much cheese," Scott Hunt, spokesperson for PDPP, says. He adds, "Their desire for cheese is so powerful that they easily relate to situations where they couldn't get enough cheese and, in fact, wanted to request more. And it's no wonder that they can't get enough, with more than 300 delicious domestic varieties of cheese to choose from."

"Say When" introduces the fifth year of an advertising campaign aimed at Cheese Lovers. It builds on the strategic platform that "Cheese has the power to affect people deeply." In this new spot the craving for more cheese is so powerful that a Cheese Lover can't seem to "say when" and requests an entire block of Parmesan be grated on his pasta.

"Say When" is the first of three new television commercials for cheese that will debut in 2002 and is only one element of an overall integrated marketing effort that also includes retail co-marketing, consumer public relations, food service and the ilovecheese.com website.

The new spot is airing on high profile programming such as "Tonight Show," Entertainment Tonight," "Family Law" and cable stations, including "TBS," "USA," and "Lifetime." Corresponding "Pasta" print advertising runs in weekly publications such as People, Sports Illustrated and TV Guide.

PDPP contracts with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, which is the local planning and management organization responsible for increasing demand for U.S.-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. ADADC Mid East works closely with Dairy Management, Inc.™, the national dairy promotion organization, to implement dairy promotion, education and research programs nationwide.

Since the program began in 1984, dairy promotion programs have helped sell more than 225 billion pounds of total milk above the amount projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

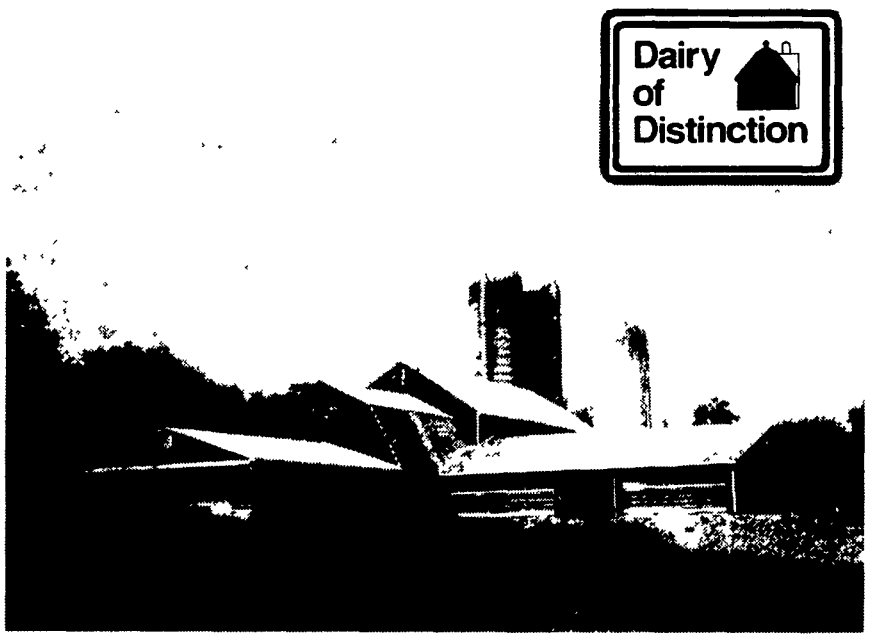
Wanted: Well-Kept Farms For Dairy of Distinction Merit

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm.

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Roadside judging will take place in May. Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences. They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management.



Crystal Spring Farm, Mifflintown

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards.

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das.psu.edu.

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms. The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont. Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications.

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2002 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

Cloister Chorus Invites New Members

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Ephrata Cloister Chorus, based at the historic Ephrata Cloister, is a widely recognized group of 45 volunteer a capella singers, who perform works composed by members of the 18th century communal society along with other early American and classical composers. The group is looking for additional male singers, both tenor and bass.

In addition to performing at the Ephrata Cloister in March, the group will present its annual spring concert in May which will feature Handel's Coronation Anthems. The chorus is also scheduled to perform at historic St. Augustus Lutheran Church in Trappe.

The chorus holds its weekly Tuesday evening rehearsals at the Ephrata Cloister. Contact Daryl Hollinger at (717) 665-9395 for additional information.

Growers Offer Perspectives On Mid-Atlantic Fruit And Vegetable Convention

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — It's cold. Spring is weeks away, but for hundreds of growers, this is the season to plan and lay the ground work for a productive growing season.

One of the most important tasks is attending the three-day Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention conducted last week in Hershey. Packed with information on every grower-related subject, convention participants pick and choose workshops.

"The most important thing is that this conference has the best speakers around," sad Ed Ahrens, Manchester. "They hold my attention and can really explain things."

"Sometimes we learn even more over lunch than in the classroom," said Alyssa Holsinger. She, her husband Jeff, and his brother Earl work for Raab Fruit Farms, Dallastown.

"If any one goes away from here and claims they didn't learn anything new that means they have no interest in farming," Jeff said.

Dan Brubaker attended the conference to learn more tips about growing raspberries on his Denver farmette.

Cut flowers is a thriving business. But growers sometimes find out the hard way that everything isn't all beauty in the posey patch. Flowers that bloom beautifully one day may wilt the next. Profuse beautiful blooms may be stymied by weak stems. The "hot" selling flower in the market place last year may result in totally flat sales this year.

To help growers grapple successfully with problems, workshops examine both field and market potentials. New cultivars are introduced annually. The convention is the place to hear about these and to learn the pluses and minuses of growing the new stock.

During the workshops, presenters often ask opinions from the audiences. Trial gardeners who have gained experience with new cultivars sometimes give glowing recommendations of some varieties and completely nix the reputations other new cultivars.

The important thing is that growers specify exactly why or why not they do not like a particular cultivar. This input enables other growers to make an educated decision on whether or not they want to try the cultivar.

What works for the home gardener may not be viable for a production grower. For example, the dianthus new strain gives higher yields and produce earlier. Dr. Robert Berghage, Penn State presenter, said that he was pleased with the cultivar in the school's trial gardens. However, another grower said that although the dianthus is an attractive flower, they would never plant it for cut flower production. It requires too many stems, which are thin to start with, to make an attractive bouquet.

New cosmos cultivars were also introduced. But that variety also requires too much cutting for the production grower who wants to gather bouquets quickly.

Enchinacea purpurea plant produces abundant flowers the second season, but growers need to be aware that the blooms will be scarce the first year.

Bob Ambrose from Ridgeview Acres Farm, Stahlstown, shared how he grows Lisianthus in the field, which is quite different than the greenhouse.

Ambrose explained how to determine the best place to obtain seed at resonable cost and that some varieties are available only as plugs through select companies.

Ambrose said that growing phases and transplanting may be handled perfectly but post harvest is the most critical operation of all. "If you screw this up, you have wasted all preceding efforts and may lose your customers for not only Lisianthus but everything else you are selling," he warned.

Try to avoid cutting at noon. But no matter when you cut, take buckets of lukewarm preservative into the field and place the blooms in solution immediately after they are cut — not after cutting 5 or 10 blooms.

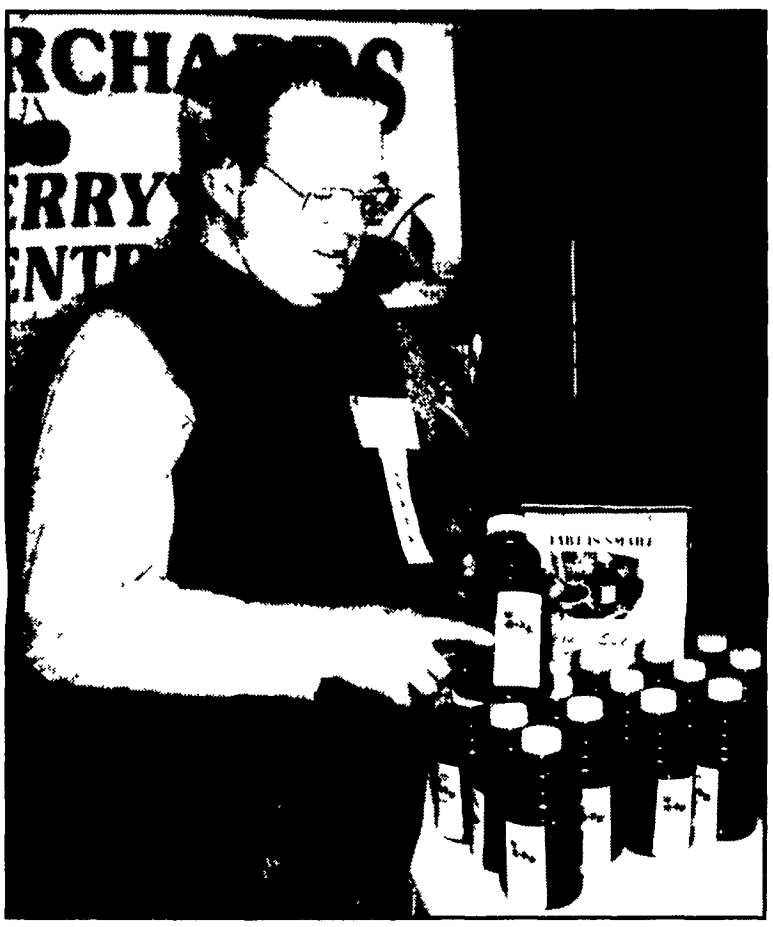
As soon as the bucket is reasonably filled, place it in the shade for four hours or more, depending on ambient conditions, before going in the cooler.

He recuts only if making bouquets; otherwise the blooms are sold as they come from the field after bunching and sleeving.

Ambrose said growers must invest in a cooler for conditioning and more flexibility in harvesting and selling.

"Generally when we have Lisianthus, the whole world is awash in the stuff and summer wholesale price is 30-50 cents per stem.

"Our best outlet is a farmer's market. Your customers may not familiar with Lisianthus initially, but when they get a two week vase life, they will become enthusiasts. Having established a market, we are able to get $1 per stem," Ambrose said.



Tom King introduces cherry juice concentrate during "show and tell" at the trade show. Researchers at Michigan State University have discovered that tart cherries contain natural anti-inflammatory compounds 10 times more active than aspirin and it contains potent anticancer agents. Many people suffering from arthritis and gout are drinking tart cherry juice for relief from pain. King Orchards, a family-owned and operated fruit farm in Central Lake, Michigan, sells the cherry concentrate.

According to Ed Ahrens, Manchester, the annual convention offers the best speakers around to enable growers like him to understand and apply the knowledge.

Although thrilled with the workshops, Alyssa Holsinger said she often learns even more conversing with other growers during lunchtime.

Earl Holsinger, left, and his brother Jeff discuss some of the tips for raising better raspberries that they plan to use at Raab Fruit Farms where they both work.

Dan Brubaker, Denver, said learning goes on and on in sessions and out of them during the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention.

Another favorite spot for growers was the trade show, where they saw new equipment and products to make their job easier and the crop better. In addition, many items were on display for growers to purchase for resell to increase roadside marketing potential.

One of these products was tart cherry juice concentrate. Researchers at Michigan State University have discovered that tart cherries contain natural anti-inflammatory compounds 10 times more active than aspirin. Tart cherries also contain potent anticancer agents. Many people suffering from arthritis and gout are drinking tart cherry juice for relief from pain. King Orchards, a family-owned and operated fruit farm in Central Lake, Michigan, served free samples and offered the cherry concentrate for resale. 16th Annual Lancaster County 4-H Benefit Auction Is Feb. 16

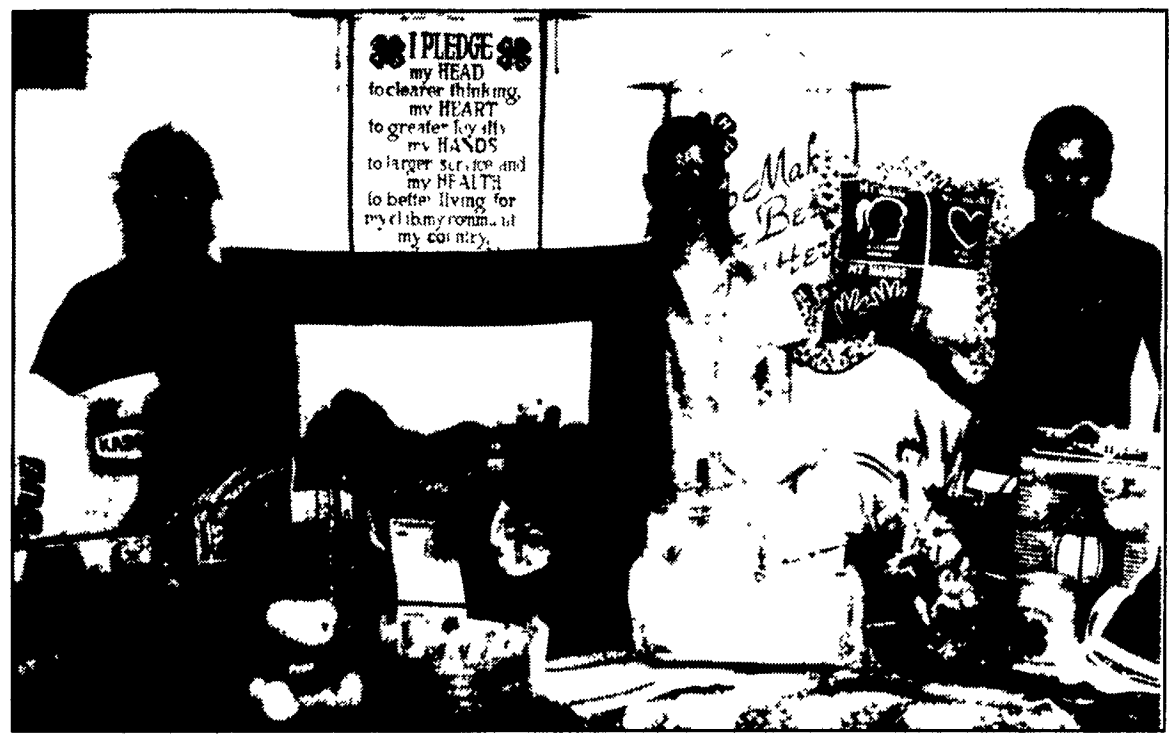
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 16th annual 4-H Benefit Auction will take place on Saturday, Feb. 16, beginning at 9:30 a.m., in the Farm and Home Center Auditorium, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster.

This year's auction will feature a number of specialty items including Longaberger baskets and pottery, a farm scene quilted wall-hanging from Witmer's Quilts, a patriotic wall-hanging (made by the 4-H coordinator), a patriotic wreath from The Olde Millhouse Shoppes, an adirondack chair, 4-H Centennial pottery and beanie bears, and signed, numbered prints of Lancaster County sites. Other items include Wenger's hamloaf, eggs, animal and pet products, Winross and ERTL trucks/tractors, plants, home and garden supplies, motor oil, and numerous gift certificates for merchandise and area services.

Gift certificates to be sold include Lancaster County Candle Company, Olde Country Buffet, Powl's Feed, Weis Markets, Friends Florist, Hoss's, Bube's Brewery, The Castle Roller Skating, Dutch Apple Dinner Theatre, Kline's, The Olde Greenfield Inn, and Fulton Opera House. Tickets for bowling, minigolf, the Strasburg Rail Road, Hershey Bears Hockey, Rainbow Dinner Theatre, and Sight & Sound performance of "Abraham and Sarah" will also be available.

Food items will be sold throughout the day by participants of the 4-H Exchange Program. Proceeds from the auction will benefit the county's 4-H program, through the purchase of educational materials, entry fees to events, transportation costs, volunteer leader support, and other 4-H expenses. The program serves nearly 3,500 youth, ages 8-19, in "learn-by-doing" 4-H projects and emphasizes the development of life skills. The program is also fortunate to have the support of more than 550 adult and teen volunteer leaders.

To receive a complete list of sale items or make a donation for the auction, contact the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension office at (717) 394-6851.



These 4-H members, who are also siblings, from left, Amy, Jenifer, and Joel Denlinger, are serving on the Lancaster County 4-H Benefit Auction Planning Committee. The Denlingers' 4-H Club, the Pequea Valley 4-H Community Club, donated the basket of kitchen items wrapped in cellophane in the center of the table.

Prize Promotion Scams: When Being A Winner Means Losing

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Congratulations, it's your lucky day! You've just won $5,000! You're guaranteed to win a fabulous diamond ring or luxury vacation!"

If you're the "lucky" one who receives a letter or phone call with a message like this, be skeptical. Chances are the $5,000 "prize" may cost you hundreds of dollars in taxes or service charges — and never arrive. The "diamond" is likely to be the size of a pinhead and the "vacation" could be one night in a seedy motel on the outskirts of area highlights.

Scam artists often use the promise of trips or other valuable awards to entice consumers to send money; to disclose credit card numbers; buy overpriced products or services; or contribute to bogus charities. People who fall for their ploys may end up paying far more than their prizes are worth, if they get a prize at all.

What these folks are likely to get may be more than they bargained for: more junk mail, dinnertime telemarketing calls and "spam" (unsolicited commercial e-mail). This is because many prize promoters invest in cheap giveaways to milk consumers for personal, non-public information to sell to advertisers. "Before I can release your prize, I'll need to verify some information..."

Worse yet, contest entrants might subject themselves to a bogus prize promotion scam.

Everyone loves to be a winner. A recent research poll showed that more than half of all American adults entered sweepstakes within the past year. Most of these contests were run by reputable marketers and nonprofit organizations as promotions for their products and services. Some lucky winners received millions of dollars or valuable prizes.

Capitalizing on the popularity of these offers, some con artists disguise their schemes to look legitimate. And an alarming number of people take the bait. Every day, consumers throughout the U.S. lose thousands of dollars to unscrupulous prize promoters. During 2000, the Consumer Sentinel (www.consumer.gov/sentinel), an innovative, international law enforcement fraud-fighting program, received more than 10,000 complaints from consumers about prizes, sweepstakes and lotteries.

The FTC says that there's a big difference between legitimate sweepstakes and fraudulent ones. Prizes in legitimate contests are awarded solely by chance, and contestants don't have to pay a fee or buy something to enter or increase their odds of winning. In fraudulent schemes, however, "winners" almost always have to pay first and collect the prize later.

The FTC identifies several consumer laws that help protect consumers against fraudulent sweepstakes and prize offers promoted through the mail or by phone.

Telephone Solicitations

Telemarketers frequently use sweepstakes and prize contests to sell magazines or other goods and services. These telemarketers make an initial contact with consumers through "cold calls," or take calls from consumers who are responding to a solicitation they received by mail.

The Telemarketing Sales Rule helps protect consumers from fraudulent telemarketers who use prize promotions as a lure. In every telemarketing call involving a prize promotion, the law requires telemarketers to tell you:

- The odds of winning a prize. If the odds can't be determined in advance, the promoter must tell you the factors used to calculate the odds.
- That you don't have to pay a fee or buy something to win a prize or participate in the promotion.
- If you ask, how to participate in the contest without buying or paying anything.
- What you'll have to pay or the conditions you'll have to meet to receive or redeem a prize.

The Telemarketing Sales Rule prohibits telemarketers from misrepresenting any of these facts, as well as the nature or value of the prizes. It also requires telemarketers who call you to pitch a prize promotion to tell you before they describe the prize that you don't have to buy or pay anything to enter or win.

Written Solicitations

Many sweepstakes promotions arrive by mail as a letter or postcard that instructs the consumer to respond by return mail or phone to enter a contest or collect a prize.

The Deceptive Mail Prevention and Enforcement Act helps protect consumers against fraudulent sweepstakes promotions sent through the mail. The law prohibits:

- Claims that you're a winner unless you've actually won a prize.
- Requirements that you buy something to enter the contest or to receive future sweepstakes mailings.
- The mailing of fake checks that don't clearly state that they are non-negotiable and have no cash value.
- Seals, names or terms that imply an affiliation with or endorsement by the federal government.

The FTC enforces federal consumer protection laws and provides free information to help consumers spot and avoid fraud and deception. Much of this information is posted on the FTC Website at www.ftc.gov.

In the end, remember the old adage, "If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

Ida's Notebook

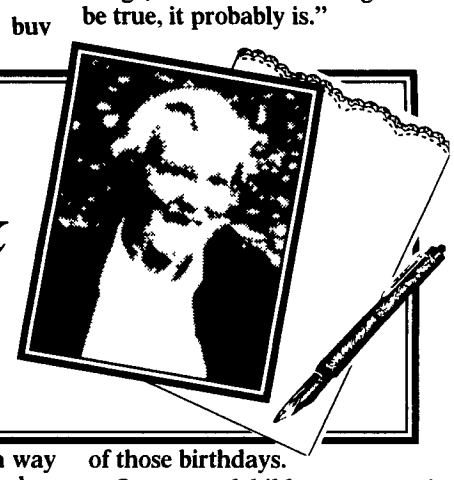
Ida Risser



Our children lived quite a way from the nearest bus stop and so I drove them in the morning, and in the evening they walked home. Now our grandchildren follow the same procedure. Sometimes when they pass our house on their way home, I walk out and give them cookies. When they see me coming, they run to meet me and say "Grandma, Grandma." That makes me feel good.

Many people that we know act very surprised when we say that we have 15 grandchildren as they only have two or three. The other week we had a couple visit us that had 39 grandchildren. Now that would be a job to remember all of those birthdays.

Our grandchildren range in age from 1-year-old to 21-years-old. The oldest will graduate from Duke University in May. The three youngest live in Maine and our daughter sends us many pictures of their activities.

I'm told that my great-grandmother Elizabeth Wolf Rupp had a room where she kept a lot of dolls that she made. And, when children visited her, she gave them one to take home. She had a son who drowned when he was 2-years-old and I've often wondered if that affected her giving spirit. All of this happened in 1851.

When I was 2-years-old, older relatives who visited often gave small coins to children. One day my Grandfather came to our house and asked me how old I was. My answer, according to my mother, was "I'm 10 cents old." They tell me that I could make three-word sentences before I walked. But then, I did not need to walk as my mother carried me everywhere and called me her "little dolly." Later on she had six more little girls.

You ask ou

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Thomas Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wants the name and address of someone in the Lancaster area who makes and sells life-size cows and calves for display in barnyards, lawns, and other places. He has seen some of the cows in various breeds that he believes may have been made from fiberglass material.

QUESTION — John W. Lowery Jr., 7 Old Sharptown Rd., Auburn, NJ 08085, was born and raised in Rowes Run, Fayette County. Lowery is researching coal mines in that area and is looking for pictures of the following coal mines: Colonial #1 Smock, Colonial #2 Royal also known as Chestnut Ridge, Colonial #3 Rowes Run, and Colonial #4 Grindstone.

QUESTION — Frank Rice, Blain, wants to know how the term "pork bellies" came in to use for reporting on agricultural commodities.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, wants the correct address and fax number to receive a catalog from the Fox Hollow Seed Company.

QUESTION — Bob Fleckstein, Woodstown, N.J., has an old string of Christmas lights. He wants to know where he can buy small clear replacement bulbs for it. The bulbs are one-inch long and have threads on the end. No marking is on them.

QUESTION — Kathryn Robson, Lebanon, has lost part of old Universal grinder, one for family use, not a large grinder. She wants to know of some place that deals in Universal items or parts.

QUESTION — Mrs. Ben King, 154 Locust St., Leola, PA 17540, wants a buy a used 2-4-gallon glass fish bowl.

QUESTION — Ken would like to know where to find an Ijima Copper hen pheasant. Call (607) 692-3198.

QUESTION — Naomi Lapp, 1202 Holtwood Rd., Holtwood, PA 17527, wants information or patterns for Raggedy Ann dolls.

QUESTION — A Shippensburg reader wants instructions (spraying, trimming, and grafting) on raising fruit trees. And is it possible to harvest good fruit from trees started from peach stones?

QUESTION — Dwayne Shirk, 212 Hammond RD, Shippensburg, PA 17257-9763 needs instructions for the game Free Parking made by Parker Brothers.

QUESTION — M.K. from Pottsville, wants to know where to get the address for actor Sean Connery.

QUESTION — Kathryn Wistuk, Bangor, writes that during World War II, she had rheumatic fever. A neighbor lady from England told her mother about a remedy called dog oil to massage on the affected leg. Her mother used it and the massage therapy worked. Kathryn would like more information about it. She thinks it may be good to alleviate arthritis although it smells really bad.

QUESTION — Mrs. Paul Brubaker, Mt. Joy, recalls that someone had wanted to know how to get rid of lady bugs in the house. An answer was printed but she didn't clip it out and now needs the information. Did anyone clip out the information to be reprinted?

QUESTION — Henry K. King, 1061 Osceola Rd., Drumore, PA 17518 wants to buy used scooters and two books, "The Mystifying Twins" by Joan Price Reeve.

QUESTION — Rebecca Esch, 683 Conowingo Rd., Quarryville, PA 17566 is interested in old greeting cards from 1930-1980.

QUESTION — Howard Pensack, Belvidere, N.J., is interested in finding a source for heirloom pole lima seed known as Dr. John Martin. He had been getting seed from Fern Hill Farm in N.J., but they had a partial crop failure.

QUESTION — Harold Stoudt, Hamburg, is looking for a lightweight, 3-point, pitmanless sickle bar mower preferably with a six-foot cut. Does such an item exist and where could he find one at an affordable price? He needs to use it only occasionally for trimming fence rows and ditches.

QUESTION — Josephine Long, Sidman, wants to know where to get Westminster pot handles and knobs fixed or buy replacements to fix herself. She purchased the stainless steel pots, made in the U.S, about 1960.

QUESTION — Ruth Ann Zeiset wants to know what to do to keep potatoes from sprouting in the cellar.

QUESTION — Raymond Shirk needs supplies for a 3M Tartan copier, which had been given to him. He is unable to locate supplies and asks if it is an obsolete model. The instruction book says to place a pink paper (which is light sensitive) on top of the original to be copied. Where can the pink paper be found?

QUESTION — David Sempler, Elkton, Md., wants written information on scenting in regards to hunting. He writes that some days his beagles run as if they are tied to the rabbit and work very hard to keep it going. Sempler has heard that the ground breathes in and out and sometimes it does not. He knows that barometric pressure changes affect scenting conditions and that extremely dry weather produces bad scenting conditions. Sempler wants factual information on the relationship between high and low pressures, dry and wet ground, and high and low humidity.

QUESTION — Dave Ruble, West Chester, is looking for cylinder records (Columbia, Edison, Indestructible, and others) and phonograph-related items. He also wants old trains and toys. Call (610) 793-4249.

QUESTION — Marian Lefever, Quarryville, wants to know where to find a parts and cutting blade for an electric Oster food grinder model 996.

QUESTION — Bev Middleton, P.O. Box 49, Morganza, MD 20660, wants to know where to obtain instructions for operating a Sears & Roebuck incubator model number 213,57. It's a round table top type, about 100 egg size. Any help would be appreciated.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for a pattern to sew men's work jeans that are similar to the Wrangler brand. Does anyone know where she can find one in a size 31x32?

QUESTION — Does anyone know how to dehull Brazil nuts so they remain intact. Clarence Sheaffer writes that he tried soaking some in warm water. The hulls softened; however, the meat also softened and was stained, which may not harm it.

QUESTION — Ben Kinsinger, 686 Kensinger Rd., Meyersdale, wants to know where to find two old gas engines in any condition for an old Maytag washing machine motor that used a glass jar turned upside down for the gas. He also wants a very small ½ horsepower New Holland gas engine made in New Holland.

QUESTION — Louise Hannum, Wagontown, wants to know if there is any interest in a complete 1968 Franklin Mint Antique Car Coin Collection Series I. It includes 25 bronze coins dated from 1901-1925 with descriptive booklet.

QUESTION — M.P., Kintnersville, wants to know where an umbrella with broken metal pieces can be fixed.

QUESTION — A reader has a problem with their rabbits not pulling fur to prepare a nest to have their young. Anyone know what causes this "unmotherly" behavior?

QUESTION — A reader is looking for the words to "Black Mountain Light," a ballad about a slave owner who sees a strange light on the mountain while looking for a slave.

QUESTION — Carl Detwiler, Zionsville, wants to know if any owner of a 3226 QT Bush Hog front end loader has trouble with the mounting arms breaking at the welds.

QUESTION — Leroy Serventi, Croydon, would like to know of any vegetable gardening clubs or groups in Bucks County, Pa., or in Burlington County, N.J.

ANSWER — Several weeks ago a reader wanted to know why her sugar pea plants and peas were turning yellow and dying before maturity. Thanks to a reader who writes that she knows that several people had this problem, but had good results by applying a solution such as Nature's Aid Organic Inoculant. It is mixed in with the seeds or spinkled in the furrow when seeds are planted. The inoculant can be purchased from J. W. Jung Seed Co. Call (800) 247-5864 to order a catalog or inoculant.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted information on the Buck truck pull, Paul sent in this information: Buck Motorsports Park, P.O. Box 8289, Lancaster, PA 17604. Phone (800) 344-7855 or (717) 859-4244.

ANSWER — R.D. from Bloomsburg wanted to know where to buy ruffled grouse game birds to raise. Thanks to a reader who said ruffled grouse are available from Jerry Richarsons (610) 754-7087.

ANSWER — In response to Clarence Sheaffer's question about dehulling Brazil nuts, Mary Lloyd writes that while watching a holiday cooking program, a chef said the nuts should be placed in the freezer. Remove only a few nuts from the freezer at a time. Remove the hull and the nut should come out in one piece.

ANSWER — David Simpler, Elkton, Md., wanted to know how to build a water ram or where to buy one. Thanks to Jerry Snavely, Manheim, who writes that he purchased one several years ago but never got around to installing it. The ancient ones were made of cast iron, but the one he has is made of pvc. If interested, call Snavely at (717) 665-3693.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know where to buy rug braiding material, not cotton but wool or knit goods pieces left over from factories cutting garments. Thanks to Thane LaFollette for recommending Guilford Mills, Wideawake St., Pine Grove, Schuylkill County. Phone (717) 345-2611. About once a month, the factory has a surplus sale on a Saturday morning from 8 a.m. to noon. Available are ends of knit material that measures 3-4 inches wide, on large spools weighing several pounds for about $10. Sometimes there is a large selection of colors; other times only one or two colors.

Heat with Corn!

Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

'Anything Farm Related' Intrigues Beshore Couple

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

OLEY (Berks Co.) — When Terry Beshore's health forced him to give up farming, his wife Louise was devastated.

"I missed the cows. I thought I'd go crazy from boredom," she said.

Out of habit she'd awaken at 4 a.m. In a few short weeks she finished all the projects she had been storing up for "when the cows go."

"We started going to auctions for something to do—not to buy," Beshore said.

At auctions they often saw unusual pieces, which they couldn't always identify. Generally someone in attendance would mention a grandparent using the item on the farm. Intrigued, the Beshores began buying items "with a story to tell."

"And it had to be farm-related," Louise said of bidding criteria.

Many of the pieces were covered with grime, soot, and grease. Terry's severe arthritis prevented him from cleaning up the pieces, but nothing was too dirty for Louise to tackle.

She soon became an expert at restoring wood and metal pieces. After putting in hours of elbow grease, Louise wasn't about to part with the valued pieces. Creativity erupted and she found unique ways to fit pieces into the couple's one-story home: An old bag wagon serves as a coffee table, an old scoop shovel holds a stack of newspapers and magazines, a manure fork hanging from a ceiling beam holds a stereo system....

One can spend hours in the Beshore's home and not have time to see the many pieces incorporated into their decor.

After restoring this bag wagon, Terry and Louise Beshore decided it would make the perfect coffee table for their living room.

As you can see from this photo, the Beshores fill their home with things they love.

About the only traditional pieces of furniture found in their home is a sofa and reclining chair. Otherwise, pieces have been put to novel uses. Old tractor seats attached to steel wheels provide comfortable seating, a farmer's platform scales serves as an end table....

And with almost every piece is a story to tell.

"A mouse ran out of this scales when we went to load it on the pickup truck," Beshore said. "This fodder shredder was advertized as a thresher."

Fastened to the beams in the couple's recent sunroom addition is an old wooden rack with a four-foot winch formerly used to pull up a beef to skin out. The beauty of the time-worn wood is enhanced by the authentic rope the Beshores found at another auction. A feed chest full of rat holes adds character to the piece. Old hay hooks, wooden oven paddles, wooden wagon jacks, a player piano,

Louise is also adept at using a saw. One of her projects is a scalding trough set upright and installed with shelves to display part of Beshore's toy tractor collection.

"She convinces me what to do," Beshore said of the unique ways of displaying items.

Louise collects butter churns, milk bottles with nursery rhymes, old wringer washers, wooden cabbage slawers, brass bottom butchering tools, copper kettles, piels (wooden paddles used to remove pies and breads from bake ovens) and other farm kitchen items.

Of collecting antiques, Beshore said, "With the economy the way it is, it's better to have antiques than money in the bank."

But the Beshores collect things for another reason. They want to preserve the past. Visitors to their home receive a pictorial history lesson in farm-related items.

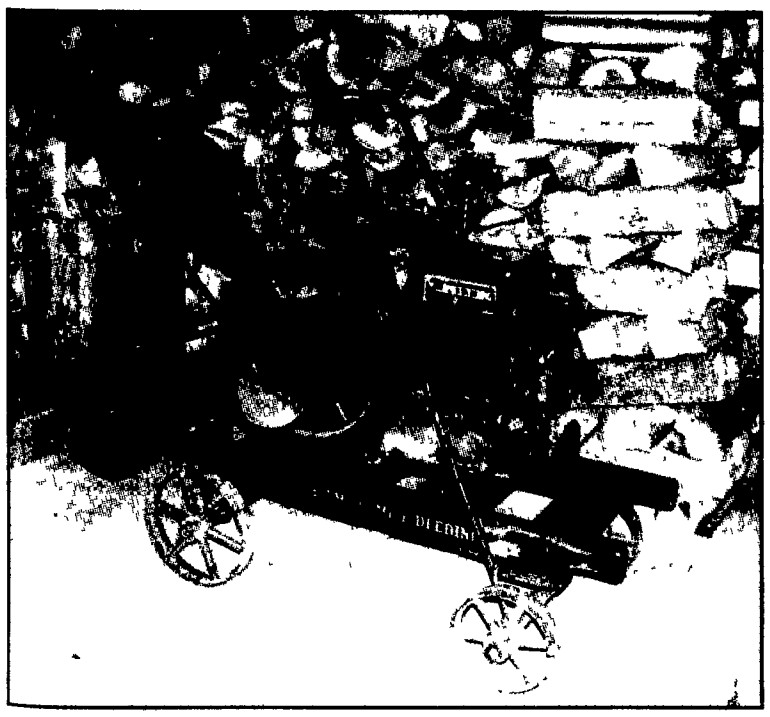
The couples' son Rodger who lives in Kansas also takes an interest in finding novel uses for old items. He removes the copper core from tractor radiators, puts a mirror in the back, and shelves across it so that they can be used as display shelves for toy tractor collectors.

According to the Beshores, antiques had been more affordable in Kansas, but that is changing in the last three years. "It's really hard to find a bargain now because everyone is looking."

Recently the Beshores only paid a few dollars for a rare straw cutter, which had been overlooked by other bidders because it was filled with rotten junk.

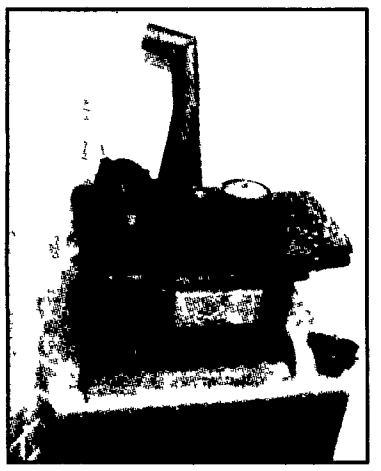
The couple say that many of the items they buy require a lot of labor to restore them to usefulness. Louise soaked a wooden transom in Clorox water in their bathtub for several days. She uses linseed oil to restore wood. She said, "Never use pressure washing on wooden things or it will ruin it."

Their house is filled, and they don't buy as much as they used to, but Beshore said, "If a piece comes up (for bid) that we like, it's hard to say, "no."



Beshore hooks up this hit and miss engine by McCormich-Deering to an old ice cream freezer to make ice cream at antique farm-related shows.

Sometimes the Beshores are surprised with finds such as this copper washing machine. After removing the grime, it worked perfectly.



This is a salesmen's sample of a cast iron cookstove.

Valentines Capture Collector's Hearts

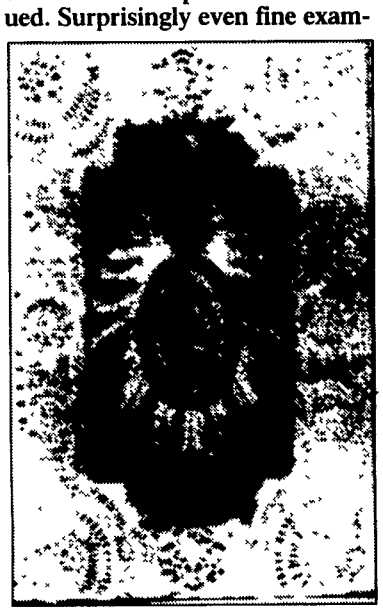
Ever since the first written romantic message using the name St. Valentine was sent in 1684 and signed by Englishman Edward Sangon, sweethearts and lovers have exchanged paper Valentines. Although the way they are made has changed over the centuries, the romantic symbols of hearts and cupids have continued. Surprisingly even fine examples of 19th century valentines are reasonably priced selling from $50 to $300.

Rarities can sell for more than a thousand dollars.

The earliest American valentines were made by hand from around 1740 to 1840. Often they used the materials at hand to decorate a simple folded piece of heavy paper. Lace, feathers, locks of hair, and semi precious stones were a few. They were combined with watercolors and pen and ink sketches.

Among the rarest types is the scherenschnitte (German word for scissor-cut" valentine.

Made from the early to mid-19th century, primarily by the Pennsylvania Dutch the technique involved folding pieces of paper and repeatedly cutting a single pattern of hearts, geometric patterns, and other designs. Pin prick designs were also combined by using pins and needles. These were mounted on red paper to bring out the heart and flowers motifs.



Early 19th century, hand painted , engraved valentine. Photo by private collector.

By the 1830s valentines were being mass-produced. The earliest used black and white lithographed subjects that were hand colored. Beautiful maidens standing shyly were a popular subject. Others were engraved or made from woodcuts.

Paper valentines by "name" artists such as a 19th century one painted by Kate Greenway and Walter Crane can cost several hundred dollars. Equally expensive would be one made by Esther Howland, in Worcester, Mass., in the 1840s, 1850s. She launched her own valentine business and hired an assembly line of women to hand paint and assemble her valentines Another choice valentine would be a mid-19th century Joseph Mansell design.

This English printer/engraver was noted for his "cameo" embossing with elaborate gilding. The verses were handwritten. Sometimes a tiny envelope was affixed to the valentine. It was up to the sender to enclose a personal message. Mansell also designed paper-doll valentines with the central figure dressed in actual fabric.

There were also valentine novelties. Wouldn't you love to discover one of the valentines engraved in the form of bank notes in the 1850s? They were equally popular in England and America. One was drawn on "The Bank Of True Love, secured by the Pledge of the whole stock of Truth, Honor and Fidelity, in the State of Matrimony." Known as the "Bank of Love Notes," they were so realistic that they were shortly banned in England.

Not all valentines were romantic. Some of the old 1840s and 1930s comic valentines were downright mean. The 19th century examples were usually lithographed and hand-colored. Especially popular were those lampooning the self-styled lady killer and the crabby old maid.

By the end of the 19th century Germany began making "mechanical" , novelty valentines that had moving parts By rotating a disk or moving a paper lever heads could turn and ships could move in paper waves.

CLUES: Esther Howland valentines can be recognized by the colored paper disks in the corners. Beware of the many lithographed Victorian valentines that were reproduced beginning in the 1970s. Many of the new chromo-litho parts have been used to patch up damaged old pieces. Check the back for copyright date; if any. Condition , rarity and age determine the price.

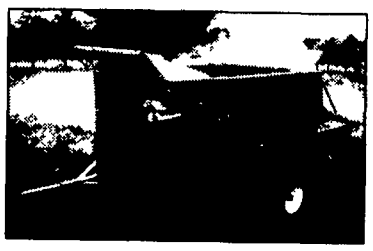
❖ BUSINESS NEWS ❖

Earth & Turf Offers New Topdresser

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Earth & Turf Company has announced a new hydraulically driven topdresser, the MultiSpread 300. The MultiSpread 300 will spread a variety of materials such as topdressing for athletic fields, golf greens, infield mix for baseball fields, chips on pathways and salt-sand or grit on sidewalks and driveways.

Capacity is 22 cubic feet, and a brush or beater spreading system can be chosen with spread patterns from 36 inches to 72 inches, making the model 300 highly versatile.



Earth & Turf MultiSpread 300.

All spreading adjustments can be made easily without the use of tools.

Auction Success Indicates Improved Market

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — For Roland and Carolyn Feeg, the first Thursday in January was a nervous day. The Feegs were retiring from farming and auctioning their farm's equipment.

The Feegs were pleasantly surprised when more than 450 cars arrived on auction day. A turnout of this magnitude shows market vitality and indicates that agriculture is alive and well.

According to auctioneer Roy Good, partner in Kline, Kreider and Good Auctioneers, there was more to the story.

"The equipment was clean and well maintained and that made a significant difference in the prices," said Good. It seems farmers were willing to pay significantly more for equipment that promises years of dependable service.

Feeg's reputation for meticulous maintenance paid off. Retailers who were looking to add to inventories were virtually shut out at this auction.

The Feegs were pleasantly surprised when more than 450 cars arrived on auction day. Feeg's reputation for meticulous maintenance paid off. Retailers who were looking to add to inventories were virtually shut out at this auction.

Roland Feeg had equipment that was in excellent condition. Charlie Hoober of Hoober Incorporated said, "Many of the pieces sold for prices over blue book value. Over the years, the Feegs sent their equipment to us for uptime service and it showed on the auction block." Roy Good made the same observation. "Without a doubt, when a piece of equipment gets regular uptime service, it runs better and therefore is worth significantly more at resale."

A 1993 Case I-H 9250 four-wheel-drive tractor sold for $56,000. A 1994 155 horsepower Case I-H 7220 Magnum sold for $41,000. The prices remained strong when the bidding turned to the 1988 Case I-H 1660 combine with grain table and corn head which sold for $47,000. An older Krause 5200 series grain drill fetched $10,200, while the Krause 3525 pulled down $4,500. An older International Harvester 3088 sold for $9,250. According to Hoober, "It's great to see the equipment we sold years ago holding value."

Board Gives Moyer, Dautrich Expanded Roles At Sterling Financial

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — J. Roger Moyer Jr., a top officer of both Sterling Financial Corporation and one of its affiliates, the Bank of Lancaster County, has assumed a larger leadership role in Sterling Financial in 2002.

Moyer, 53, became president of Sterling Financial Jan. 1, taking on added responsibility for overall leadership and strategic direction. He will assume the role of chief executive officer after May 1, 2002.

The company's board of directors finalized the appointment at its Dec. 18 meeting. Moyer previously served as senior executive vice president and chief operating officer of Sterling Financial and senior executive vice president of the Bank of Lancaster County.

The board also named Thomas P. Dautrich, 53, to the position of chief banking officer of Sterling Financial Corporation. Dautrich continues in his current role as president and chief operating officer of the Bank of Lancaster County.

John E. Stefan, 62, long-time chairman, president, and chief executive officer of Sterling Financial, continues as chairman and chief executive officer until May 1, 2002, but said he will be less involved in day-to-day issues. Stefan will continue his role as chairman after May 1.

"This is a natural step in assuring an orderly progression of leadership within our organization," Stefan said. "I will be working closely with Roger Moyer and other members of our executive team as they carry forward and build on the core values that have successfully guided us for many years."

Sterling Financial Corporation operates 51 banking locations in south central Pennsylvania and northern Maryland through its subsidiary banks — Bank of Lancaster County, N.A., Bank of Hanover and Trust Company, First National Bank of North East and Bank of Lebanon County. The Bank of Lancaster County was founded in 1863 and is the flagship bank in the group. Nonbanking affiliates include insurance, leasing, and investment management services.

Stefan joined the Bank of Lancaster County (formerly The First National Bank of Strasburg) in 1979 and over a period of 22 years led its growth from a single bank with $90 million in assets to a multi-bank holding company with $1.8 billion in assets. He also helped to expand a wealth management group that currently oversees $1 billion in assets.

Moyer joined the Bank of Lancaster County in 1978 as head of trust and investment services and has held numerous leadership positions with the bank and the holding company. He grew up on a farm in Lancaster County where his grandmother got him interested in stocks at an early age.

Moyer is a graduate of Boyertown High School and has a bachelor's degree in finance from the Pennsylvania State University and a master's degree in business administration from Southern Illinois University.

Moyer has been active in the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the United Way, and the American Red Cross. He is a member of the government board of the Lancaster County Foundation and serves as a volunteer with the Smeal College of Business at Penn State.

Dautrich has been with the Bank of Lancaster County since 1998. He previously spent two years with CoreStates Bank and 21 years with Meridian Bank. He is a graduate of Berwick High School and holds a bachelor's degree in accounting from the Pennsylvania State University and a master's degree in business administration from Kent State University.

Dautrich has been active in the United Way. He serves as a member of the board of Pennsylvania School of Art and Design and effective January 2002, he is on the board for the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce as well as the Economic Development Corporation.

Alderfer Inducted Into Auctioneer Hall Of Fame

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Harold Alderfer of Harleysville, was honored by the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association at their yearly convention for his years of service to the auction industry.

During this ceremony, Jan. 11, Alderfer was inducted into the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association Hall of Fame.

An auctioneer since 1961, Alderfer is a graduate of the Reisch American School of Auctioneers, holds a real estate brokers license in Pennsylvania, and has been employed by the Alderfer Auction Company, Hatfield, for 40 years. He joins Alderfer Auctioneers, Sanford A. Alderfer, Vernon L. Martin and Charles L. Moyer, past inductees in the Hall of Fame.

Land Pride Offers Skid Steer Hitches

SALINA, Kan. — The Land Pride Skid Steer Hitch, SH35, enables you to operate Cat. 1 or 2 non-PTO tractor implements with your skid steer loader. This Skid Steer Hitch, designed in accordance with ASAE specifications, fits a variety of Land Pride products and is a real time saver when working on multiple products. The Skid Steer Hitch offers an adjustable top hook, automatic lock on lower three-point and a class II receiver and storage for a ball hitch.

Land Pride's Category 1 Quick-Hitch, QH15, attaches to the tractor three-point allowing the operator to easily and quickly hook on to implements. The Quick-Hitch features an adjustable top hook and an automatic lock with quick release.

New Case IH Balers Offer Many Options

RACINE, Wis. — Case IH introduces a new line of round and square balers to meet the needs of livestock producers, horse breeders and commercial hay growers.

"These new machines offer Case IH customers a solid line of balers to meet their diverse needs," says Patrick Carter, Case IH product marketing manager for hay and forage.

The new Case IH baler line includes: four small square balers; two large rectangular balers; and four models of round balers.

The new Case IH RBX Series round balers come in five models the RBX441, 451, 461 and 561. The first two digits in each model number indicate the size of bale in feet (i.e. 4 by 4). A silage version of the RBX451 also is available.

These variable-chamber machines produce bales ranging from 30 to 70 inches in diameter and from 300 to 2,200 pounds. The RBX Series balers offer several features that set Case IH machines apart from other round balers.

"Electric twine wrap is a feature exclusive to the new Case IH round balers," says Carter. "This gives the operator control of bale wrap from the tractor seat."

Other popular features and options include:

- An optional electronic auto-controlled wrapping system offers a choice of wrapping bales with twine or plastic mesh.
- Dual cam pickups are standard on the model RBX 451 and higher for increased reliability when handling heavy or tough crops.
- Larger tires for greater flotation are available on several models.
- Chevron pattern belts continue to be standard, as on previous Case IH round balers. The belts provide a continuous grip on the bale for positive bale formation.

Four new small square balers from Case IH pack tight, well-formed bales. Three models the SBX520, SBX530 and SBX540 make 14 by 18-inch bales. The SBX550 packs a 16 by 18-inch bale. Bale length is adjustable up to 52 inches.

The new BTX11 bale thrower is available on all models except the SBX550. The bale thrower uses hydraulically controlled belts to throw bales into a wagon.

'Mountain Of Mums' Draws Customers To Ott's

ANDY ANDREWS

SCHWENKSVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — What do you do with a mountain of soil?

Create the Mountain of Mums, of course.

That's what happened be ginning back in 1961 when earth was moved into a pile to build some greenhouses for Ott's Exotic Plants on Rt. 29 near Schwenksville.

The story goes Godfrey Ott told his children Godfrey H. and Clarke to go pull some weeds out of a pile that had gone unsightly said Godfrey H. Ott. Ott said that the weeds, being an eyesore were replaced by some mums, and then passes in the spring for customers to appreciate.

So why not make a hill of yellows the color of lemon ade from an unsightly lemon?

We made the dirt pile with plants said Ott. And

A Garden Grows In Philadelphia

Urban Farm Connects With Community, Rural Producers

PHILADELPHIA — Farmers wanted.

That's the rallying call of The Food Trust, a farmer's market association operating in the Philadelphia area.

The Farmer's Market Trust — as the organization was known until recently — was started 10 years ago at Philadelphia's Reading Terminal Market according to Duane Perry, founder and executive director.

The goal was to create farmer's markets operating in community settings, Perry said.

During the 2001 growing season the nonprofit organization operated 10 markets in eight locations within Philadelphia and its suburbs.

Set up in a variety of settings such as sidewalks and parks, the markets are attracting a growing number of urban people who care about the sources of their food, said Perry.

There's a really solid group of consumers interested in connecting with farmers, he said.

Twenty-seven farmers in 2001 supplied a wide array of agricultural products to the markets, from baked goods, flowers and cut conventionally grown fruits and vegetables to organic and specialty items, produce and specialty items such as high end salad greens.

PHILADELPHIA — Mary Corbey lives in downtown Philadelphia and bikes regularly to the farm she manages.

From her home, the farm is a few dozen blocks away on an abandoned industrial or brownfield site in a residential neighborhood on the east side of the city near Route 95.

It was just a trash dump, Corbey said of the 1½-acre site before she took it over in 1998 and established the Greensgrow Philadelphia Project.

Made possible through a lease agreement with the local community development corporation, the project was started from scratch. No plumbing, electricity or useful structures existed on the site — except for a metal wire fence around the perimeter of the property.

Originally started as a hydroponic operation for growing lettuce, Greensgrow has since expanded to include methods for cultivating a wide variety of crops, including remasees, specialty vegetables and flowers.

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Nestled among eastern Pennsylvania towns and edged by housing developments are the 90 rolling acres that comprise Varner Family Farm.

The farm, which is in the Montgomery County Farmland Preservation Program, stands in contrast to an increasingly urbanized area.

Most of the farmland around here is growing houses, said Varner. Besides houses, also located nearby are large pharmaceutical companies.

The Varners, however, have been able to take advantage of the marketing opportunity that has presented itself.

The flowers, produce and pick-your-own option for the small orchard, pumpkin patches, and Christmas trees make the farm a favorite stop for customers.

The reason we're going to pick your own products is because that's what our market wants, said Varner. We've realized that we're in the entertainment farm business.

Part of our marketing strategy has always been the farm. That's our niche.

Starting With Trees

A graduate of Delaware Valley College, Varner got his bachelor's degree in horticulture before coming back to apply his knowledge to the farm.

The land that he grew up on and is now farming deeded back to his grandfather in 1820. Varner's father, Bob, sold the dairy operation when Rob was a child and rented out the acreage.

A trip to Carbon County as a Boy Scout, planted the idea of growing Christmas

The Farmstand: Direct Marketing Tips

SELLING MABEL PEACHES BEFORE THE GUY NEXT DOOR DOES!

Selling at growers markets is always a challenge and is probably as much an art form as it is a business for those who are successful in the venture.

Customers can range from rude and cheap to those willing to try any of your new products at whatever price you set.

Your best supporters are asking the other vendors where you are when you don't show up at the market one week. Customers are your lifeblood and appealing to their needs and wants is what makes you successful or not (with success being defined here as profitable).

So, how about a few marketing tips before you set up for a new marketing season?

Sell yourself first, a good marketer knows it's not always what you sell but instead how you sell it. Think back to the image you had at the market last year. Were you seen as a seller of quality and freshness or a wholesaler of quantity? And what is the first impression to people as they walked up (or right by)? Did they see something that enticed them to stop and take notice?

IPM For Cut Flowers

Lately, I've started to receive questions and phone calls regarding production of cut flowers. This interest in flowers is consistent with the trend for producers of all crops looking for new items to grow to help increase revenue in their operations.

Unfortunately, like many of the other specialty crops I'm asked about, there is no one complete resource I can refer a potential producer to regarding cut flower production. There is some information available regarding ut flower production but it must be collected from a variety of sources.

One particularly difficult area to find information on regarding cut flower production is pest control. This is most likely a result of two factors: first, the great variety of flowers that can be grown (and thus a wide range of pest problems) and second, the lack of chemical controls available for some of these crops.

The small total acreage of any one type of flower pro-

Are Hybrids The New Yield Force In Alfalfa?

A Summary Of Alfalfa Hybrid Performance In University Variety Trials

Daniel W. Wiersma
University Of Wisconsin-Madison

MADISON, Wis. — While the potential of hybridizing alfalfa has been demonstrated for many years, producing large quantities of seed has limited commercial development of hybrid alfalfa. Seed production economics prompted the search for less expensive ways to produce hybrid seed.

In the spring of 2001, a new hybrid alfalfa variety (HybriForce-400) was released and sold on a commercial basis.

If this and future alfalfa hybrids can contribute to forage yield like corn hybrids contributed to grain yields, then we have entered a new and exciting era.

An examination of the concepts of breeding alfalfa hybrids and a look at current data on hybrid performance follows.

Yield Trends Of Alfalfa And Corn

Forage yield of alfalfa has increased during the time period from 1919 to the present, based on USDA data. However, the increase in yield has not been strictly linear. Yield trends remain flat until about 1955, and then increased steadily each year until the mid to late 1970's after which yield gains stagnate.

Early in the 20th century, yield gains of corn due to breeding were minimal. Until the 1930s, corn growers used primarily open pollinated corn, and the average yield at that time was about 20 bu./ac. Following the development and adoption of corn hybrids, grain yields increased steadily. Researchers report an average yield gain of 1-2 bu./ac. per year for corn (Hallauer et al., 1988). Today average corn yields in the US top 130 bu./ac., and modern hybrids regularly yield in the 200-250 bu./ac. range.

Several researchers have reported on the contribution of breeding to alfalfa yield. These studies show that genetic yield gains of 0.15-0.3 percent per year have been obtained for alfalfa since the late 1950s (Hill et al., 1988; Holland and Bingham, 1994). A study by Loiselle (1992) indicates a one percent alfalfa yield gain per year for varieties release between 1997 and 1992.

Analysis of alfalfa variety performance studies at Universities in the Midwestern US indicate that there is no evidence to conclude that alfalfa yields have changed during the last two decades (Wiersma et al., 1997). In fact this analysis indicates a slight decline in yield during this time period. Most recent advances in alfalfa varieties have been a result of breeding for pest resistance.

When pest resistant varieties are grown in environments where pest development is favorable, there is a marked difference between resistant and susceptible varieties. However, in the absence of pest pressure, resistant varieties do not improve yield over susceptible varieties.

Overall, alfalfa genetic yield progress is very slow with accumulated yield gains of about 10 percent to 15 percent during the last 50 years.

Alfalfa Breeding Methods

Like other species, the goal of breeding and selection of alfalfa for improved varieties involves a process of increasing the frequency of desirable genes in the population of plants.

In crosspollinated crops like corn and alfalfa, mass selection was the first type of genetic improvement undertaken. However, mass selection was not always effective in producing better varieties. Corn and alfalfa breeders began using other breeding methods for the development of new varieties.

With corn, the development of vigorous inbred lines and the ease of pollen control (i.e., detasseling) led to the development of hybrids. In contrast, breeding of alfalfa is predominantly accomplished through recurrent phenotypic selection methods because of economic limitations associated with hybridization in this crop.

Recurrent selection is the identification of individual plants with superior performance for a given trait or group of traits. Once identified, the superior plants are intermated to produce a new population, called F1 plants.

The selection process then begins again on the improved population of plants. It usually takes two to five cycles of selection and reselection to exploit the genetic variability present in the population.

Once a desirable population of plants is identified, plants are allowed to randomly intermate and seed is collected from the group of plants and identified as a synthetic variety. This seed is then used in the production of additional seed.

Unlike a corn hybrid, each individual seed in a bag of alfalfa carries a unique set of genes. The population of plants grown from these seeds is then characterized for phenotypic traits such as disease resistance, flower color, or gladular hairs.

Commercial Alfalfa Hybrid Development

The primary alfalfa breeding method is called recurrent phenotypic selection. This method involves choosing parents that are crossed to produce a synthetic variety. It is not a method of hybridization and does not take full advantage of the heterosis effect that occurs when two inferior parents are crossed to produce superior progeny.

Like most agronomic species, alfalfa plants produce self-pollinated seed during normal flowering unless special steps are taken. Such steps often involve some sort of "male sterilization," as in corn, for example, where the tassels are removed from the female parent plants to prevent self-fertilization.

Since hybrids are the result of controlled pollinations, a system of making male plants nonfunctional is needed to achieve desired cross-pollination. Development of female plants (male sterile) that successfully cross with male plants results in a hybrid.

The introduction of HybriForce-400 by Dairyland Seed Company utilizes a male sterility system of hybridization called MsSunstraTM. In effect, selected male sterile (female) alfalfa plants are grown together with other male fertile plants and allowed to cross. The resulting seed from these plants (F1) is predominantly hybrid, although some seed will still be self-pollinated.

Proper selection of alfalfa parents (male and female parents) is the key to making a successful hybrid variety. Because commercial hybrid seed is F_1 seed, it is likely to be more vigorous than a commercial synthetic variety that has been through multiple cycles of crossing to increase seed quantity.

Performance Of Hybrid Alfalfa

In company advertising, Dairyland Seeds claims that HybriForce-400 has eight to 15 percent greater yield over the life of the stand than non-hybrid alfalfa varieties. If this is true, it means that the breeders have made a large jump in alfalfa's yield potential.

Beginning in 1997, HybriForce-400 has been tested as an experimental variety (DS-9705) in various University variety performance trials. The seed used for these studies was produced in a research setting and did not come from large seed lots.

Data for this summary were reported in the Central Alfalfa Improvement Conference (CAIC) Variety Test report during 1998-2000. Trials with HybriForce-400 were conducted in, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin.

In this summary, an environment is defined as the total yield from a single site in a single year. In 24 test environments, HybriForce-400 yielded the same as or beat the trial mean, averaging 0.65 ton DM/acre higher. The yield of HybriForce-400 was significantly (95 percent confidence level) higher than Vernal in 21 environments.

In 21 of 25 environments, the yield of HybriForce-400 was not statistically different than the average of the three highest yielding commercial non-hybrid varieties in each study.

In three test environments, HybriForce-400 was significantly higher yielding than the best non-hybrid variety. In one environment, HybriForce-400 was significantly lower yielding than the best non-hybrid variety.

Compared to other experimental alfalfa varieties, HybriForce-400 was significantly lower than the best experimental varieties in three environments, but not different than the best experimental varieties in 22 environments.

This preliminary evidence shows that HybriForce-400 is as high or higher yielding than currently available non-hybrid alfalfa varieties. However, there are commercial and experimental varieties that are capable of producing yields comparable to HybriForce-400.

Company representatives indicate that field performance of the commercially produced seed has been visually better than the performance of alfalfa plots where research seed was used. They feel that this is attributed to better isolation and less outcrossing in a commercial seed field.

One feature of this data set is that HybriForce-400 consistently yields in the top 10 percent of each test environment. Forage crop researchers know that it is very difficult to find an alfalfa variety that will yield consistently in the top 10 percent of a trial in 25 environments.

In this summary we compared HybriForce-400 to the average of the three top yielding varieties or experimental lines. Most of these varieties were different for each environment. The next most consistent variety had just four appearances in the top yield category.

Selecting alfalfa varieties that consistently perform at a high yield level is a difficult task that requires many test environments to accomplish. Also, because varieties change frequently and yield differences are relatively small, there are often not enough test environments for an accurate evaluation of new varieties.

Consistent ranking in the top 10 percent of each test environment indicates that HybriForce-400 is very stable and may have improved yield potential compared to other non-hybrid varieties on the market. Future advances in alfalfa hybrids may offer greater yield potential for this crop.

Richard Weiss Named COO Of National Grange

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Grange has named Richard Weiss as chief operating officer, a new position. As COO he will be responsible for the operational efficiencies and member services throughout the organization with emphasis on programs, membership development and retention, financial controls, fund-raising systems, and operations.

Weiss has worked with the National Grange as a communications consultant since 1999. Prior to that, he was senior vice president for public relations for the National Dairy Board and director of public relations for the National Paint and Coatings Association.

His private sector experience includes marketing positions with The Keebler Company, Abbott Laboratories and the Alberto-Culver Company. He holds a master's degree in business administration from the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College and a bachelor of arts degree from Dartmouth College.

"I am honored to be named COO of this fine organization. Under the 'New Grange,' National's mission is to help strengthen the Subordinate and State Granges. My goal is to put us in a position to fulfill that mission quickly and efficiently," Weiss stated.

Increase In Red Winter Wheat Exports Aids Maryland's Farmers

EDGEWATER, Md. — Soft red winter wheat, the class of wheat grown by Maryland's farmers, is increasingly destined for foreign shores. Millers and bakers in countries that have never imported the red wheat before have discovered that it is an excellent quality and a profitable choice, with the result that exports this year are on track to nearly double the level of three years ago.

The U.S. grows six classes of wheat and, of those, soft red winter wheat is the only class that has experienced steady export growth since 1998. Soft red winter (SRW) wheat is used to produce a wide range of confectionary products and crackers, and is blended to make breads.

In addition to growing the crop that is increasingly in demand, Maryland's grain producers contribute to this extraordinary achievement through their support of U.S. Wheat Associates (USW), the industry's export market development organization. With support from the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB), other state associations, and matching funds from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, USW has been pushing hard to introduce the benefits of U.S. wheat to new buyers around the world.

Mike Clark, president of the MGPUB and a grain producer in Howard County said, "At our annual funding meeting this month, our board of directors was pleased to approve a grant to support both the US Wheat Associates and US Grains Council. These organizations help expand our overseas markets. Individual states simply don't have the manpower to develop these important markets. Expanding our export business can make a huge difference when selling a crop and after years of low commodity prices; new markets are especially important."

A lot of foreign buyers like what they see in American grown soft red winter wheat. For instance, following on the heels of technical assistance and crop quality information provided to the grain traders and millers in Spain, exports this year are unprecedented, reaching almost half a million tons, or over 18 million bushels, where no sales had occurred in decades.

Maryland wheat producers are also closely watching the south Asian country of Sri Lanka, where exports of soft red winter wheat are up by a third. USW has been working closely with Sri Lanka government officials as they privatize the country's milling industry. They recently brought the country's first private mill owner to the U.S. to resolve issues on grain inspections and to familiarize him with the many varied aspects of the U.S. grain market and contract specifications.

Egypt continues to be a huge importer of soft red winter wheat, buying nearly 55 million bushels since June of 2001. Export sales to countries in the western hemisphere are also up, rising 25 percent, as buyers in Mexico increase their purchases to the point where they are the second largest purchaser of SRW, following Egypt.

When Brazil dropped a ban on U.S. wheat early last year, their first purchase was soft red winter, and it continues to be their wheat of choice. Drew Stabler of Montgomery County, a member of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board hosted a Brazilian trade team at his farm last year, when USW brought to the U.S. buyers representing the majority of Brazil's milling industry.

"I think I can speak for farmers everywhere when I say, we are grateful for any progress we can make toward future exporting. As everyone has heard, our supplies are high and commodity prices are low. By improving trade relations with countries like Brazil, Sri Lanka, and Mexico, it helps all countries involved," finished Stabler.

Doyle Joins Farm Credit Leasing Board

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Larry R. Doyle, executive vice president and chief lending operations officer of AgFirst Farm Credit Bank in Columbia, S.C., has been named a director of Farm Credit Leasing (FCL), a $2 billion lease financing company that serves agricultural producers, their cooperatives, rural communications and energy companies, and Farm Credit System entities.

Doyle is responsible for AgFirst's lending operations division. He has served in his current position since January 1996. Prior to that, Doyle was the bank's vice president and treasurer for 10 years. He is a 25-year veteran of the Farm Credit System, having worked with several Farm Credit institutions. Doyle has a bachelor's degree in business administration, finance, and an MBA in finance, both from the University of South Carolina.

Doyle replaces Andy Lowrey, president and CEO of AgFirst Farm Credit Bank, as a director of FCL. Lowrey left the board after three years of service to focus on his responsibilities with the bank. As one of FCL's two common stockholders, AgFirst is entitled to a seat on the company's board of directors.

The FCL board consists of seven directors. Three directors represent the company's two common stockholders, CoBank and AgFirst Farm Credit Bank. Three more directors represent FCL's cooperative, agribusiness and Farm Credit System customers. Another board member is a representative of the leasing industry.

In addition to Doyle, FCL's board members include Douglas Sims, chief executive officer of CoBank in Denver, who is board chairman; Robert B. Engel, president and chief operating officer of CoBank, who is board vice chairman; Peter Scott, executive vice president and chief financial and administrative officer of Beringer Blass Wine Estates in St. Helena, Calif.; Bill Lipinski, chief executive officer of First Pioneer Farm Credit in Enfield, Conn.; and Daniel Leclerc, principal of Crestwood Capital & Associates in Minneapolis, Minn.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc Offers This Low Cost Harrow

The Flex-i-ble Tine Harrow

Aerates and scarifies to stimulate growth, improve moisture penetration Breaks up manure to speed decomposition, reduce parasites Works in seeds after reseeding Maintains rings and tracks 4 to 42 ft widths. Adjustable penetration Low maintenance

Increase Yields And Lots More!

HERBICIDE INCORPORATION: Independent research using black light photography proves the Fuerst Harrow behind your disk or cultivator gives you "near perfect' incorporation in one pass – better than implements costing several times more! Shreds trash as it prepares & levels seedbeds.

BROADCASTING SMALL GRAINS AND GRASSES: University of Illinois found overseeding by broadcasting followed by a Fuerst Harrow a superior combination, outperforming equipment costing more than 10 times as much Pulled behind the broadcaster, it covers seed to desired depth in one time-saving operation

SHREDS STALKS: Shreds and spreads stalks in spring ahead of no-till and ridge-till planting.

4 to 42 ft widths Flexes to cover every inch at 6-8 mph No maintenance. Easy to use and store Insist on the original "Spreading Action" ® tines.

SIZES IN STOCK: 6', 8' AND 12'

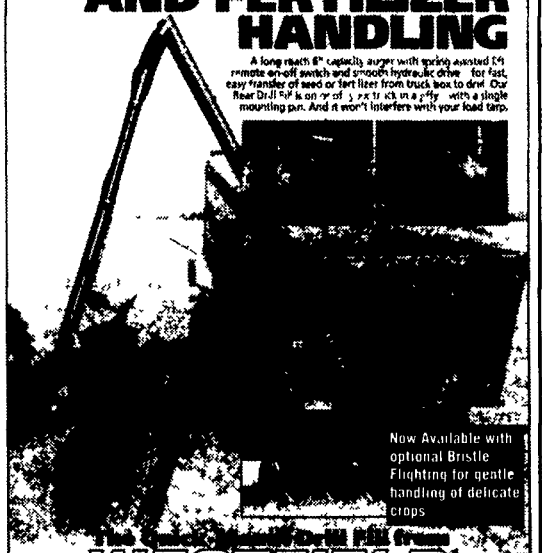
SNOW WOLF Ultra Series Heavy Duty Skid Loader Plows

Trip Cutting Edge Design
The SnowWolf Ultra features a trip cutting edge design which allows full down pressure for incredible scraping ability in forward or backdragging situations It eliminates "false tripping" from snow load and will only engage if you actually strike an immovable object

Massive Construction
The SnowWolf Ultra is designed to take abuse from the largest skid loaders At approximately 100 pounds per foot of plowing width, you know the Ultra means business

Food for Thought
Did you know that a modern skid loader with a high speed transmission and a SnowWolf Ultra will outplow a pickup truck under most plowing conditions? A cleaner job, closer to the obstacles (without worrying about your fenders), and more acres plowed in the same amount of time!

EASIER BULK SEED AND FERTILIZER HANDLING



A long reach 8" capacity auger with spring assisted RH remote on-off switch and smooth hydraulic drive for fast, easy transfer of seed or fert lizer from truck box to drill Our Rear Drill Fill is on or off quick in a jiffy with a single mounting pin. And it won't interfere with your load tarp.

CLAAS® Country
Meeting all your harvesting needs!

Leola, PA 17540 Phone: (717) 656-2321

Located: 4 miles West of New Holland on Rt. 23, 1-1/2 miles Northeast of Leola on the No. Groffdale Rd., 1 mile on the right, opposite Groffdale Mennonite Church.

Get Ready For Your Spring Hay Needs

High-quality CLAAS® equipment satisfies your need for nutrient-rich silage

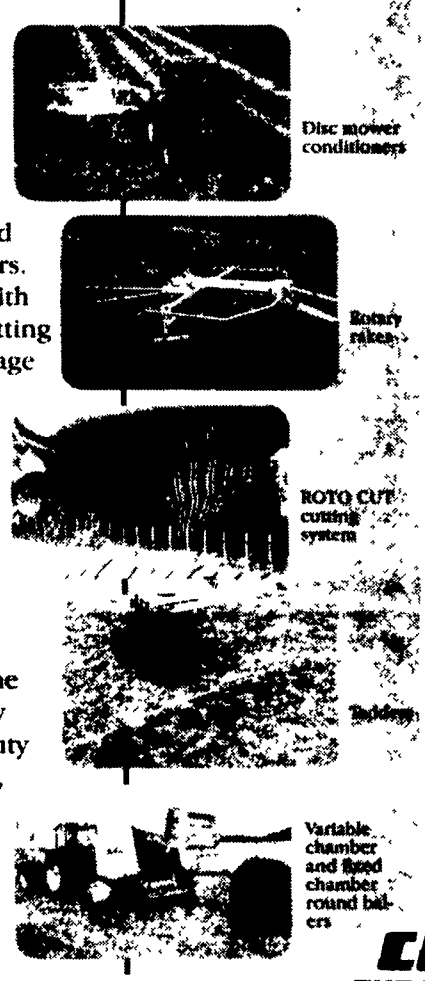
CLAAS offers a full line of equipment for nutrient-rich silage. Produce perfectly formed, dense bales with today's most reliable, technologically advanced heavy-duty fixed chamber and variable chamber round balers. Many models are available with the optional ROTO CUT® cutting system that pre-processes silage and adds greater density to each bale and choice of ROLLATEX® net wrap or twine. Disc mower conditioners, with heavy-duty cutter bars and your choice of roller or tine conditioner, follow ground contours for clean, even cutting. Reliable, heavy-duty tedders with 6 tine arms per rotor accelerate dry down. Dependable, heavy-duty rotary rakes, single and twin, with tandem axles produce uniform, fluffy windrows.



Your choice of one or two perfect windrows — CLAAS® LINER® 1550T

- Clears up to 24'
- Can form 1 or 2 windrows
- Tandem axle running gear follows ground contour
- Double tines capture all cut crop
- Hydraulic wings lift for travel and storage
- Enclosed, permanently lubricated control housing
- Low maintenance and long life

Large Inventory of Mixers. Call for Demos

"I'm pleased with how quickly it mixes."
-Herbert Benner, Gap, PA

"Our Roto-Mix mixer from Lapp's Barn Equipment processes dry baled hay real well. I can feed the TMR through my Weaverline Feed Cart without the hay wrapping around the augers.

"We have fewer off-feed problems, and the mixer helps us get constant milk production. It's also a good management tool because it allows me to keep more accurate feed cost records."

Herbert Benner is presently milking 50 cows in a tie stall barn.

- Owned Roto-Mix 184 stationary mixer from Lapp's since 1998
- Increased milk production averages 5 to 6 lbs. per cow
- 22,000 lb. herd average
- Ration: corn silage, haylage, cotton seed, 1 to 2 bales of hay.

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA UniPoly

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested
- Offered to growers for $1.55/per lb in 60 lb bags plus freight
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal and others
- These Alfalfa varieties are proven to compete with the expensive varieties in all conditions and always carry our money back guarantee

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting wonderful alfalfa from South Dakota seed

NOT ALL DETACHABLE PLOWS ARE CREATED EQUAL!

- Drive-in attachments eliminate struggling with a heavy blade and attachments
- Vertical Jack Stand guarantees proper height alignment
- Two permanently mounted connecting pins means there's no chance of dropping them in the snow or losing them during storage
- One Piece detachable (not two) means faster on and off

The Key To Easy Operation Is In Your Hand.

See Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today! Ask For Dean

This new state of the art, electronic control can be used with either the Solenoid EHP or the EC/SV Hydraulic System

- "CB" style mounting clip provided
- Unplugs for glovebox storage
- Automatic shut-off if not in use and automatic float in "down" position

Oregon Native Finds Green Pastures In Pennsylvania

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — In the spring of 2000, Philip Landis placed a want ad in the Lancaster Farming mailbox markets. He was looking for pasture to rent for starting a grass-based livestock operation in the area.

Raised in the Willamette Valley south of Portland, Oregon, Landis wanted to grow animals as naturally as possible, in a climate that was favorable to pasture growth. Although Oregon is known for abundant rainfall, the precipitation in Landis's home area comes mainly in winter, with summers too dry for good grass production, while late winter and spring are too wet to put livestock on pasture.

"No one makes hay in May in Oregon," Landis said.

Two farmers from the northeast part of Lancaster County responded to his ad. Landis agreed to rent a plot of pasture from each and began his business of producing "uncommonly good meat," including turkey, lamb, beef, and chicken raised on pasture. He also offers eggs from pastured hens, veal from whole-milk-fed calves and pork from naturally-fed hogs.

Landis earned a degree in agronomy from Oregon State, a land grant university where "almost no attention was given to direct marketing," he said.

After a stint of rural economic development work in Colorado, Landis turned to livestock production based on sustainable systems.

"I'm more interested in the biology of things," he said. "We try to approach the natural ideal, taking into account the lifestyle of the animal."

Conference Promises Grazing And Forage Expertise

Forage Specialist, 1,200-Cow Dairy Grazier Featured

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The 2002 Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference March 6 and 7 will feature numerous presentations and discussions on grazing and forages.

If you have an interest in learning more about large grazing systems, plant diversity in your pastures, biosecurity on your farm, hay production for horses, dealing with tall fescue in your pastures, or any other grazing and forage topics, you should plan to attend the conference at the Holiday Inn, Grantville.

Among the featured speakers will be Charlie Opitz, a 1,200 cow dairy grazer from Wisconsin, and Ray Smith, an extension forage specialist from Virginia Polytechnical Institute.

Smith has conducted research on breeding and management of both tall fescue and alfalfa. His experience with tall fescue makes him ideally qualified to lead a presentation on "Tall Fescue and Endophyte Issues."

Smith and Glenn Moyer, a seasonal dairy grazer from Franklin County, will lead the tall fescue discussion, focusing on plant and animal health concerns.

Smith organizes and conducts grazing programs and works closely with with extension agents and producers in the field doing grazing research. He is currently conducting research on establishment and maintenance of legumes in a grazing system, as well as organizing and running a grazing school in Virginia.

Opitz will discuss how he and son Mark operate a 3,000-acre grazing system for their 1,200-cow milking herd. Their grazing program started in 1986. The herd is crossbred, including Brown Swiss, American- and New Zealand-based Holstein, and Normande genetics.

The Opitz's system includes more than 100 paddocks containing a diverse mix of grasses and legumes developed from intensive management.

"You have to understand your grasses and how they grow," Opitz said.

"We concentrate on getting the cows high quality grass every 12 hours."

Opitz will discuss their system and its operation on March 6.

On the following day, Opitz and Gary Burely, a 500-cow grazer from New York, will talk about what steps they have taken to maximize their grazing management skills.

Larry Muller of Penn State will wrap up the presentations by addressing the question "Can the U.S. remain competitive in grazing?"

Wednesday evening will offer informal discussions with many of the presenters. Three different discussion groups will be conducted on the topics of dairy grazing, livestock

Oregon Native Finds

While much farmland has low levels of organic matter, Landis said that a pasture operation is a good way to rebuild the soil, increase moisture holding capacity and infiltration, and reduce erosion risk to "almost zero."

"That natural fertility is still there," he said. "I think the natural environment is fairly forgiving."

Landis experimented with pen designs for the pastured broilers, turkeys, and laying hens. The final pens have higher roofs than the prototype moveable pasture poultry houses designed by Joel Salatin. They also use synthetic fiber coverings instead of metal roofing sheets.

The higher roof and reflective fabric cover help keep the birds cooler on hot summer afternoons, Landis said. He also moves the pen onto fresh grass during the hottest part of the day to help relieve heat stress.

A handcrank attached to the moveable broiler pen allows Landis to roll the fabric up or down on the side to control the amount of cross-breeze moving through the pens, depending on weather conditions and time of day.

He said he likes turkeys best, both for their curious nature and because they use pasture forages more efficiently than other poultry. While chickens can receive about 30 percent of their diet from pasture, turkeys can approach 50 percent.

Teenager Marcus Horst, from the beef farm near Lititz where Landis rents pasture, helps to move poultry pens and do other livestock chores.

Living with a disability that requires him to wear crutches to walk, Landis is grateful for the help that reduces some of the more physically demanding aspects of raising livestock. Horst's participation also allows Landis more time for marketing.

Part of his strategy involves partnering with three local community-supported agriculture (CSA) farms.

The CSA farms offer fresh vegetables and fruits weekly to customers who pay for shares of the harvest prior to the growing season. Landis's partnership with the CSAs means that customers have the option of receiving local, grass-fed meat with their produce.

He also sells chicken, veal, and pork to the White Dog Cafe, a Philadelphia restaurant that specializes in naturally-grown foods.

Landis's "New Deal Veal" calves are raised on whole milk from pastured cows.

His hogs, while not raised on the free-range, are fed a varied diet that includes squash and other vegetable refuse.

"Pigs are pretty good at foraging, especially with root crops," he said. Raising them outdoors on rented land, however, is a risky proposition. "You need a lot of trust between landowner and renter to have pigs outside."

FREE NITROGEN!

Jumbo Ladino Clover

Now is the perfect time to overseed your fields with clovers When frost seeded in Feb clovers provide valuable nitrogen to surrounding grasses well before summer Once established, they will keep working throughout their lifetime - for free! But remember, what you sow is what you will reap, and cheap clover will give poor yields with minimal persistence

So why not plant the GOOD STUFF?

JUMBO LADINO CLOVER- grows faster and is more vigorous than many other white clovers Jumbo is characterized by its large leaf size (up to 3" wide in optimum growing conditions), heavy foliage tall growth and great feed value

STARFIRE RED CLOVER- While many red clovers last only 2 years, replicated yield trials under aggressive cutting management have shown that Starfire can handle 3-4 cuttings during the first and second hay years and still be there for a productive third year The result is more tonnage and better forage quality per crop

Reflective fabric on the top and sides, along with a higher roof than that on many pastured-poultry pens helps, keep birds cooler in summer heat, Landis said. The handcrank is used to roll the side up or down, depending on weather conditions.

Landis noted heat stress as another concern in raising free-range swine.

In his current program, he markets pork both "on the hoof" and as inspected cuts.

He uses a local butcher for processing larger animals. Daniel Stoltzfus of Stoltzfus's Grass Farm, Bird-in-Hand, processes Landis's poultry.

Landis is working to develop more marketing links, a challenge that requires a lot of time and commitment.

"Marketing is really about relationships," he said. "People want to have a sense of connectedness."

Close producer-consumer relationships have numerous benefits besides marketing, Landis said. Those include helping to keep communities intact and insuring against the mismanagement of animals and soil.

One of his goals is to make people more aware of the production costs of high quality food, even while the U.S. boasts the lowest percentage in the world of consumer's earnings going to what they eat.

"It's hard to get people to pay for (quality food,)" Landis said.

He decided not to pursue organic certification for his operation.

"Sustainable is the key word," he said. As far as marketing goes, "It's more beneficial being 'locally grown' than organic."

Word of mouth remains a key marketing tool.

"After two seasons, we're starting to have more people find out about us from other people."

In an attempt to maximize marketing niches, Landis is also looking into the feasibility of producing natural dog food from chicken parts undesirable to humans.

Northwest Grazing Conference Set

DU BOIS (Clearfield Co.) — A diverse group of graziers and livestock specialists will be on hand at the 5th Annual Northwest Grazing Conference here March 5.

Presenters include:

- Charlie Opitz, 1,200 cow grazier from Wisconsin
- Dr. Ann Swinker, Penn State extension horse specialist
- J.B. Harrold, grazing specialist, Natural Resources and Conservation Service.
- Dr. William Henning, Penn State meat specialist.
- Dale Thompson, Bedford County sheep and poultry producer.
- Kim Seeley, second generation Bradford County cheese producer.
- Dr. Harold Harpster, beef producer and associate animal science professor at Penn State.
- Scott Baer, Somerset County sheep producer.

Presentation topics include large-scale dairy grazing, horse grazing issues, direct marketing, grazing basics, and herd health/biosecurity.

The conference will be conducted at the Ramada Inn, Du Bois, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 5.

Cost for the day is $18.00. Registration deadline is February 26.

Hay Buddy™ power mergers speed harvest and improve hay quality. Forage is lifted with a gentle sweeping motion and cascades forward onto a wide, endless belt conveyor.

Hay Buddy™ Power Merger Benefits
- Speeds harvesting so more hay is put into storage at peak quality
- Moves and fluffs hay to promote drying
- Gentle action saves more leaves
- Fewer stones and rocks are found in the windrow than with wheel rakes
- Greater volume of material in a merged windrow means that harvesting equipment:
  - makes fewer passes over the field
  - operates at a lower ground speed
  - has fewer hours of operation
  - uses less fuel
  - requires fewer man hours
- Reduces soil compaction with fewer trips over the field made by large machinery and heavy loads grazing, and harvesting and preserving quality forages.

This is your opportunity to have specific questions answered and discuss with fellow grazers your concerns for your farm or the grazing industry.

A trade show will also be conducted. Company representatives will be available to showcase new forage and grazing technologies. You will be able to learn about new forage varieties and fencing equipment and make a purchase at the trade show with, perhaps, a discount.

The conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center.

Brillion

Sure Stand Grass Seeders

THE ERGONOMICS OF USING A BRILLION "SURE STAND" SEEDER

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity By properly placing the grass seed in the top 1/2" of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination

Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used

In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure Stand" Seeder in just a short time

Don't risk your crop to another system Don't settle for less Use the one seeding method that you can depend on to produce a top stand time after time a Brillion Sure Stand Seeder

Compaction Commander

- A full 39' of under-frame clearance assures trouble-free operation even in heavy residue
- Auto-reset shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage
- 20" maximum working depth to easily rip out hardpan and compaction
- Unlimited shank spacing to allow a variety of tillage functions
- Optional points and accessories allow controlled soil disturbance and distribution of surface residue

New Alfalfa May Be Ideal For Poor Soils

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Agricultural Research Service scientists in St. Paul, Minn., have added a gene to alfalfa that not only gives it tolerance to acid soil and aluminum, but also lets it naturally produce more nitrogen to stimulate plant growth.

Aluminum makes up about 7 percent of the earth's crust, but it only causes a problem for plants if they are growing in soil that is also acidic.

When crop roots in acid soils take in aluminum, the aluminum inhibits the roots' growth, reducing their ability to take up water and nutrients needed by the plant. This reduces the plant's yields.

The gene added by the ARS scientists causes the alfalfa's roots to produce more organic acids that render the aluminum nontoxic.

About 40 percent of the world's arable land has acid soil. Some soils are naturally acidic, while others become acid for a variety of reasons, including overuse of certain fertilizers. In the southeastern United States, millions of acres of pasture have acid subsoils that limit the productivity of forages. Lime applications on acid soils are often impractical, and the lime may not reach the acid subsoils where roots grow.

In experiments, the genetically-transformed alfalfa grew longer roots in acid soils that contained aluminum, indicating the roots were more aluminum-tolerant. But the transformed alfalfa did not grow as well as standard alfalfa in non-acid soil.

Time To Rotate Out Of Alfalfa?

Count Stems During Growing Season

Dr. Marvin Hall
Penn State University

The decision to keep or plow up an alfalfa field because it has a thin stand is extremely important. The estimated cost of seeding an alfalfa field is over $200 per acre. This expense, combined with relatively low production during the seeding year, means that the decision to take an alfalfa field out of production can be unnecessarily costly if the field could have maintained production for another year.

Typically, the magic number of plants that indicated it was time to rotate out of alfalfa has been four to five plants per square foot. However, depending on fertility and weed invasion, alfalfa stands with five plants per square foot can yield as much as a stand with 10 or 15 plants per square foot. The correlation between plants per square foot and yield is very low since individual alfalfa plants respond to decreasing stand density by producing more stems. Increased stems per plant compensate for fewer plants and maintain the yield. Recent research in Wisconsin by Dr. Dennis Cosgrove indicates that stem number rather than plant number is a more accurate determination of when to plow up an alfalfa stand.

According to Cosgrove's work, a better indication of the productivity of an alfalfa stand is the number of stems per square foot. Cosgrove suggests that fields with 55 or more stems per square foot produce maximum yields. As the stem number declines to 40 stems or less per square foot yields are reduced by 25 percent. He suggests this is when alfalfa fields begin to lose profitability and should be rotated out of alfalfa.

Unfortunately, this technique of counting stems works well if the decision to reseed is made during the growing season. The technique does not work when a decision must be made early in the spring after a hard winter. A decision at that time of year to rotate out of alfalfa must be based on the four to five plants per square foot threshold.

Rotational Grazing Right Choice For Pond Hollow Farm Beef Operation

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

MARTINS CREEK (Northampton Co.) — Elwood and Pauline Fox of Pond Hollow Farm, Martins Creek, know they made the right decision in converting their farming operation to intensive rotational grazing.

When asked if there were any regrets or anything they would have done differently, without hesitation both said, "We wish we would have started this in the 1950s."

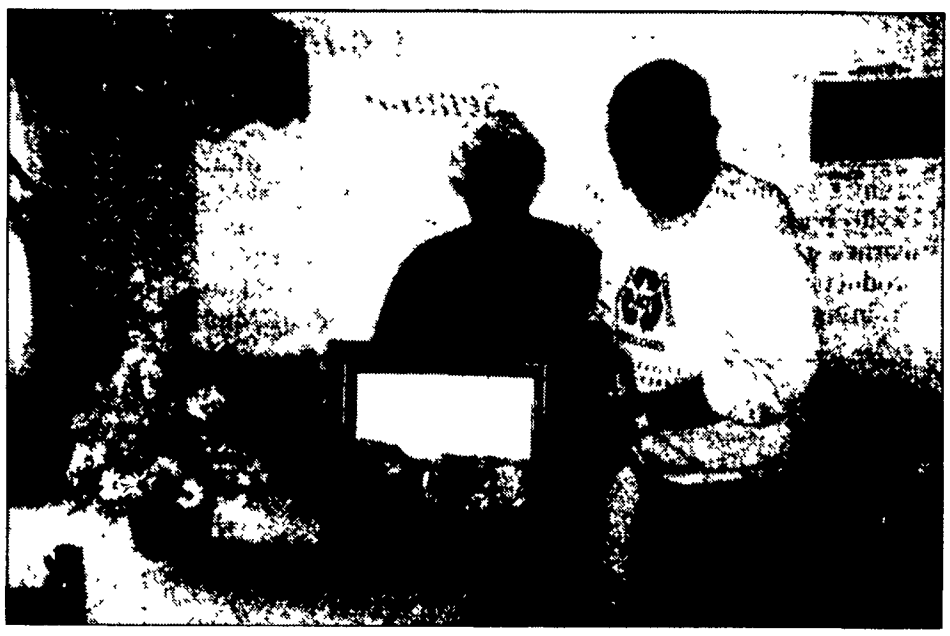
Until the early 1980s, Pond Hollow Farm was a typical dairy farm. After the couple decided it was time to get out of the dairy business, one of their sons ran the dairy for a few years. When the decision was made to completely shut down the dairy operation, the couple had to decide what direction they were going to take in regards to the future of the family farm.

They had old machinery and had to decide if they were going to buy new equipment or do something where they could utilize the equipment they had. About that time, the couple went to a meeting about rotational grazing and this idea got their interest.

The farm had been feeding heifers for a dairy from New Jersey for about eight years. The Foxes were going back and forth across the state line to pick up calves or drop off heifers that were close to freshening as often as three times each week. Occasionally the dairy would transfer a cow and her calf back to Pond Hollow Farm if the cow didn't fit into the milking line. After a while the couple started realizing that letting the cow raise the calf on pasture was an idea they wanted to pursue.

They noticed that the Holsteins did not fatten on grass alone and decided to start using beef bulls for their breeding. Through a very affordable agreement with another farmer, Fox leases a bull each year.

He exposes the cows to the bull from July 18 through Nov. 1 for freshening to start around May 1. Calving lasts for a three-month period.



Elwood and Pauline Fox celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a gathering of family and friends in November. One of their friends painted this farm scene for the couple and presented it to them as a gift.

Most of the bulls Fox has leased were Hereford or Simmental. He also purchased one or two Belted Galloway bulls. You can now see the beef influence coming into his herd.

Fortunately, the Foxes have experienced very few calving problems. Fox feels this is probably due to the fact that the cows are not fed grain and thus avoid overconditioning. Any cows that do not breed are culled from the herd.

The couple takes care of castrating the calves. One benefit of seeing the beef influence in their herd is the absence of horns, thus eliminating another procedure that had to be done in the past.

Shortly after switching to the

You may be asking, "What does BR mean?" BR stands for a Branched Root characteristic in alfalfa. Chemgro Seeds Paragon BR is an alfalfa with a branching root system. In tough wet conditions, Paragon BR will utilize a branching root system in poor areas. A taproot is utilized under normal conditions. BR means longer lasting stands of alfalfa in fields with less than perfect soil conditions. More of the root system stays above the water table, better securing the plant in the soil when freezing and thawing occurs. This branched rooted trait will adjust accordingly as the moisture stress intensifies. Paragon BR is a must for those uneven fields with low wet areas. Places where conventional alfalfas tend to die early, Paragon will provide you with high quality, even stand of alfalfa for a full four years. Paragon BR is a fall dormancy 3 alfalfa, with an excellent winter hardiness of 1.6. It is well adapted to the soils, conditions and diseases we face here in the Northeast.

HAY TOOLS

It's Not Just For The Big Boys.

Maybe you run a few beef cattle. Or you've got a small breeding operation. Nothing big. But big enough to wish you could put up your own hay.

'Til now, you figured that was strictly for big-time operators. Well, think again.

Hesston's got a complete line of hay tools built to work with tractors no bigger than 30hp. The Model 1004 disc mower, with its low-profile cutterbar and segmented hex driveshaft, delivers fast 5-1/2' cuts, easier maintenance and less wear.

The rugged Model 5008 V-rake boasts 55" diameter wheels on tapered bearings and 40 stout teeth on every wheel, so you don't miss a single stem. And the Model 830 round baler, with low-profile pickup and windrow gathering wheels, lets you control bale size and density to build 39"-wide bales up to 54" in diameter.

Alfalfa Intensive Training Seminar Scheduled In Minneapolis

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — With today's technology expanding at a rapid pace, there is much to be learned about all aspects of alfalfa production. The Alfalfa Intensive Training Seminar (AITS), developed by the Alfalfa Council, gives participants the knowledge they need to make the most of their alfalfa investment.

The next semiannual AITS will be conducted in Minneapolis, Minnesota, March 12-14. Members of the Alfalfa Council Advisory Committee, which includes university professors and extension agents from all over the country, will teach the three-day session.

The curriculum will cover the latest industry issues and developments, including genetics, seed production, growth and development, crop management, nutrition management and marketing. With the course outline approved, certified crop advisers can earn up to 10.5 C.E.U. credits. Registration information, as well as complete course curriculum, can be obtained by contacting the Alfalfa Council at (816) 584-8169 or visiting the Website at www.alfalfa.org.

Rotational Grazing

grazing operation, the Foxes decided to take a 25-day tour of Australia and New Zealand. They wanted to see how farmers in New Zealand operate their beef and dairy operations with respect to intensive rotational grazing.

The couple returned home and made some changes based on what they saw on their trip. Where more fencing was needed, cedar posts were cut from the farm to use as fence posts. Most of the original posts are still in place today. The single strand of electric wire charged by two fence chargers is all that is needed to keep the animals within bounds.

Because of the large pastured blocks and lush pasture, the larger animals don't get the urge to wander. Occasionally a small calf will go under the wire but quickly return to their mother's call. Fox said he sometimes worries when the animals are pastured next to the neighbor's nice alfalfa field with only a single strand marking their limit, but hasn't had any trouble. Since the pasture is never stressed to the point where the cattle want to look for better eating, the fence does its job well.

The Foxes now pasture 200 acres of the total 300 that make up Pond Hollow Farm. The 200 acres consist of four main divisions. A 60-acre parcel is divided into 13 blocks of approximately five acres each. Another parcel of about 20 acres is divided into six blocks with the remaining land split into two large sections — an 80 acre parcel and another of about 40 acres.

In spring, the animals — usually numbering around 80 — are rotated between the smaller blocks on a daily basis. When the pasture growth is at high production, the animals remain on a block for four to five days. In late fall, Fox will leave the cattle trim the growth fairly short before moving them to winter pasture. The younger animals spend the winter on the east portion of the farm where they have access to the barn. The cows spend the winter months across the street within easy view of the farmhouse, where they use a thick grove of cedar trees for shelter. During harsh winter storms, the cows will be moved into the barn lot with the young.

The two large divisions are not grazed until they have been baled for a first cutting crop, giving Fox approximately 180 round bales. The pastures, some planted for eight to 15 years, consist of crown vetch, orchard grass, white and red natural clover, and tall fescue. In order to utilize the crown vetch at its peak, first cutting baling is not done as early in the summer as with normal hay fields. Baling usually takes place in July. In order to take advantage of the high protein of the crown vetch, some quality of the other grasses must be sacrificed. Fox does not mow the crown vetch until clear weather is predicted for at least four to five days. By the time the stems of the crown vetch are dry enough to bale, the leaves are very brittle. For this reason, Fox does not use a hay rake. He sets his haybine to a windrow width that will match the pick-up head of his round baler and hopes the weather is in his favor.

One of the few problems Fox has encountered happened a few years ago when several cows experienced some nutritional deficiencies. Fox, along with his veterinarian, tested the pasture grass for nutritional value and discovered that the high protein diet from the lush pastures was too rich for them.

They needed more roughage in their diet, so now Fox makes sure they have a round bale of hay in the feeder at all times. Even if they only take a few bites on their way to and from the water supply it has been enough to eliminate any further problems.

The water for the cattle is supplied by a water cup at the barn in the east section and by a small stream that meanders through the west side of the farm. The stream has a gravel bottom. Fox said since they have converted to intensive rotational grazing they have not seen the erosion or muddy water that they did with conventional cropland farming. In fact the stream no longer exceeds it banks or flows over

It takes a quality product to do quality work.

TUBE-LINE BALEWRAPPER

For optimum speed and efficiency patented Tube-Line Wrappers are the answer! Tube-Line Wrappers wrap a continuous row of bales. The airtight application of stretch wrap film retains moisture balance as haylage matures and prevents air infiltration. The shrink wrap also prevents wind damage and accommodates variation in bale size and shape without air gaps.

Long stem silage is better used in the animals digestive system. Feeding high quality haylage from wrapped bales can reduce or eliminate feeding grain while retaining or increasing weight gains or milk production.

The quality of the thick pasture growth is maintained by mowing throughout the summer into September for weed control, with an occasional spot spraying for multiflora rose. In fall Fox uses his side-delivery manure spreader to spread organic compost on the pastures. The manure lagoon from the dairy operation has been modified into a compost pit. Grass clippings, manure from the barn lot, and even cardboard boxes are mixed, creating a compost that is spread over the pastures each fall in a thin layer. The cattle can be returned to these pasture blocks after two to three days of regrowth and will graze as usual.

As for the future, Fox agrees with the saying, "If it's not broke don't fix it." Fox sold off the equipment he no longer needed and currently owns two tractors, a round baler, haybine, hay rake, and manure spreader. With minimal expenses and few repair and vet bills, Fox feels he is ahead of the game by following the intensive rotational grazing program. He realized he could increase animal numbers if he wanted and could increase weight gain if he were to add a grain supplement to his feed program, but he has been well satisfied with the results when it comes time to market his calves.

Fox feels the most convincing point to promote rotational grazing is the reduced cost and labor of such an operations.

Fox presents a slide show to groups and organizations about the benefits of rotational grazing. Intensive rotational grazing has improved the quality of the farm's soils, and is an environmentally friendly operation. Pond Hollow Farm has been preserved under the Farmland Preservation Program, as are many surrounding farms.

This friendly and cheerful couple recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a party of family and friends. Converting to intensive rotational grazing has enabled them to enjoy life on the farm, yet allows them time to share. The daily needs of the cattle can easily be handled by their children and grandchildren, allowing the couple to travel and pursue their hobbies and interests.

As Elwood and Pauline Fox drive through their hilltop pastures watching their cattle leisurely enjoy the thick pasture growth, they know they made the right choice when they adopted a rotational grazing program.

Selecting An Alfalfa Variety

Dr. Marvin Hall
Penn State University

The choice of which alfalfa variety "is best" for a particular farm is not that easy! Over the past 10 years, Penn State has evaluated more than 150 alfalfa varieties or experimental lines in research trials at three locations in Pennsylvania. A large number of varieties for which adequate data are available have performed satisfactorily in these research trials. The results of these variety evaluation trials appear in the Forage Trials Report, available at your county extension office.

With all of these varieties available, how can the "best" variety be selected? First of all, there is no "best" variety for all situations. In fact, there probably is not one "best" variety for a single Pennsylvania farm because of the extreme variability in soils across the state. The key to selecting varieties is to identify the two or three varieties that are best suited for a particular situation. The following steps may help identify those suitable varieties:

1. Select varieties that have adequate resistance to the diseases prevalent in your area, on your farm, or in the exact field where the alfalfa will be planted.

2. From these varieties, select those that have persisted well in en-

PFGC Accepts New Members

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC) has announced membership rates for 2002.

The Council, with your membership and support, can accomplish much toward a better forage industry, environment, and community.

It's a big challenge and the PFGC needs your help. By becoming a member now, PFGC can serve an even more active role in support of the forage industry.

The PFGC, formed in 1960, is made up of individuals and organizations that are interested in forage and grassland-based agriculture. The PFGC is dedicated to the production and utilization of quality forage and grassland.

The PFGC works in a variety of ways to promote the industry, through publication of Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News, through the publication of Foraging Around, and sponsoring individual workshops, training events, field days, Ag Progress Days, leadership, and other activities.

Every member receives the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland News, the Hay and Forage Grower magazine, and a PFGC membership directory.

So to become part of a growing industry, use this membership form included here to sign up now.

vironments or situations similar to the farm where they will be planted. This information is given in the Penn State Forage Trials Report.

3. From the list of varieties that you have identified as acceptable, select the highest yielding varieties. This can be done by selecting the highest yielding variety at one location over several years or by selecting the varieties that were among the highest yielding at all locations for several years. The first method will provide a small list of varieties that yield well under a narrower range of conditions, while the second method provides a limited list of varieties that yield well under a wider range of conditions.

4. From the list, select two or three varieties to plant and "test" in the field.

The varieties selected in this manner, when properly fertilized and managed, will be the highest yielding available and normally persist for three or more years. By planting a couple varieties, you are testing the "best" varieties to see which is truly best on your farm or in a particular field. This information should help when selecting an alfalfa variety in the future. Avoid use of nonadapted common seedlots when growing alfalfa as a perennial forage crop in Pennsylvania.

Unfortunately, there are varieties marketed in Pennsylvania that have not consistently shown improved quality or yield over traditional varieties. Once again, select varieties based on disease resistance, winter hardiness, and yield not because they are "new and improved."

Bradford, Tioga Grazing Conference Set

TROY (Bradford Co.) — A grazing conference will be conducted in northern Pennsylvania on March 8, one day following the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference in Grantville.

The Bradford and Tioga Grazing Conference will feature Charlie Opitz of Wisconsin, Duane and Neil Hertzler of Moo-Echo Farm, Mike Hosterman of Ag-Choice Farm Credit, and fencer technician Ken Smith of Kencove Fence.

Opitz and son, Mike, manage a 1,200-cow grazing operation on more than 100 paddocks in Wisconsin.

The Hertzlers changed to a grazing system in the mid 1990s for their 250-cow herd. They will talk about the transition and their dairy operation, while Hosterman will speak on the financial aspects of the transition and grazing.

Fence expert Smith will discuss how good fencers and proper grounding work together to make an effective electric fence.

The conference begins at 9 a.m. at the Troy Fire Hall in Troy. Return or e-mail your registration to J. Craig Williams, Penn State Cooperative Extension, 118 Main Street, Wellsboro, PA 16901; e-mail jcw17@psu.edu; fax (570) 724-6819.

Hello from your president as well as all of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council.

It is hard to believe that winter is here and the year 2001 is a matter of history. Wow, what a record of history it was. The events of September 11 have caused and continue to cause many changes in our lives.

It is nice to be reassured that not everything is changing. The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council is an example of an organization that continues to deliver at a high level of expectation. A member

Small Farm Opportunities To Highlight Southeast Grazing Conference

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A two-day seminar packed with informative presentations and opportunities to interact with other grazers will be offered at the 9th Annual Southeast Pennsylvania Grazing Conference at the Solanco Fairgrounds here February 11 and 12.

Speakers include David Kline, Amish author and farmer from Ohio, soil authority Jerry Brunetti, and fence expert Doug Gunnick.

"Bigger Isn't Always Better" and "How To Stay Small And Stay Ahead" are two of the topics on which Kline will share his views.

Extension agent Mike Hartman and grazier Wilmer Newswanger will be on hand to share their knowledge and experience of onfarm processing and direct marketing. Billy Wayson and Art Thicke round out the program with presentations on grass dairying, including an examination of the seasonal approach.

Walk-ins are welcome at the conference. Cost is $40, including lunch both days.

SPECIALIZING IN CUSTOM MANUFACTURED AGRICULTURAL EQUIPMENT

MODEL 55/55-N
The Model 55 is the most versatile of all models matching up to a wide variety of bale patterns It can carry up to 12 two-tie bales, 8 three-tie or 3 midsize bales at one time It can also be connected to a 90 degree rotator, a powered vertical tilt or any of a variety of loader units

MODEL 200/400
The model 200 is a highly maneuverable vehicle built from the ground up specifically for handling hay It can be mated with all bale rack models to handle all sizes of square bales large or small Its extremely rugged design easily handles up to 2000 lbs to 21 high or in the Model 400 version 4000 lbs up to 25 high

MODEL 65/65-N
The Model 65 is specifically built to match up with all New Holland 3 bale wide stack wagons It can carry 12, 15 or 18 bales flat or on edge, depending on model It is ideal for topping stacks or loading and unloading trucks

MODEL 84/85
These models are extra heavy duty for the demanding application of carrying up to 2 big bales or 3 midsize bales at a time They have additional beanngs and extra large teeth that dig deep into the bales to insure a firm grip even with soft or wet tops

MODEL N/950
The model 950 is specifically made for packaging 10 bales together to form a tie package measuring approximately 6-1/2'x 8' ready to load directly onto a truck This completely eliminates the need for someone to turn bales on the truck to get a full load Also it eliminates the need to hand stack at the barn This is truly the only system that eliminates all hand labor

Cimarron SR

ALFALFA

Cimarron SR is the latest advancement on the popular Cimarron line of alfalfa varieties. Cimarron SR combines high yield and quality with one of the most advanced pest resistance packages available.

High Yielding
Cimarron SR is the highest yielding Cimarron alfalfa ever released. In university testing this variety is consistently at the top of the trials.

Extra Leafy
Cimarron SR produces large leaves, and it holds its leaves better in the baling process. So you get more leaves in every bale. Break open a bale of Cimarron SR alfalfa and you will see the difference.

Advanced Pest Resistance
Cimarron SR offers one of the most advanced pest resistance packages available. High root rot resistance gives this variety longer stand life in problem soils. Cimarron SR offers several other advances including sclerotinia resistance and weevil tolerance.

Sclerotinia Resistant
Sclerotinia crown rot attacks fall planted alfalfa in the early spring, weakening or killing stands. In some areas, farmers quit planting in the fall because of this disease. Cimarron SR's sclerotinia resistance provides protection against spring stand loss.

HayGrazer

The High Yield Alfalfa For Hay and Grazing

HayGrazer is an advanced new alfalfa bred for hay and grazing. HayGrazer combines the high yields and forage quality of a top hay variety with excellent persistence under grazing.

Aggressive Branching Root System
HayGrazer was derived from a cross between a creeping-rooted alfalfa used for pasture in Siberia and our highest yielding hay variety. The Siberian creeper contributed winter hardiness, a heavy crown, and an aggressive branching root system, which resists trampling by grazing animals.

High Yield
HayGrazer has been a top yielding variety in university trials. HayGrazer combines high yields with top forage quality.

Advanced Pest Resistance
HayGrazer has a superior pest resistance package including tolerance to the alfalfa weevil. This advanced variety persists well in cold wet soils.

is able to enjoy the many benefits that membership has to offer. The hay shows that PFGC sponsors, the excellent publications that are provided to members, and the many education events that the council helps to sponsor, are several examples of member benefits. They represent quite a bargain for an annual membership of $20.00.

One of the events that PFGC helps to cosponsor is the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference. This years conference promises to be an exceptional program.

Mr. Charlie Opitz of Mineral Point, Wisconsin will be our featured speaker. He will discuss how he grazes his 1,200 lactating cow herd on a 3,000 acre system. He will tell us how he took his grazing system to the next level, plus how he advanced his management skills to the next level. Yes, I did say 1,200 cows on pasture. Look for other conference information in this special section.

It goes without saying that an organization is only as strong as it weakest link. In my year as president of PFGC I found out that your organization is a strong chain and I could not find a weak link. Everyone of the officers and board members did an outstanding job for you and I want to thank them for all their hard work and dedication to making PFGC the great organization that it is.

As you can probably tell from these comments that my term as president is coming to a close. Before the next issue of Foraging Around is published you will have a new president — John Pergosky, a hay producer from Lehigh County. Your council will be in good hands with John as your president and I trust you will give him your support to make PFGC an even better organization.

I want to say thank you to my fellow officers and board members for a great year. I want to thank you, the membership, for continued support of PFGC and look forward to seeing you at Grantville at the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference.

You can reach me at the Natural Resources Conservation Service office in Harrisburg, where I will continue on with my duties as a Grassland Management Specialist. My mailing address there is NRCS, Suite 340, One Credit Union Place, Harrisburg, PA 17110-2993. My e-mail address is duane.pysher@pa.usda.gov and my telephone number is (717) 237-2221.

❖ Pasture Ponderings ❖

Duane E. Pysher
President, PFGC

During a discussion I had on grazing the other day the phrase "Grazing is only for the small herd" came into the conversation. How many times have you heard that statement or perhaps you use that phrase? I am quite concerned about the meaning of that phrase. Does it mean that you physically can't put large herds on pasture, is it economically not possible to graze a large herd, or does it mean the grass cop is watching and will arrest those who try to graze a large herd? Let's talk about what this phrase means or perhaps what it does not mean.

It does not mean that you physically can't put a large herd on pasture. I think that is obvious, because as long as you have the physical requirements such as land with adequate forage, an appropriate fencing system, and a watering system, you can utilize pasture as a way of feeding your large herd at a lowered feed cost.

But is it as easy as I make it sound? Not really, because the missing ingredient in the above list is management, and that is a crucial element to make the system work efficiently and effectively.

Any grazing system that involves the movement of livestock through a series of pastures or paddocks requires a fairly high level of management on the part of the producer. However, this is not rocket science. This management knowledge can be gained by attending grazing symposiums and conferences, by mentoring with a seasoned grazier and/or learning by doing and from your own experiences.

The management requirements involve an understanding of forages and forage growth principles and knowledge of how you can graze livestock on these paddocks without inflicting any damage to the forages. When this is done at the proper stage of growth, the forage can provide high levels of nutrition that allow the livestock to make maximum production of animal products whether it is meat, milk, or wool.

All this sounds great. But in light of this need for a high level of management, it suggests what we said earlier: "grazing is only for the small herd." How would you be able to manage a large herd on pasture? When you think about it, the only difference is in the size of the system — specifically, the herd and the pasture acreage, plus the system components like fence and watering system. Yes, management is also a key factor, but the principles are the same. It simply requires more attention to the same type of details that are required on a small system.

Most dairymen think grazing is for the farmer who has 50 to 60 cows. Any herd larger than that needs to be kept in confinement and the feed has to be harvested mechanically and brought to the cows. On the majority of Pennsylvania's farms this is how it is done.

However, the cost of machinery and the time demand to do all this planting and harvesting of crops has caused many producers to look at their bottom line, which is their profit. They are looking for ways to cut costs, yet still maintain milk production levels. Grazing is one way that farmers can reduce their

Hybrid Alfalfa: The New Kid On The Block

Marvin Hall
Penn State University

Hybridized corn (result of crossing two different inbred lines) yields more than would be expected from the potential yield of either parent. This unexpected high yield is known as heterosis and has been the backbone of the hybrid-seed corn industry for 60 years.

Logic suggests that hybrid alfalfa may exhibit some heterosis that could significantly increase yield. However, the hybridizing of alfalfa, except in the lab on a very small scale, has been more difficult because insuring cross and not self pollination in alfalfa is not easy (you can easily detassel alfalfa). The development of male-sterile alfalfa plants (female plants) now insures cross pollination and allows for the mass production of hybrid alfalfa seed. (Note: a bag of hybrid alfalfa seed only needs to contain more than 75 percent hybrid seeds with the remaining seeds being produced from selfing).

Company advertising suggests that growers can increase their alfalfa yield by as much as 15 percent by using a hybrid alfalfa compared to a traditional non-hybrid alfalfa variety. If this is true then producers could realize an additional income of around $100 per acre per year just by growing hybrid alfalfa.

University Variety Trials

Hybrid alfalfa was first tested in University trials in 1997 as an experimental variety (the next generation of varieties before they are given a name and commercially available) that was later named HybriForce-400. The seed used in these trials was produced in a research setting and did not come from large commercial seed production fields. In three out of 25 test environments, HybriForce-400 yielded better than the best non-hybrid variety. In 21 of the environments, HybriForce-400 was not different in yield from the three highest yielding commercial non-hybrid varieties.

Compared with only other experimental varieties, HybriForce-400 was lower yielding in three environments, but not different in 22 environments. However, HybriForce-400 consistently yielded in the top 10 percent of each test environment. This indicates that hybrids can have good stability and yield well across a wide range of environments.

In Penn State's Forage trials (six hybrids over three environments), the average yield of hybrids was 0.25 tons/acre more than the average for all entries. However, the top five non-hybrid entries yielded nearly one ton/acre more than the average for all entries.

PFGC ❖ Pasture Ponderings ❖

feed costs substantially. They have also found that grazing has greatly reduced their stress levels. They are no longer trying to plant vast acreages of annual crops to keep their herd fed. They are able to devote time to producing high quality forages for pasture, hay, or silage. Yes, they still need to mechanically harvest feed, but on a reduced basis from what they would be if they had to provide stored feed for 12 months of feeding. The cows are harvesting much of their own feed for at least six to seven months, depending on the year or your location.

By now you are saying "This guy has never told me yet how I can graze with a large herd." Well, better than me telling you, why don't you come and listen to a real expert on grazing a large herd at the Pennsylvania Forage and Grazing Conference? The expert I am referring to is Mr. Charlie Opitz of Mineral Point, Wisconsin. Charlie, along with his wife, Dorothy, and son, Mark, have been grazing their 1,200 cows on a 3,000 acre system since 1986. Their pasture system is made up over 100 paddocks, which contain a diverse mix of grasses and legumes.

Charlie says, "you have to understand your grasses and how they grow". He manages them to assure they are not overgrazed and fertilizes his pastures several times during the growing season. He overseeds his pastures regularly. In 1993 the Opitz's built a double 27 New Zealand style swing parlor. The farthest pasture is about one mile from the parlor.

The Opitz herd is a mix of Brown Swiss, American Holstein and New Zealand Holsteins. Charlie admits he made some mistakes, but he has learned from them. He also has done many things right to make his system such a success. He says "We concentrate on getting the cows high quality grass every 12 hours". It is this principle that is key in his success as a large herd grazier.

Charlie will be at the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference on March 6 and 7 to discuss his grazing program and what he is doing to take his program to the next level. He will also be part of an informal discussion group on the evening of the 6th to discuss dairy grazing issues. The conference is being conducted at the Holiday Inn at Grantville, which is just off exit 80 on Interstate 81.

If you would like information on the grazing conference it is contained in this supplement or you can contact me. If you need help with any grazing issue or if I can provide you with information on grazing groups give me a call at (717) 237-2221, e-mail me at duane.pysher@pa.usda.gov, or write to me at NRCS, One Credit Union Place, Suite 340, Harrisburg, PA, 17110-2993.

Until next time, happy grazing and hope to see you at Grantville on March 6 and 7.

Forage Calendar

A monthly guide from Penn State's agronomy department.

February

- Order seeds and supplies for spring forage seeding.
- Attend educational meetings that relate to your forage enterprise.
- Keep snowmobiles and other traffic off of alfalfa.
- Begin routine maintenance and repairs on forage planting and harvesting equipment.
- Remove cows from corn stalks to avoid excessive soil compaction.
- In late February, frost seed legumes into small grains or pastures.

March

- Finish frost seeding by early March.
- Finish routine maintenance and repairs on forage planting and harvesting equipment.
- Complete maintenance check and repairs on forage planting and harvesting equipment.
- Order supplies (haybine knives & guards, rake teeth, twine, balage wrap or bags) for forage harvest.

April

- Scout alfalfa fields for heaving and winter injury. If severe, make plans to thicken stand with grass or make plans to rotate to another crop.
- Begin scouting for alfalfa weevil in late April.
- Plant cool-season forages when soil is suitable.
- Apply nitrogen to grass pastures and hay fields at greenup.

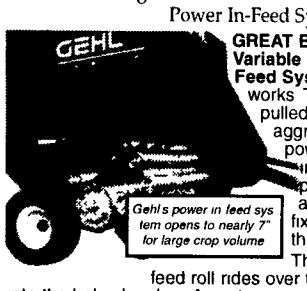
ROUND BALER 4'x5'
Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System



GREAT BALING STARTS HERE Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System Here s how it works The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6 inch diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and an 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

THREE-BALL TWINE BOX. Gehl balers are designed to keep you going all day long with six-ball twine storage. They're located in full-size doors that open to provide easy access to baler components like an optional chain oiler system or the Total Density Control adjustments.

GAUGE WHEELS. Allow the pickup to follow field contours while keeping tines out of the dirt. That saves wear and tear on the pickup and means less dirt in your bale. Gauge wheels are standard equipment with the wide pickup and an option with some others.

BELTS. Deluxe balers feature chevron belts (pictured above) with heavy duty, plate-type belt lacing. The belts ar e 6-1/2 inches wide for closer spacing between belts and less space between the belts and side sheets. Belts are configured in a staggered pattern to minimize trash build-up.

Planning Ahead With Annual Forages

Marvin H. Hall
Penn State University

Forage shortages most often occur during the summer when dry conditions reduce productivity or in the early winter when cool temperatures restrict plant growth of perennial forage crops. By planning ahead for periods of low production from the perennial species, annual crops can be planted which will provide forage during these periods.

In the event that the summer is not dry and perennial forages maintain high levels of production, then the summer annual crops will not necessarily be lifesavers, but can be utilized along with the perennial crops as a source of forage. However, it is important to remember that annual crops need to be a planned component of the forage system and not a reaction after the perennial crops begin to decline in production.

While no forage species could have maintained high production during last summer's dry weather, some annual forage species could have been more productive than our traditional perennial forage crops. That is, if they had been established before the dry weather. The decision to plant an annual crop as insurance against dry weather, should be an economical one. In a year such as last, the value of any forage was high and the economic benefits of annual forage crop production were obvious.

However, in a wet summer, the economics of production are not necessarily negative since the crop can still be utilized as a forage for livestock consumption. The annual crop simply removes some of the risks associated with farming in the unpredictable weather of Pennsylvania.

Where do annual forage crops fit?

Summer annual grasses including sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan hybrids, and millet grow best at relatively high temperatures (80 degrees Farenheit) and maintain production under conditions of limited moisture. They should be planted from two weeks after corn until the end of June. Seedings may be made as late as July 15 in emergency situations, but yields will be reduced because of limited moisture and cool temperatures during the fall.

Summer-annual grass harvest for silage should occur when the grasses are in the medium to hard dough stage. The best time to graze these grasses is when they are between 18 and 30 inches tall. Contact your county extension office to obtain "Agronomy Facts 23, Summer-Annual Grasses for Supplemental or Emergency Forage" for more detailed information about use of summer-annual grasses in your system.

Brassicas including rape, kale, turnip and swede have different growth characteristics and can be seeded in the spring or late summer to provide a range of utilization periods. Rape and turnip can usually be grazed about 90 days after planting while kale and swede normally require about 150 days before harvesting.

An exception is the stemless cultivar, "Premier," which will regrow after harvest.

Small Grains such as wheat, barley, rye and triticale should be planted from mid-August to early September and can be utilized for grazing from October through December and again in early spring. If the small grain is to be harvested for silage, grazing should be discontinued when the plants begin upright growth in the spring.

The key to success with annual forage crops is to plan ahead. By planning ahead and establishing a small portion of your forage acreage to annual forages, you provide insurance against inclement weather with minimal net cost even if the weather turn out to be ideal for perennial forage crop production.

Making Quality Hay Is Worth The Effort, Says Hall

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — According to Penn State studies, producing a high-quality forage is worth $40 a ton more than low-quality hay, said Marvin Hall, professor of forage management.

At home, that same high-quality hay is also worth more when it is fed to the producer's own animals, he said.

Six factors affect forage quality.

The first, plant maturity, is related to cell wall maturation. As the plant grows, the cell wall gets thicker and digestibility decreases, he said. Consequently more of the hay passes through the animal unused.

The proportion of leaves to stems is also related to plant maturity. The longer a plant grows, the more the stem elongates, so the ratio of stem to leaves is greater. This also translates to a loss of digestibility, since leaves are more digestible than stems.

The species of the plant also determines hay quality. Since grasses have greater cell wall material, legumes tend to be more digestible than grass. However there is not a lot of difference between grass species, he said. Hall recommended cool season over warm-season grasses.

Harvesting and storage methods are also factors in forage quality. Cutting the hay results in a loss of between 4-11 percent dry matter; raking, 3-25 percent dry matter; and baling, 3-15 percent dry matter.

Ideally, a producer would have minimum dry matter losses, because most of what is lost is the leaves, which is where the quality is, he said.

A farmer who stores hay inside will lose 5-10 percent dry matter. Storing outside results in 10 to more than 50 percent dry matter loss.

Environmental conditions also affect quality, especially during baling. Ironically, hay quality will remain high under moisture stress, although yield will decrease. There is less stem material in relation to leaves with moisture stress, said Hall.

Another environmental condition is temperature, since high temperatures (above 85 degrees) result in increased cell wall and lowered digestibility. Seasonal temperature curves, in fact, impact quality — hay quality decreases during the hot summer months.

The best hay can be produced in the late spring and early fall months. First cutting is generally not the same high quality hay as fourth cutting because it is often cut too late since there is an abundance of other work to be done on the farm in the spring.

Otherwise, said Hall, first cutting would rival or surpass fourth cutting in quality.

Soil fertility actually does not have a substantial impact on quality, if the soil conditions are not extreme. Yield, rather than quality, is more sensitive to soil fertility.

The variety of the grass or legume planted, understandably, affects quality. Plant breeding programs are beginning to screen forage for difference in quality, he said.

Of these various methods of hay quality management, a producer can only manipulate and change plant maturity, harvesting and storage, he said.

Harvesting more frequently will produce a higher-quality hay, he said. In addition, crimping and crushing the stem will allow water to evaporate out of the stem, synchronizing the drying of stem and leaves.

This quick-drying method also ensures that the hay will have less time in the field and consequently less exposure to rain.

Respiration is an integral part of the haying process, as the moisture that the hay is harvested at will impact the rate of respiration of the hay.

At 20 percent moisture, respiration is slow enough to store forages safely.

"You don't want to make hay at anything above 20 degrees moisture, when respiration may be going strong and produce heat, and molds will grow," he said. Under these conditions, fire may result.

2002 Membership Drive

Please help us keep costs down by returning your membership renewal promptly. Remember that the PFGC is the voice for the entire Pennsylvania forage industry. Let's continue to work together to keep the organization strong and vital in Pennsylvania.

Through your continued membership, the PFGC is able to accomplish much toward a better forage industry, environment, and community. With continued support from supporting organizations and individual members, the PFGC can secure additional funds to provide a great return on your membership investment!

Encourage neighbors and friends that are not PGGC members to join and enjoy the benefits of membership. Why not give a PFGC membership to a friend or valued customer? It doesn't matter how you become a member, just get it done and get involved!

Effect Of Spike-Tooth Aeration On Tall Fescue Yield

According to recent research presented at the American Forage and Grassland Council's annual meeting, spike-tooth aeration does not seem to improve forage yield of tall fescue. Dr. Gary Bates at the University of Tennessee found that compaction problems in most pastures was corrected through the freeze/thaw cycle and by root channels. There may be soil types that can benefit from aeration but producers should proceed with caution before purchasing a spike-tooth aerator.
